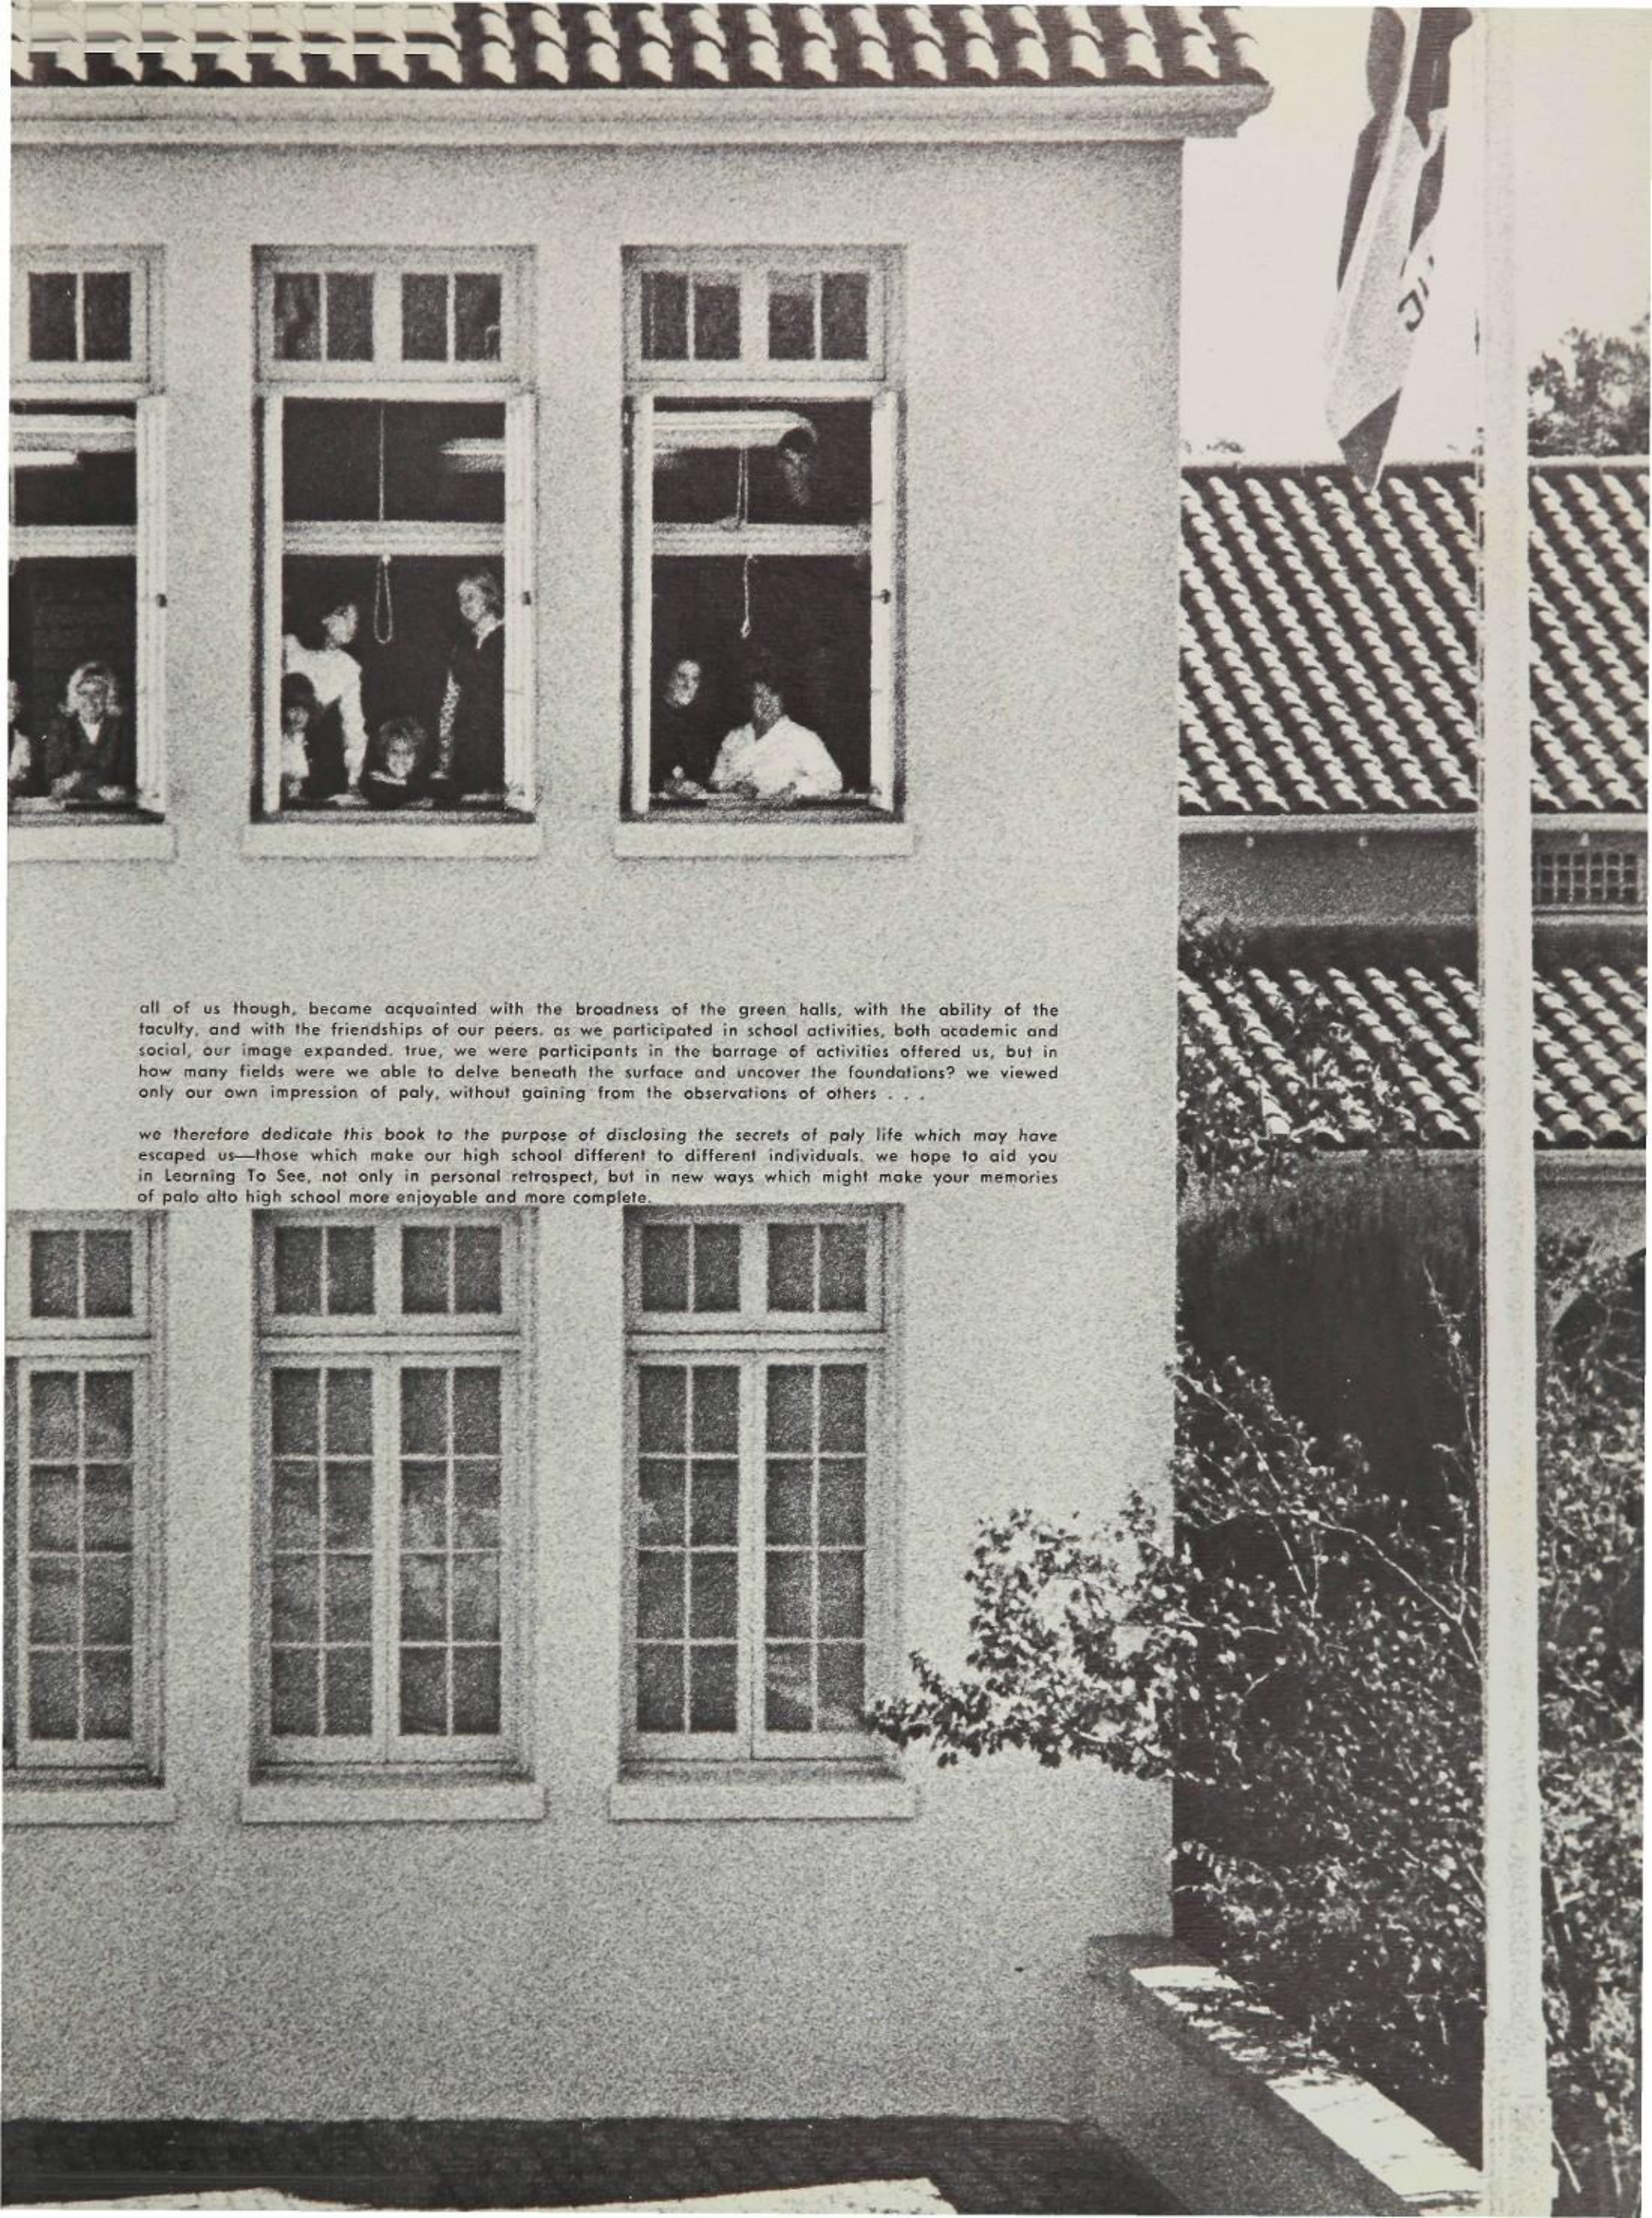
"one can never step into the same river twice," said the ancient heracleitus, ". . . the water flows on—though it may appear the same, it is in reality different." so flows paly life, days of work and leisure which outwardly seem only to reiterate a set pattern, may be, in reality, diversified when viewed in different ways. the places and names we know so well may, upon closer observation, yield new and exciting facets of interest.

as each of us returned from summer vacation we refreshed and renewed our memories of paly's appearance. as sophomores, we gained our first image of high school existence.



all of us though, became acquainted with the broadness of the green halls, with the ability of the faculty, and with the friendships of our peers. as we participated in school activities, both academic and social, our image expanded. true, we were participants in the barrage of activities offered us, but in how many fields were we able to delve beneath the surface and uncover the foundations? we viewed only our own impression of paly, without gaining from the observations of others . . .

we therefore dedicate this book to the purpose of disclosing the secrets of paly life which may have escaped us—those which make our high school different to different individuals. we hope to aid you in Learning To See, not only in personal retrospect, but in new ways which might make your memories of palo alto high school more enjoyable and more complete.

with the broadness of the green halls . . .

We learn to see paly as we've never seen it before, empty. few of us are aware of the silence that fills paly's halls before we return to school in september.

the silence of the summer was gradually filled by the staff. as the first day of school changed from the future to the present, the staff was busy replacing lightbulbs, compiling records, and organizing textbooks. many of us never saw or realized that it was this group of individuals, each faithfully performing his task, that formed the backbone of a smoothly functioning organization.

also assuming capably the burden of the coming school year was the administration—mr. ruppel, dr. mason, and mrs. stanga. before the opening day they had spent many hours in planning and scheduling the events for the next year. mr. guidoux returned to his role of director of student activities to plan the dances and school functions. carefully organizing the records and assuring a smooth functioning main office was mrs. mathis, our administrative secretary. mr. christensen made sure that the school facilities were all in proper working order to meet the test of the first day.

we refreshed and renewed our memories of poly life. if sophomores, we gained our first image of high school existence, trying to appear familiar with the unfamiliar surroundings. as juniors, we began to again grow accustomed to the crowded halls, the slammed lockers. with an all too recent memory of the sophomore year, we exerted our superiority over our naive subordinates. if seniors, returning for our final year, we were greeted by a large sign saying "welcome '65". we finally were able to sit in the coveted center section of the amphitheater and to hear the student body officers, who were our friends and classmates. for us, the year 1965 held promise of truly being the best yet.

september 18, 1964, marked the end of our first week of school with only 35 more weeks to go. the exhuberant friday spirit coincided with the traditional dress-up day. sophomores came as babies, juniors as sophisticates, and seniors as old people; but in reality, students came in a barrage of different costumes. the enthusiasm of dress-up day culminated in the first dance of the year.

as sophomores we gained our first insight into paly existence . . . as the first few weeks of school progressed the sophomores oriented themselves and embarked on a new adventure . . . paly.

the class of '67 became an integral part of the school. their football and water polo teams brought glory to paly and the sophomore class. the class council assumed their responsibilities and planned ways of raising money for their class. students contributed their ideas on the subject in a box in room 11.

the sophomores have matured with their first year in high school and will return to carry on paly's traditions.

ON SALE IN FINANCE OFFICE — '3.50

by gaining from the observations of others . . . .

we expanded our individual horizons and widened our facets of interest.

at this year's first assembly, both nancy hochberg and ken glazier shared with the members of the student body their experiences at girls' and boys' state, a program in practical americanism.

during the summer each state joined in this program. for one week the selected students set up city, county, and state governments in accordance with strict election procedures. amidst all of the rushing about and excitement there was a feeling of comradeship amongst newly made friends.

girls' state was held at the university of california at davis. when the 500 "plus" girls arrived, they were immediately assigned to a city and a county. the girls' lodge was in the cal dorms, and paly's representative nancy hochberg described it as "all the comforts of home." the 800 males at boys' state were housed in a "cow barn" sited at the sacramento state fair grounds. ken glazier, this year's boys' state representative, called it a feeling of "togetherness."

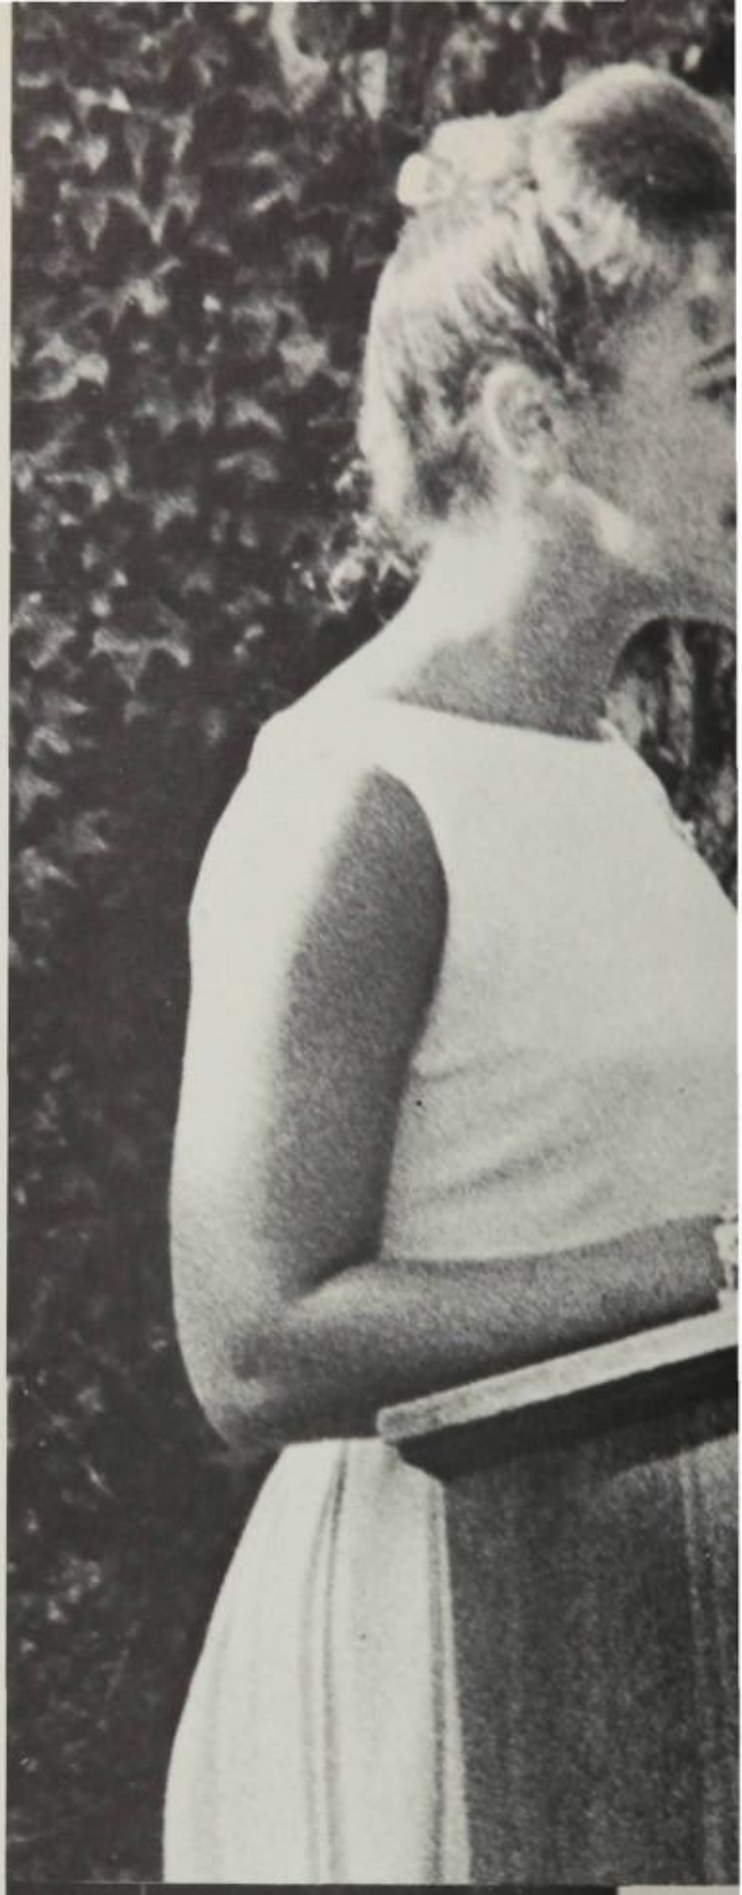
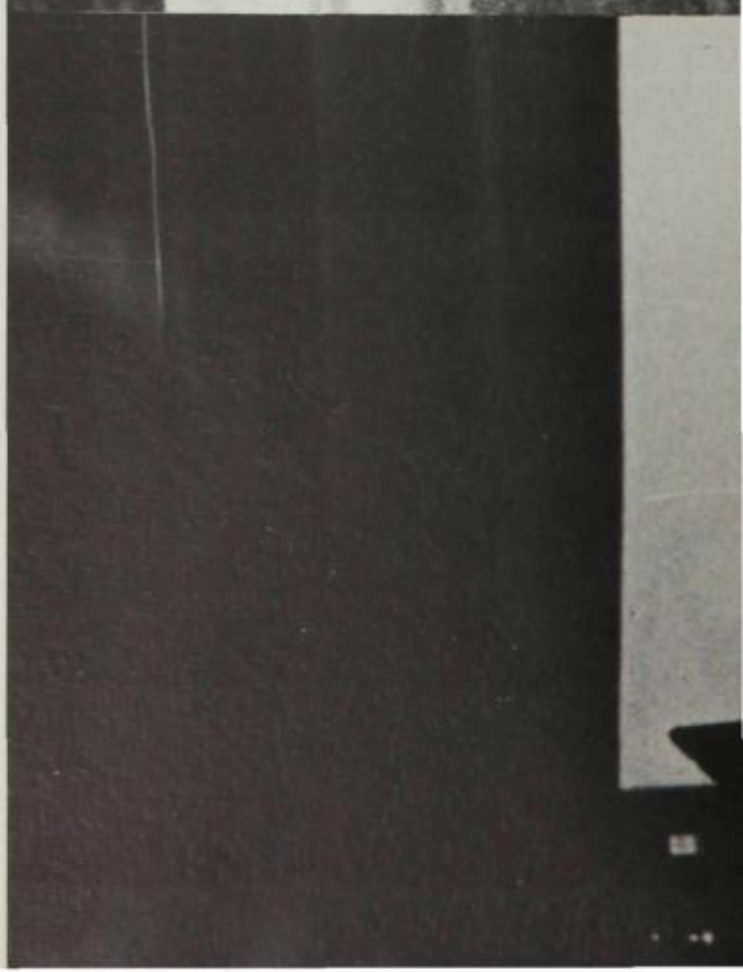
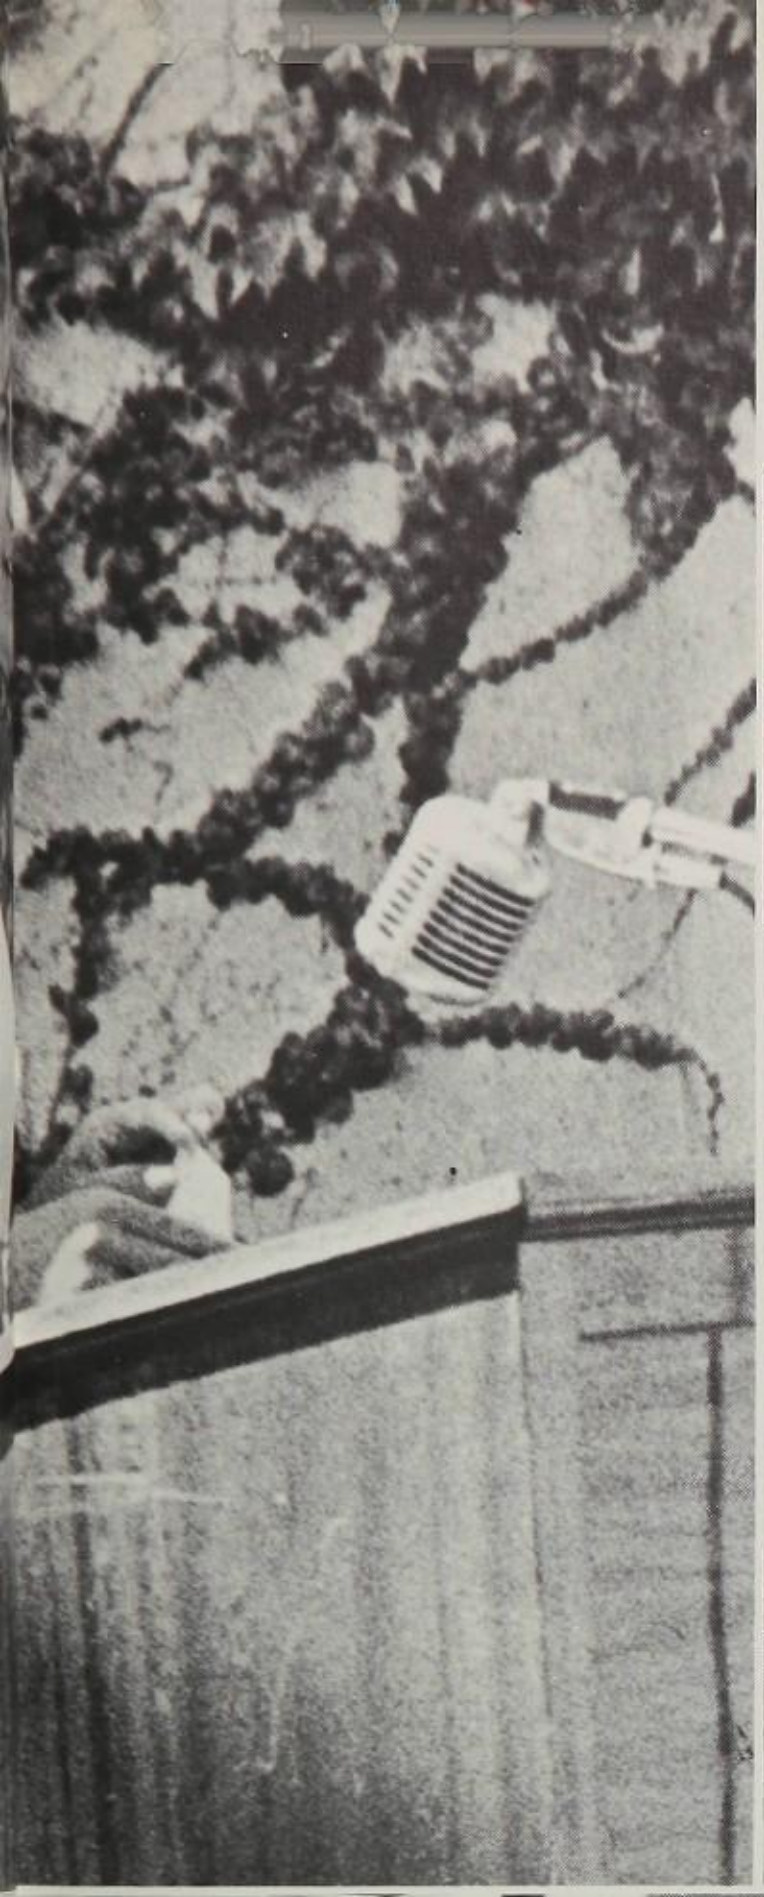
as sue wilson, paly a.f.s.'er to uruguay, described her summer experiences: "my stay in uruguay as an american field service student has helped me gain knowledge and understanding that cannot be learned from any book. i was fortunate to have had the opportunity to live with a foreign family, go to school, participate in social activities, and thus become a part of the life of my host community. it is my hope that i have learned to give in the measure i received. i feel i have become a more mature person because i am now more tolerant of other people's views and am more aware of happenings here. personal exchange of ideas amongst the youth of all nations can do much to promote understanding and peace. a.f.s. has my gratitude for giving me the opportunity, as their motto states, to "walk together and talk together with other peoples of the earth."

later in the year we heard from don tyson when he returned from his a.f.s. sojourn in argentina: "i learned many things in argentina; 1964 was probably the year in which i changed most. i think the a.f.s. scholarship has been responsible for broadening my mental (as well as physical) horizons, in a way that would be impossible through reading or pictures. as i am sure any a.f.s.'er can confirm, living in another country involves you in another society as no other way can duplicate. it takes you out of your routine and forces you to live as another society lives; it actually takes a part of you and makes you a part of another society, so that you will always carry the impact of what you have gained. i think that if there is one thing more important that i learned in argentina in 1964, it was that a person must be accepted for what he is, not for his nationality or race or religion. everyone is a human being first, and a citizen of a country or a member of a race second.







for years paly has been active in the american field service program, keeping up a steady stream of exchange students. afs offers to outstanding students the chance to spend a school year or a summer with a family in almost any country in the world.

a high scholastic standing, two years of language and united states citizenship are the basic requirements. four finalists are chosen each year from paly. their names are sent to new york headquarters where the applicants are matched with foreign families. because of the scarcity of families who can take students usually only two of the four paly finalists are actually sent abroad. paly also hosts foreign afs students. this year mr. kishor anant chaukar from hubli, mysore state in india lived with the mark braunstein family; and miss ombretta (betty) guimelli from sondrio, italy lived with the marjorie oglesby family.

suzanne kohler is switzerland's good-will emissary to paly via the international christian youth exchange. the purpose of this program is concerned with international understanding and friendship. suzanne is staying with the beverley balcomb family.

the international friendship club promotes good relations between foreign students and paly students by sponsoring debates, hootenanneys and dances. this year interested students were enlightened by a debate involving joan baez and ira sandperl on the united states foreign policy as highlighted in viet nam.

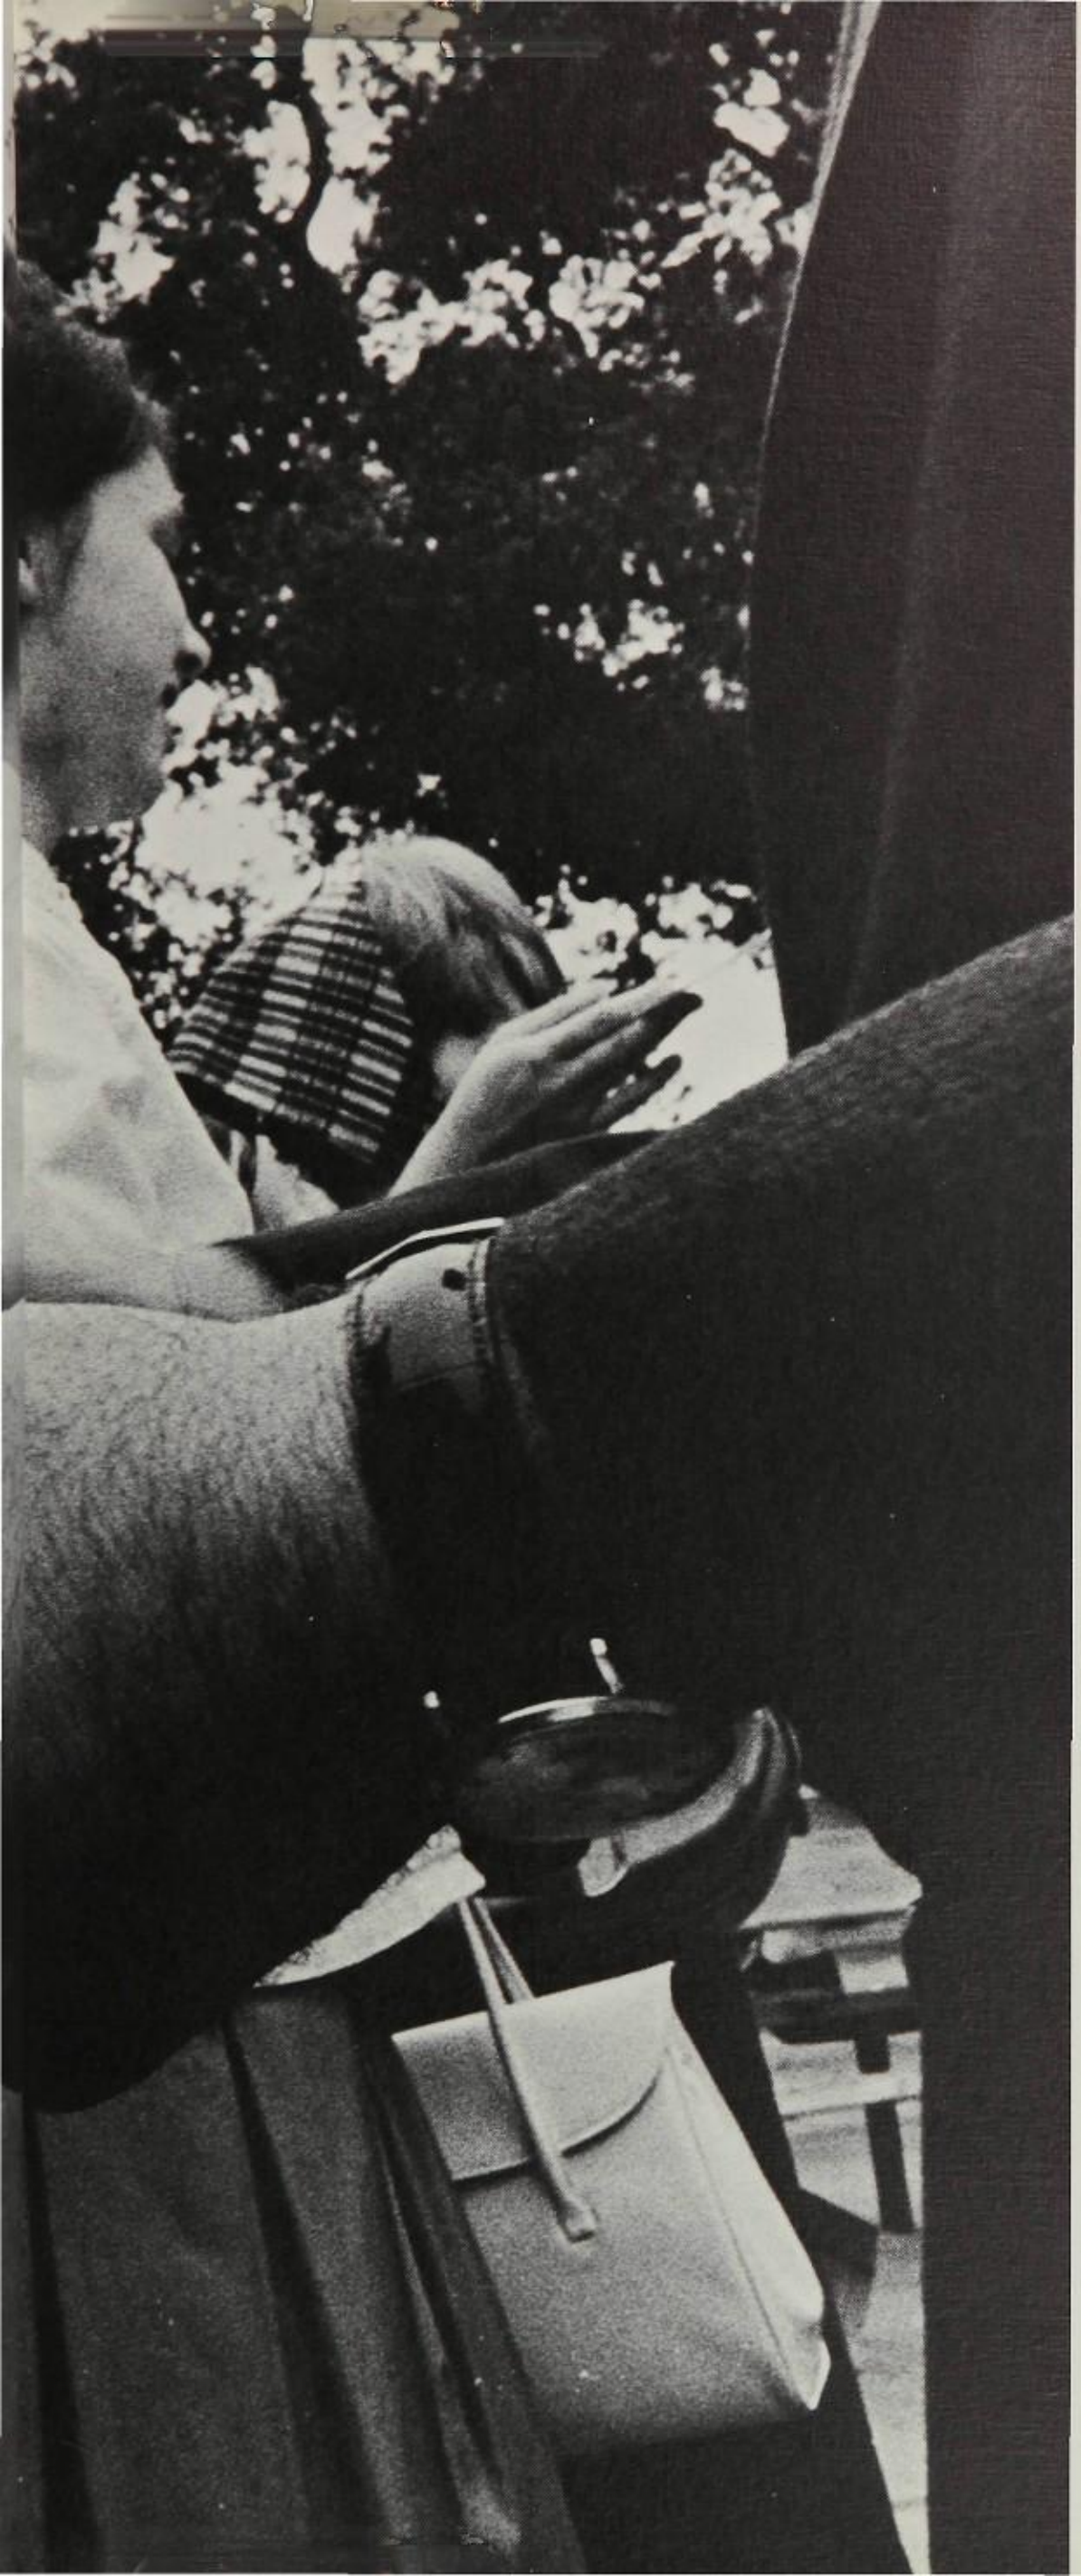
the drive and determination of the 1964 team perhaps manifested itself most clearly at the traditionally rivalrous paly-cubberley game, played on october 16th. cubberley was the heavy pre-game favorite. hal burchard's 78 yard touchdown run on an intercepted pass showed the cougers the battle would not be easily won. throughout the game both teams fought hard, battling to a 13-13 tie. this deadlock was due in part to the collision of cubberley's high powered offense with paly's equally stubborn defense. although cubberley had more scoring opportunities and outgained the vikes in rushing and passing, the hard-tackling norse defenders halted three potential td drives and recovered four fumbles. the 1964 vikings proved their determination on the gridiron in the battle against the cougars.



in addition to the traditional pursuits followed by students of reading, writing, and arithmetic, we twice found ourselves involved in the brainwashing chaos wrought by ibm. the semi-annual walk-around afforded to those students yet unacquainted with it, a confusing challenge; while to those familiar with it, it offered a welcome alternative to the drudgery of 2nd and 3rd periods. from abbott through avilla to wright through zwierlein we handed in the pink cards. we then waited for the bell telling us to shuffle mechanically to our next classes to hand in the yellow cards.

one of the first schools with a functioning student government, paly is widely known for its capable leaders and efficient legislative bodies.

this year's election board, competently led by chairman chris glazier, insured that the constitution tests were administered properly and that the votes were counted with speed and accuracy. the board members were:

jo rowen
elliott kai-kee
dick walker cynthia graham
jerry miller
pat woodward

in the fall the sophomores elected all their officers and the upperclassmen elected their class and leg. council members. the participation of the students in choosing well-qualified candidates to represent them insures the strength of their student government.

the legislative council this year's leg council set a rapid pace of lawmaking, passing several measures which insured the smooth functioning of student government. under the vigorous leadership of president craig boyan and vice-president heine costello, the legislators turned out a super-abundance of vital legislation.

among the most important measures considered by the council were a newly revised constitution, a codified and simplified lawbook, and the perennial bermuda shorts bill. the lawmakers also reorganized the boys' league and brought the election laws up-to-date.

in addition to passing important legislation, the council worked in close cooperation with the student court to curb the power of the board of commissioners. when the board proposed that athletics without student body cards should not receive blocks, a court ruling enabled the legislators to reject this proposal by an overhelming majority.

although constantly threatened by student apathy, the hostility of the commissioners, and vitriolic attacks by the campanile, the leg council of 1965 emerged unscathed as a powerful instrument of student government. the lawmakers took constant inspiration in the words of the german philosopher immanuel kant, who said: "the 'whole people,' so-called, who carry their measures are really not all, but only a majority: so that the universal will is in contradiction with itself and with the principle of freedom."

as with the other class councils, the main objective of the junior class council was to raise money for class sponsored functions. this year the council worked hard to raise enough to pay for the spring prom. among other projects, members collected $60 by collecting pop bottles.

john bennion, president ruthe block, vice-president linda dairiki, secretary sue boyett
coulbourne cox
scott cutler
christina erickson ruthie goltzer
marcia griffiths connie mc coy

after becoming accustomed to their new surroundings, duties, and responsibilities, the sophomore class council began gathering suggestions for fund-raising projects. student participation was aided by the installment of a sophomore suggestion box in room 11. two main projects were launched with the hope of substantial profits. these were the selling of coffee and cake at night school, and selling shelves for student lockers.

delving beneath the surface we find paly's fall play heralding the return of true theatre with the presentation of that great grandaddy of all melodramas, east lynne. prof. joseph fenwick's peerless directing created a matchless masterpiece for the distinguished audience and an unforgettable experience for everyone connected with the play.

who can ever forget the personal appearance of miss marilyn brazeal in her inimitable performance as the most innocent heroine of all innocent heroines, lady isobel vane? or the debonair mr. philip brown's gallant performance as the courageous hero, archibald carlyle? or that despicable, sly, cunning mr. kenneth glazier, swirling his cape and twirling his mustache as the villainous villain, francis levison?

from lady isobel's first dramatic entrance, framed in the central double doors of the beautiful realist set created by the stage crew under the direction of prof. robert mayne and painted under the direction of prof. martin stoelzel; to archibald's timely purchase of east lynne, the vane's estate; to the lovely wedding of archibald and isobel, cheered by the audience but disliked by archibald's sister, cornelia (ably portrayed by miss collot guerard); to the villain's first entrance, soon after which he convinces isobel to leave her loving husband; to isobel's heartbreaking return to east lynne many years later only to discover that her little boy is dying; to isobel's own tragic death at the end, the play soared with exciting episode after exciting episode.

extra excitement came when nasty ol' cornelia called miss carole respini (the kitchen maid) an ungrateful minx, yet was wooed by mr. rick kavinovky (the balding but obliging john dill). and how mr. bill rule (poor, unfairly treated richard hare), accused of murder, and his sister (miss phylinda wallace) knowing of his innocence but not being able to prove it, have mrs. otway bethel (miss sally minard) give her startling eye witness description. and how about miss merry powers (haughty emma vane) refusing to let lady isobel come and live in her home, even though mr. steve schonborn (emma's husband) disagreed? and what about miss nina krilanovich (the faithful maid, joyce) carrying miss susan brown (the dying little willie) off stage while isobel mourns the imminent loss of her son?

even the intermission was entertaining, thanks to prof. robert keonig and the incomparable music of the palo alto normal school band. under the able leadership of stage manager miss susan fisher, assisted by miss marita raubitschek, and the industrious aid of all the numerous committees, the debut production in the majestic theatre was considered by all to be the great moral lesson of the age, and a most enjoyable experience as well.

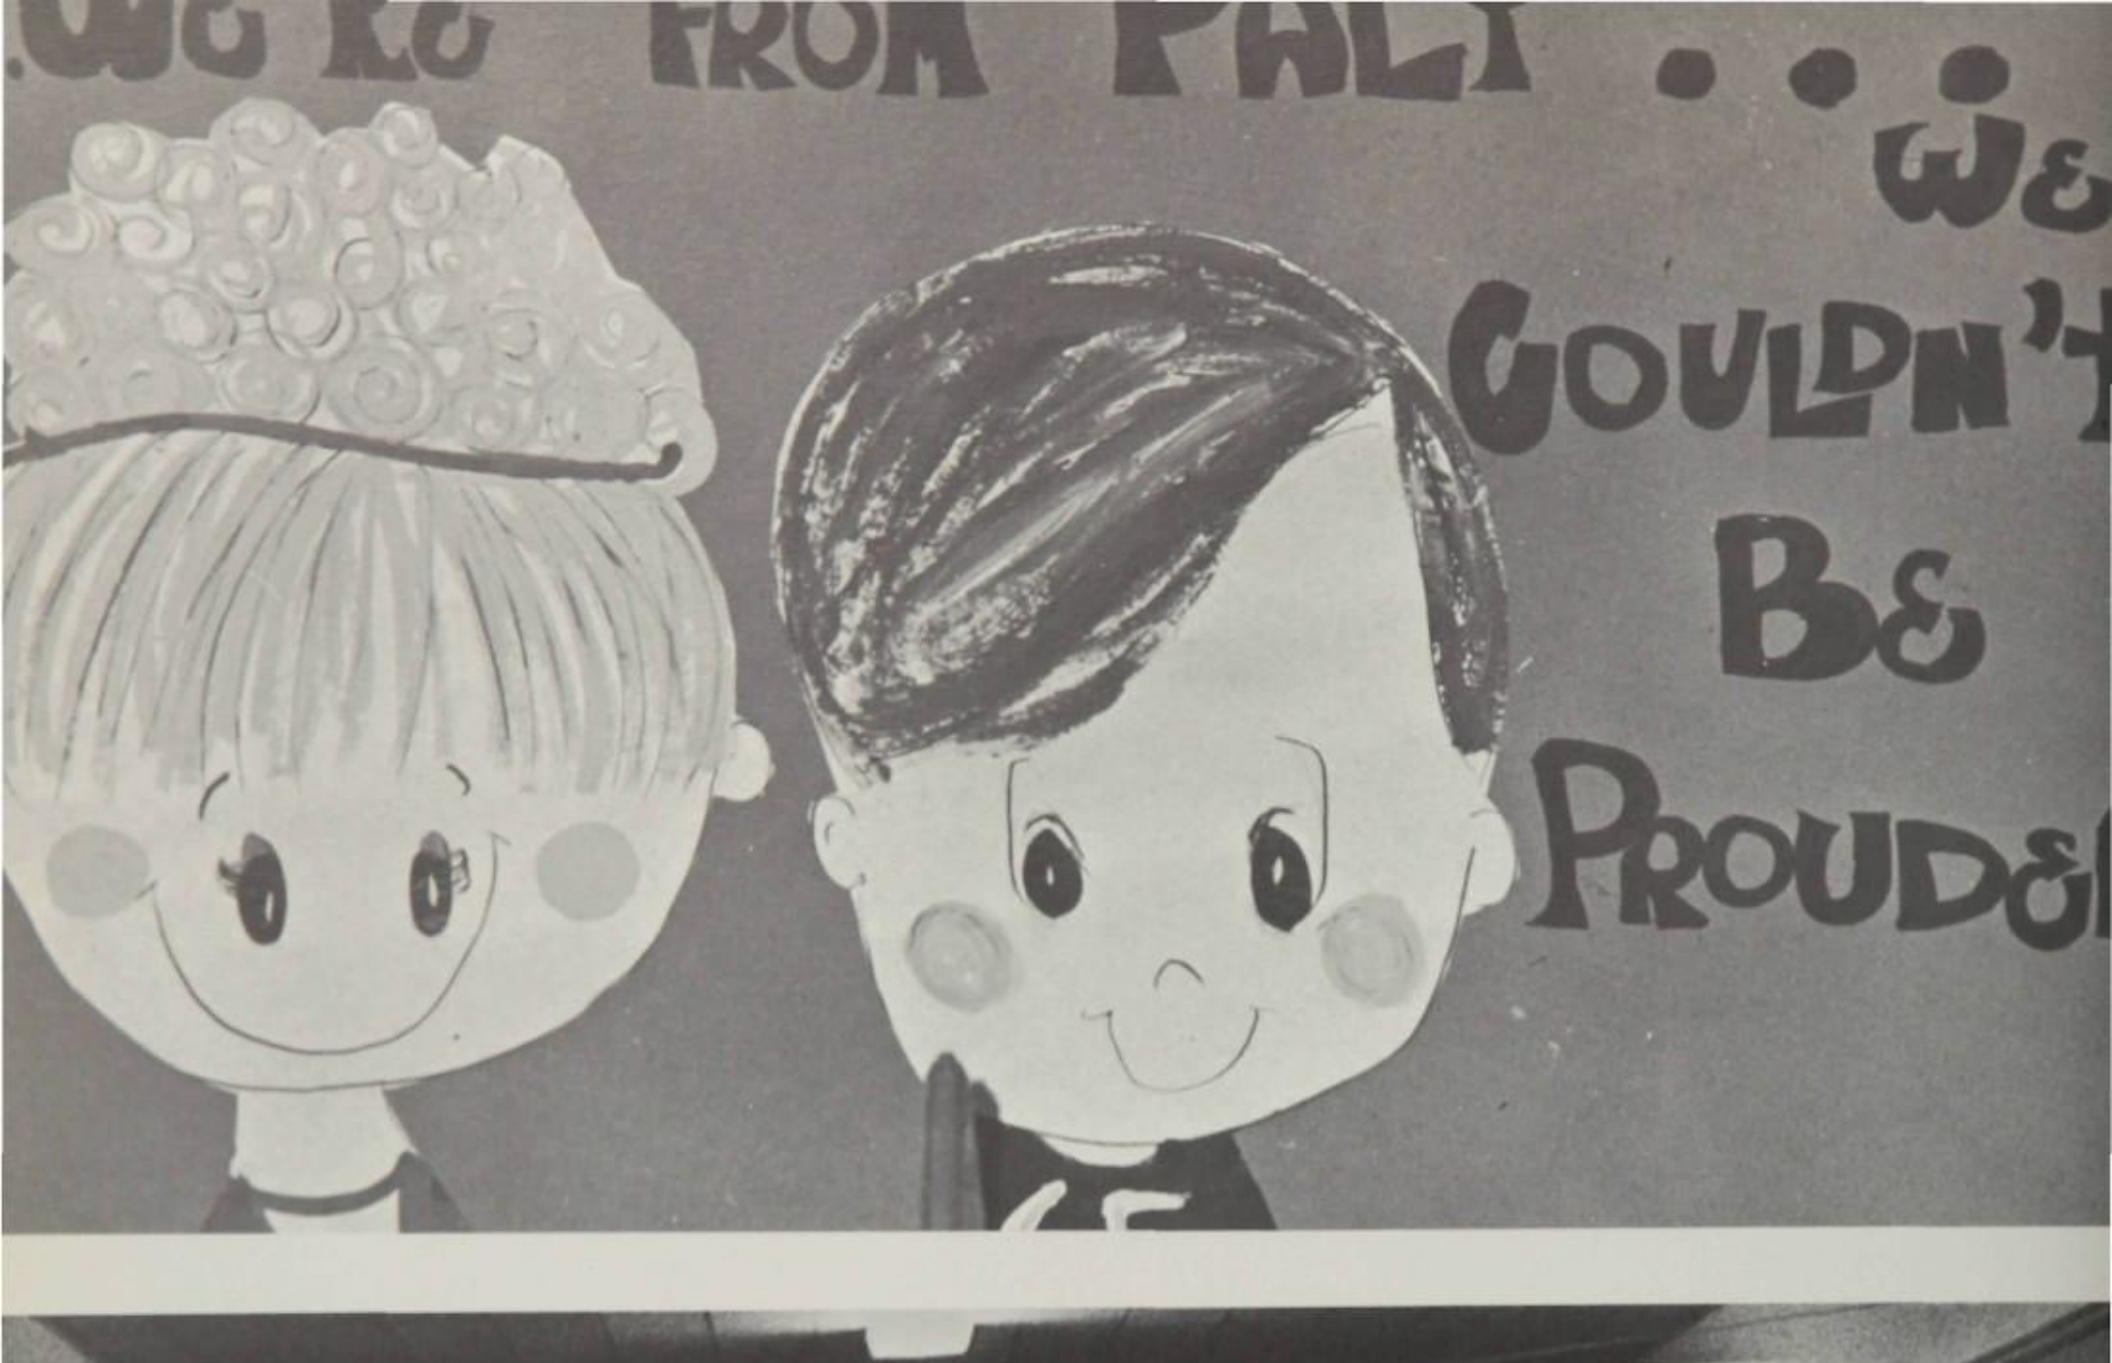
paly's doors opened in 1897. during its entire sixty-eight year history our school has consistently maintained an excellent reputation for school spirit. many traditions have accompanied the growth of spirit at paly, the paramount example being the sequoia football game . . .



FROM PALS . . . WE

on thanksgiving day the traditional "little-big game" clash is played at stanford stadium. each year much work goes into making this game memorable. the intensity of preparation increases with each passing year. said mr. thornton, paly teacher for 20 years, "i have never seen so much spirit for a sequoia game as i saw this year." he was, of course, referring to the 1964 tilt between the vikings and the cherokees. susu granieri and her industrious rally committee truly outdid themselves in preparation for this year's traditional clash . . .

previous games of the season had been characterized by creative posters, ribbons, buttons, and programs, not to mention the array of colored balloons given out by spirited senior girls. frequent noon rallies were followed by masses of palyites stomping and chanting "go paly" through the halls. but for the sequoia game, even more spirit swept the student body. during early october plans for the big game began. seniors molly ferry and karen lusk assisted rally commissioner su-su in planning this year's card stunts. a "spirit week" was planned by the rally committee. sophomore members sue boyette, kathy thompson, and robin anderson decided that their class would carry green balloons during the week preceding the sequoia game. the junior class, headed by members jenny thierman, joey ohliger, and sue jensen would carry green carnations. senior members annie kingman, jeannie finlayson, and lynn jarvis, along with the pom-pon girls and alternates vickie tiernan and mary watchtel and cheerleaders enthusiastically made paper lollipops saying "lick sequoia." the saturday before the thanksgiving day game found many palyites at school determined to have the best decorated halls yet. monday morning the student body saw the results. posters were everywhere, lining the halls, doors, and windows; overhead was a canopy of green and white crepe paper and balloons.

on wednesday, the day before the game, the big-game rally was held. the pom-pon girls — bonnie graham, sandy briggs, hilary hinckley, suzy squellati, and janet weinstein — opened the rally with their peppy routines; and the cheerleaders, sue bailey (the first girl cheerleader to do a handspring), marguerite macdonnell, hap micklus, and adi pollack, boosted the spirit with cheers . . . highlight of this pre-game rally was the presentation of the 1964 football queens; senior queen carol wheeler and her court — junior princess kris miller and sophomore princess carol charleton. coach fairchild then introduced the team and talked optimistically about the forthcoming game. a clever skit by the senior girls helped to make the rally complete. wednesday night the entire football team and the coaches were given a spaghetti feed at our head cheerleader's house by the senior girls. this multitude of activities led up to victory on thanksgiving day 1964, when our vikings whipped the cherokees 12-0.

the team was called many things before the sequoia traditional, but it is doubtful anyone ever called them quitters. they were behind or tied in all but three of their contests at halftime, but each time returned to play a harder and more inspired game the second half. indeed, the entire 1964 squad merits recognition for an admirable season.

STANFORD

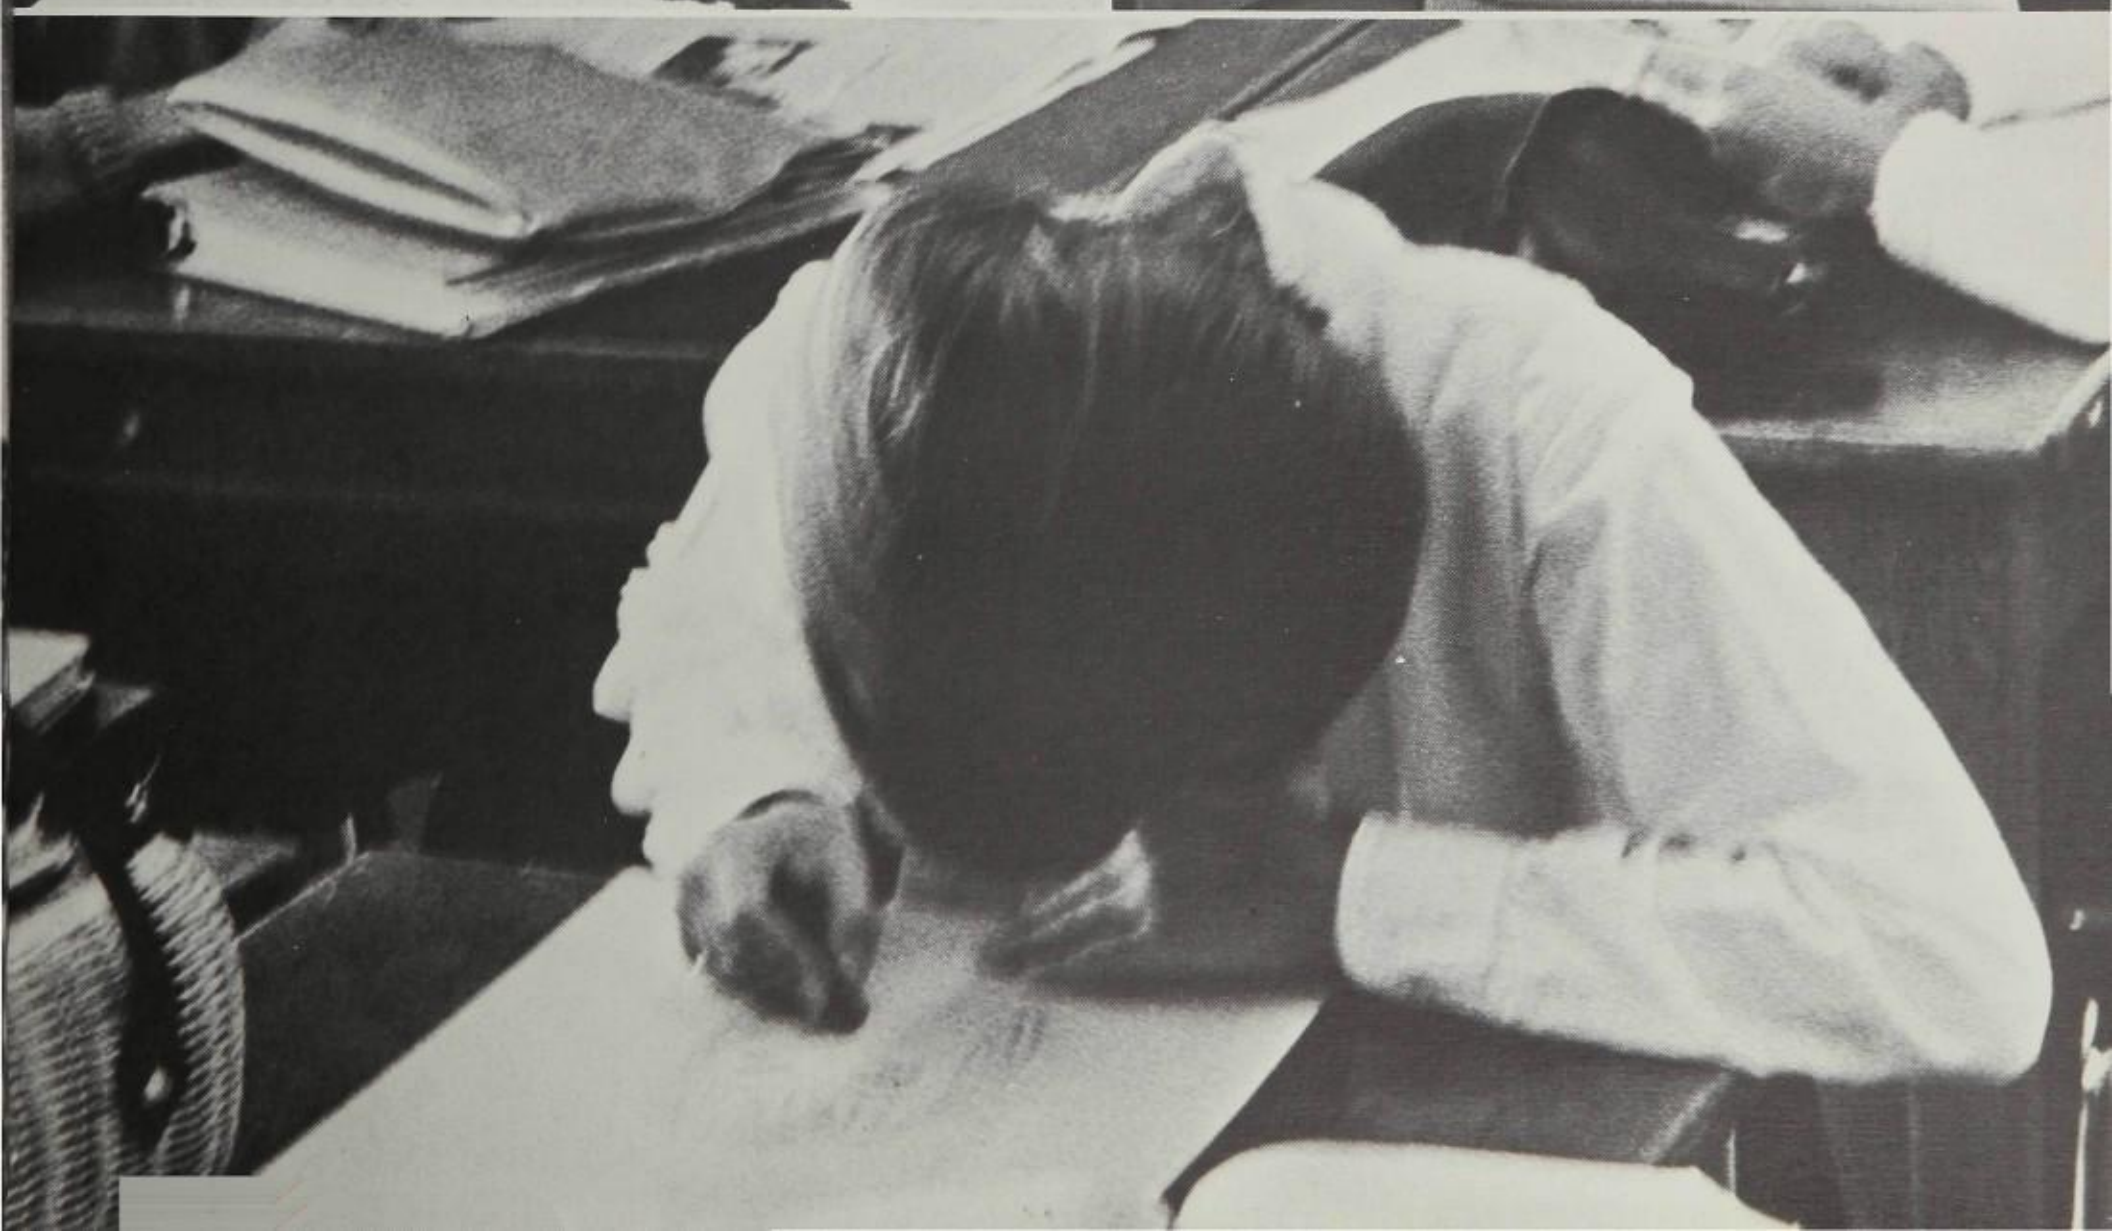
before 10,000 screaming fans on thanksgiving day, the vikes played a game of which all paly fans could be proud. fairchild's troops went into the game tied with cubberley for fifth place in the s.p.a.l, whereas sequoia could have shared the championship with m-a had they won. in the end, paly romped over sequoia 12-0.

it was apparent, after only three minutes of play, which team desired to win the most. on the first play of the game ray tollner picked off an errant sequoia toss and returned it to the cherokee eighteen yard line. end eric van patten carried to the three yard line, and from this position chris clark—namd the game's outstanding player—bulled his way into the end zone for paly's first six points.

from there on it was paly's defense against the cherk's offense. the vikes held sequoia to a minus six yards rushing and only forty-eight total yards for the afternoon. coach fairchild commented that the win "belonged to the defense."

. . . the names we know so well, upon closer observation yield new and exciting facets of interest. this is true not only in the academic fields, but also in the everyday antics of students seeking escape from the rigorous study schedule. thus we see that a poly student not only represents the classes and activities organized by the school, but also the silly little actions that make people human, pop!



with a very erratic season, paly's cross country team had its ups and downs this year — ups when they finished first in their heat in a center meet, taking 2nd, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th places individually; downs, such as the spal finals where they took fifth place. for the most part, they had a successful season.

after summer training, the team embarked on a grueling program of long-distance running which taxed the strongest members. under their third coach in as many years, mr. ross presley, they averaged sixty miles a week. as the season progressed, the coach mixed in speed training. this program produced a strong team with eleven sub eleven minute 2-milers.

although the leadership of co-captains jim hewlett and larry white, and sophomore star tom huntsberger was inspiring, the competition was tough, as the three leading national teams came from this area. with harder training and some help from the jordan track team, next year's team could take the league.

poly's varsity water polo team, whipped into top condition by veteran coach paul bataille, captured the league title for the first time since 195[illegible] with a perfect 6-0 record. high point of the season came when the green death downed arch-rival menlo atherton a 7-6 defeat, thus ending its long string of league wins. george har[illegible] ding for the losers. the powerful vikes destroyed their remaining foes by large m[illegible] the [illegible] tournament, poly once more came from behind to down m-a 7-5, good for 3rd place, thus capping a very successful season. pete siebert, larry guy, and robin waples were named to the all-spal 1st team, and siebert also nabbed "player of the year" and 2nd team all-american honors. other starters were 2nd team all spalers jim stern and nick carter, honorable mention john waverly, and "dangerous dave" guy, whose howitzer arm struck fear in the hearts of opp[illegible] goalies. pete "walrus" kelley, douggies eisele, "flirt" lee, "kilometer" [illegible], "otis" thoits, "polvo" virelle and "spinelli" reinhardt also starred. as larry guy, stan carter, thoits, and reinhardt are all juniors, "little napoleon" bataille is gazing into his diamond studded crystal ball and predicting a world champ[illegible] next year. the sophomores, playing against more experienced squads, compiled a 2-4 record, good for fourth in the league, however, in the spal playoffs, the sophs moved up to third as they put the kibosh on san carlos, 12-4. joe welsh, 1st team all spal, greg waples, 2nd team, and rick bennion, honorable mention, sparked the squad. mike allen, tom waggoner, don beumer, and rick wooker rounded out the starting sextuple, while marty vetter, jim wilhelm, frank door, pig-pen virelle, and tex alexander all saw considerable action.

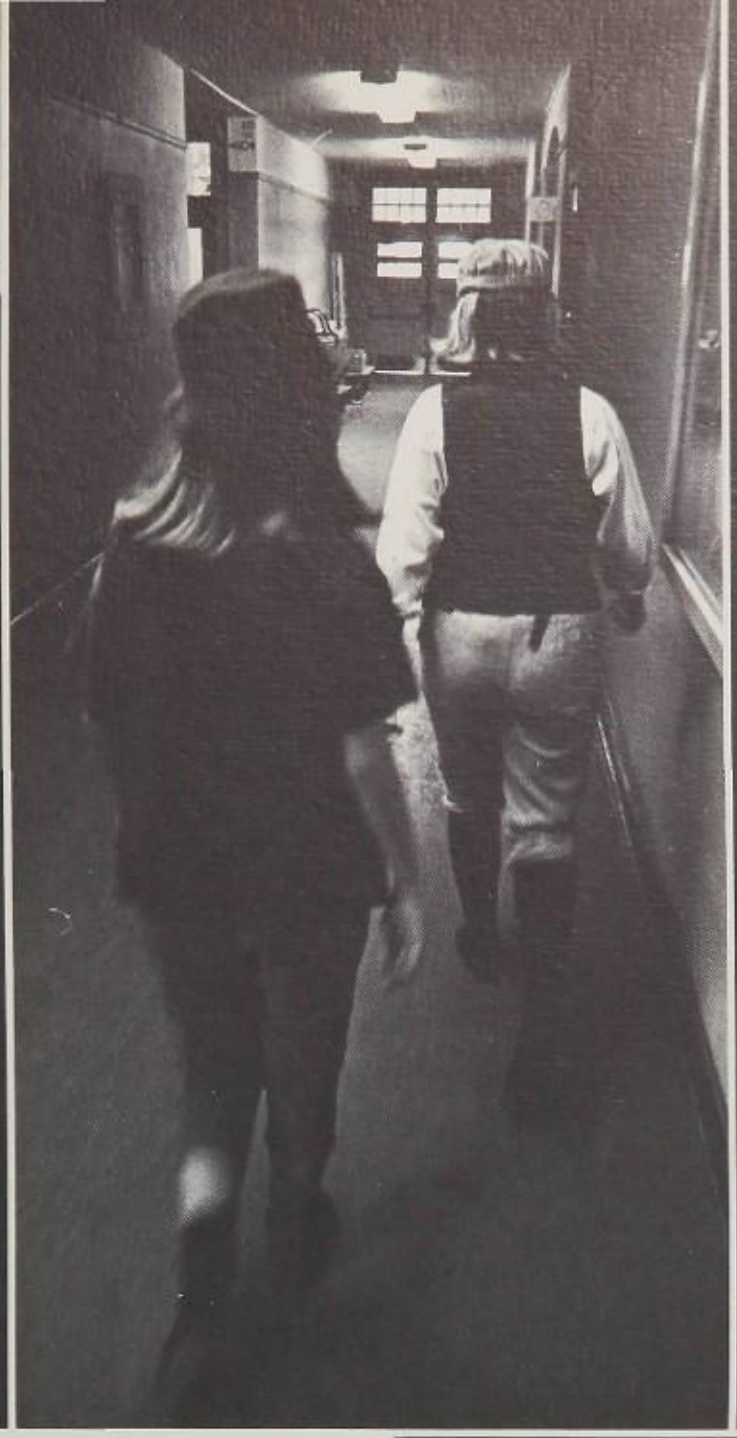
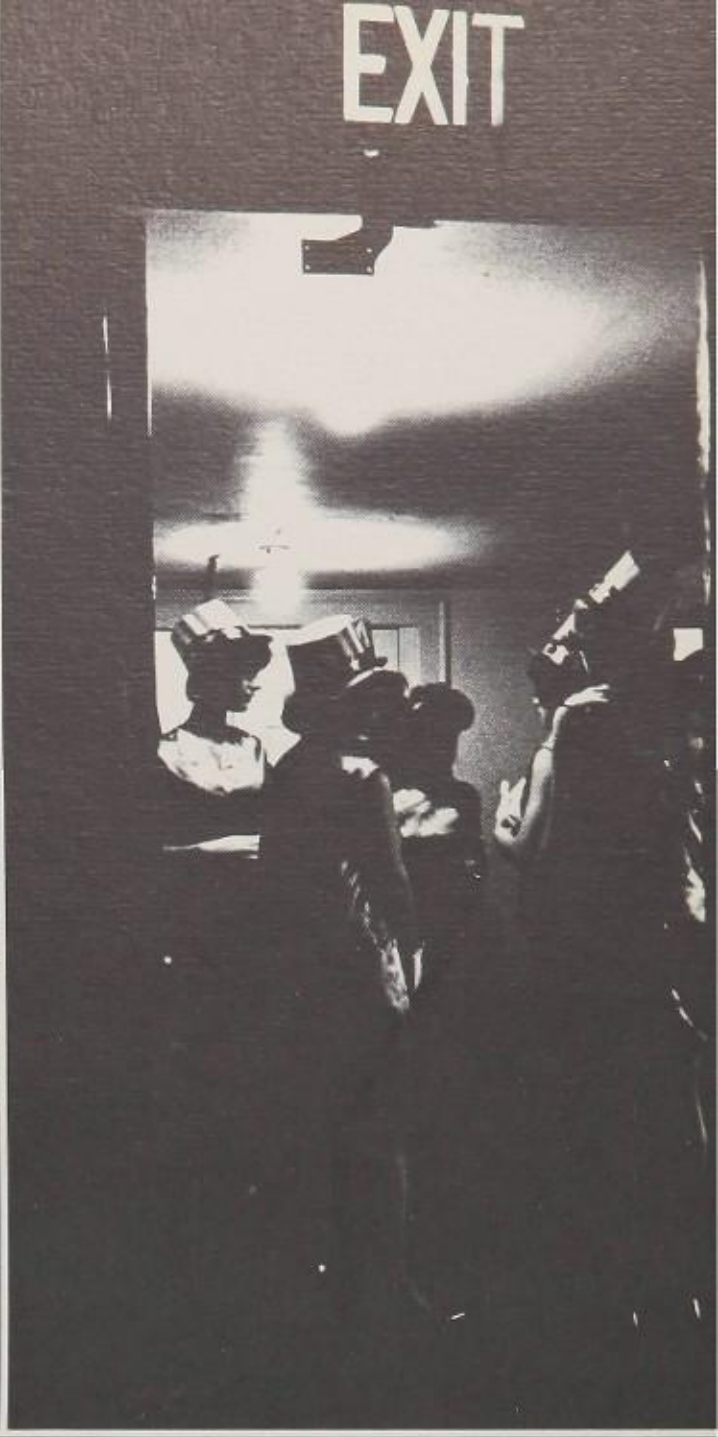
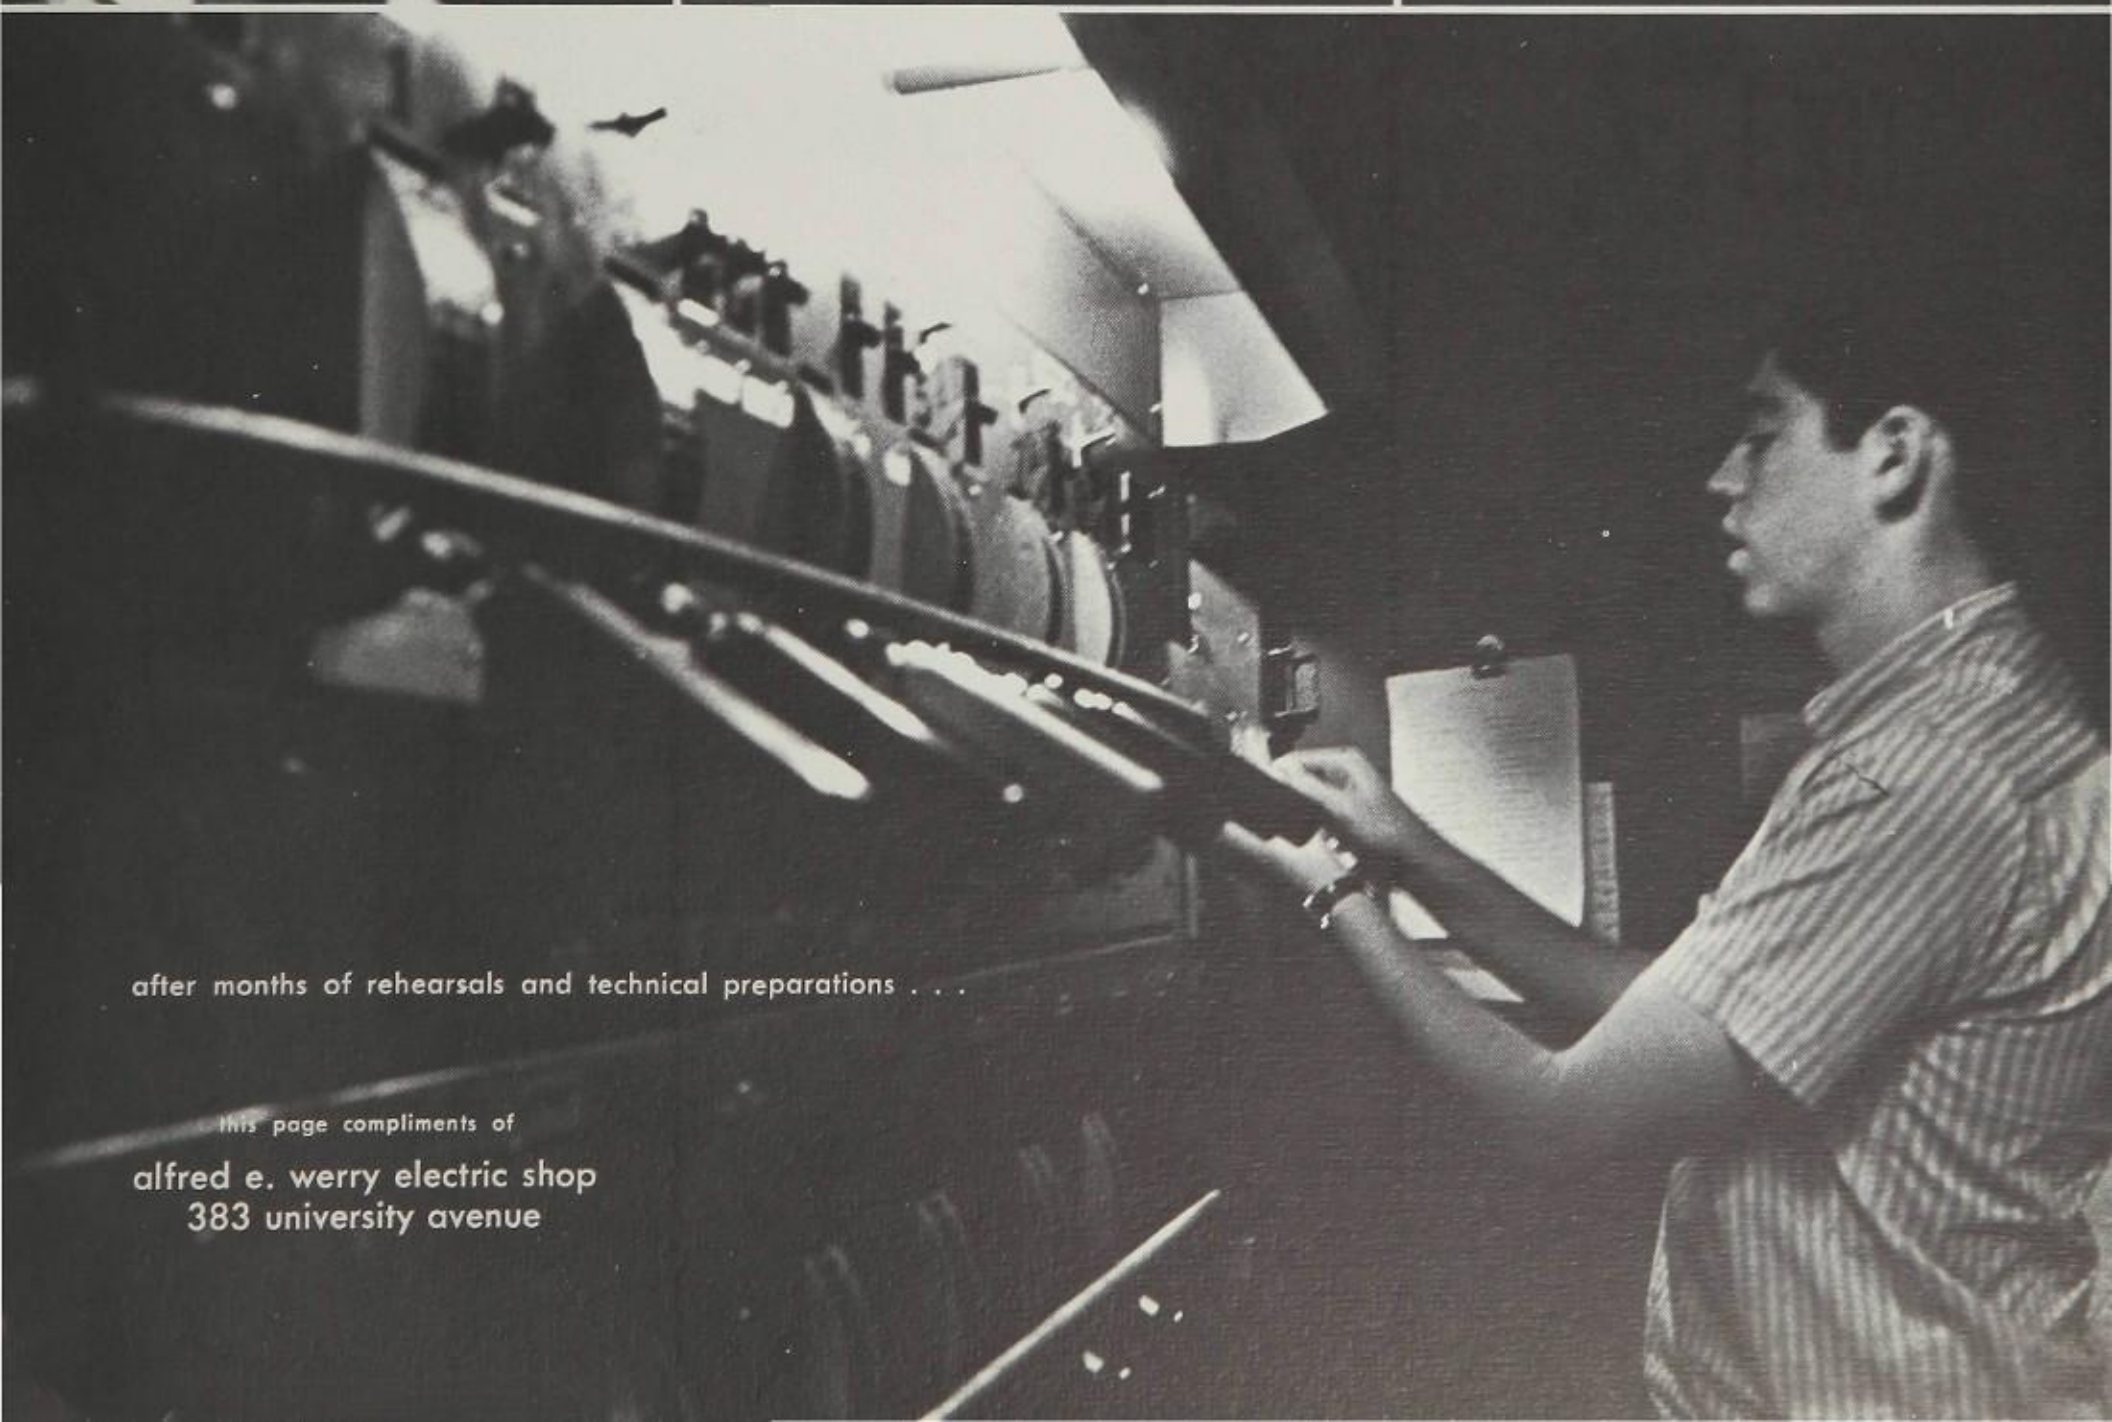
the 1964-65 girls' league cabinet was headed by faculty advisor, mrs. frances stanga; this year's commissioner of girls' activities, judy maxwell; and her appointed senior advisor, nancy hochberg. encompassing three members from each class, the cabinet this year received recognition for a most successful back to school tea and fashion show for incoming sophomores, the annual jinx, and a delightful mothers' tea in the spring. senior members on girls' league were gina de grassi, cynthia graham, and sue haslacher. the junior class was represented by marsha porter, sue thompson, and janet lampe. the sophomore representatives were cathy mcneill, keven arnold, and pat roberts.

much of the credit for this year's successful jinx deserves to be shared among mr. robert mayne, faculty director, and his two student directors, judy maxwell and nancy hochberg. working many hours together, this committee established a goal for the jinx which was relayed to all prospective jinx acts at a special meeting in september. it was decided that this year's jinx was to be a "return to femininity," and with this in mind, the committee decided upon the general theme of "beauty around the world."







after months of rehearsals and technical preparations . . .

. . . the 1965 jinx made its debut on december 11 and 12. the theme was carried throughout nineteen acts, and nine m.c.'s assisted in re-living the dream-land story of a small-town girl who had entered many beauty contests and was now competing for the coveted title of miss international . . .

this page compliments of

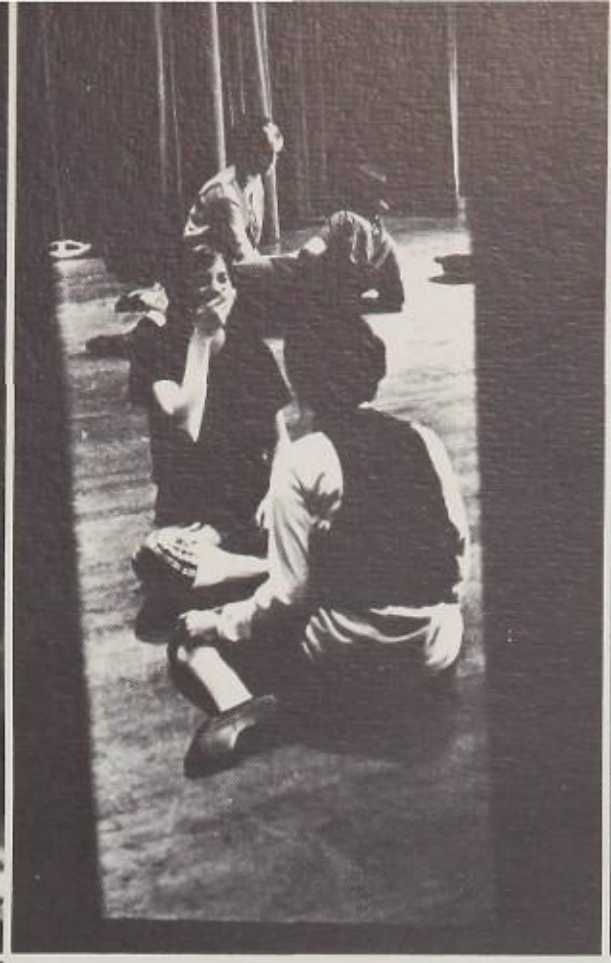
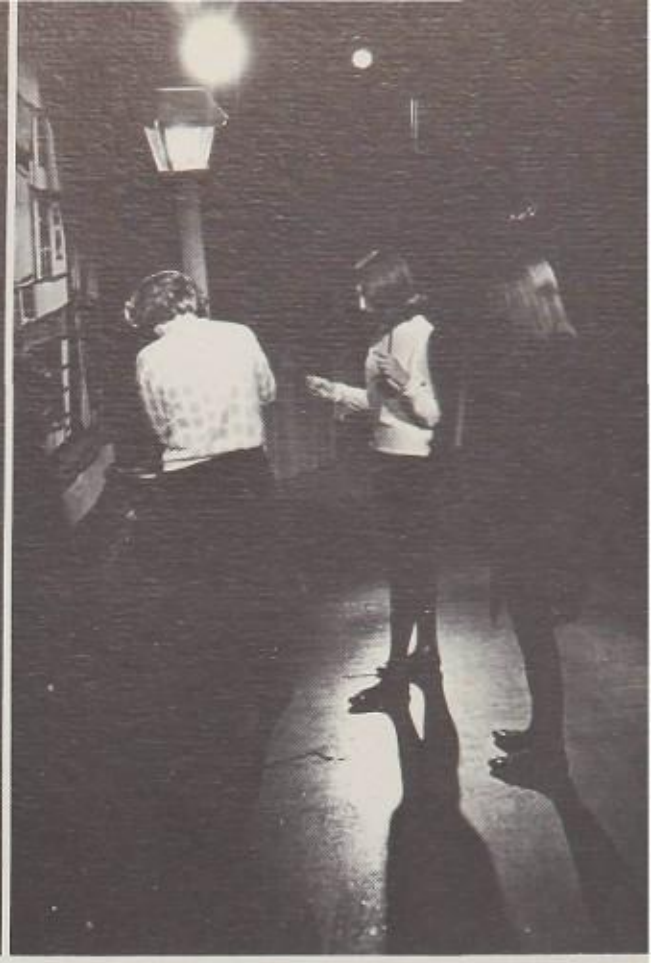
. . . sue bailey, the pageant's m.c.; kitty barkley, the television interviewer; bonnie graham, the pageant director; and michele grumet, the indispensable maid, kept things moving along. those bautiful judges nancy comstock, betsy anderson, and karla davis added their own charm and talent. when the final scene opened and the contestants entered for their final bow, miss international 1964, collot guerard, crowned miss international 1965, mollie ferry . . .





. . . perhaps one of the most lovely acts was carol wheeler's beautiful singing, and terrie tanner was just as shining and beautiful. music played a big part in this jinx production with a folk-singing group and two piano solos. as usual, dancing of many kinds added to the fascination of the nights. the wild and wonderful can-can by the junior girls was challenged by the precision chorus line of the senior women. modern dance showed the grace of janie paul and sally minard. an interpretive dance, allowing expression of feelings, was employed by a sophomore group. also, a surfing interpretation by sandi benbrook demonstrated the power of suggestion that may be found in the dance art. "shot in the dark" was an excellent presentation of dancing to a modern jazz background. one of the most captivating and beautiful dance numbers was judi's hula; she showed the true beauty and wonder of the ancient movements of the hula.

some of the more unusual numbers included a hilarious pantomime and a thurber fairy tale, "the unicorn in the garden."

singing and dancing groups completed the warmth of the show. oliver and his friends was done so well by the sophomores that it seemed as if the girls were actually acting out the play.

in the end, there could be no greater reward to any beholder than the sight of almost one-hundred smiling girls. jinx '65 was truly a wonderful and exciting experience for all those participating or watching.

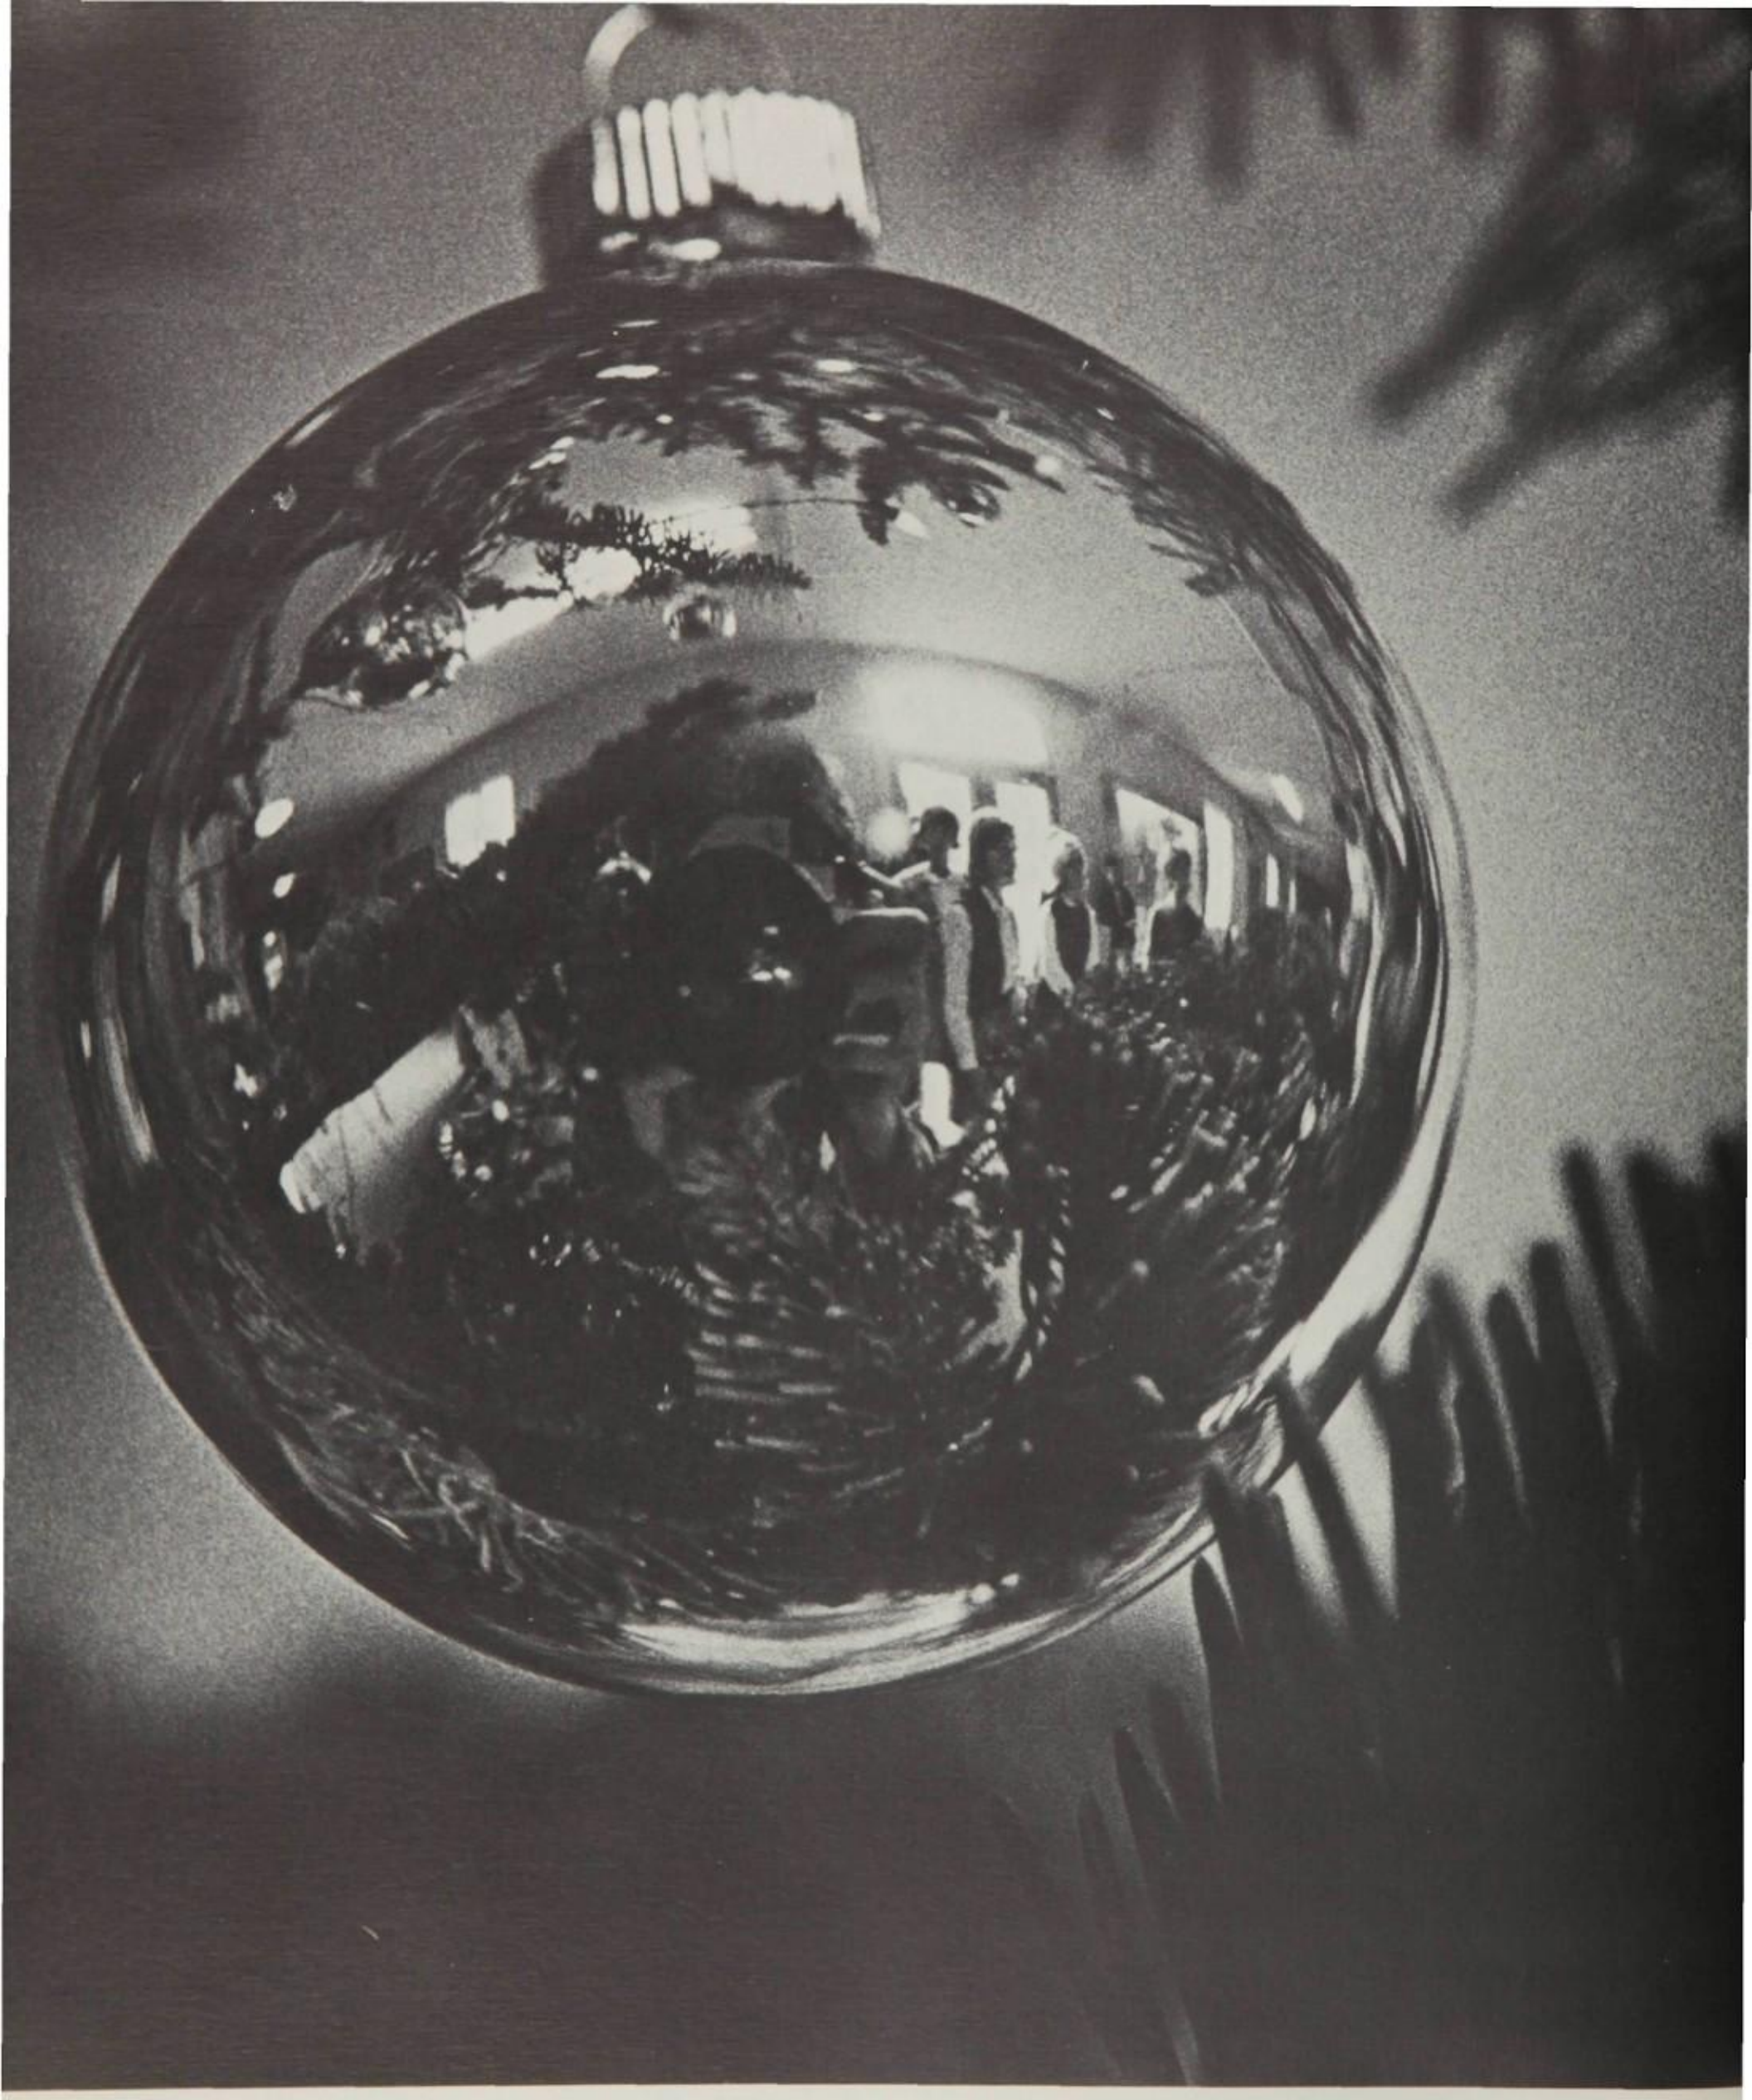
in conjunction with the festive atmosphere, students from second period classes decked their doors in holiday attire in the annual christmas door decoration competition . . .

. . . first prize went to mr. bross's government class. they picked an appropos subject: "who's behind the political reins?" miss turner's far east class, as usual, had a most creative door.



"christmas on broadway," the 1964 christmas formal, debuted on saturday, december 19, in the george stewart gymnasium. a traditionally girl-ask-boy affair, the dance was held from 9:00-12:00 p.m. the art ched combo, a modern sophisticated dance band, provided entertainment for this year's formal sponsored by the publications department. sue scott was in charge of the decorations, dexter johnson supervised the refreshment committee, and sandi benbrook headed the chaperones committee.

the campanile, beset by financial problems, came out somewhat irregularly throughout the year. led by editor mark weinberger, the "camp" served as the reflection of student opinion and tried to give palo alto students a newspaper that both informed and stimulated thought.

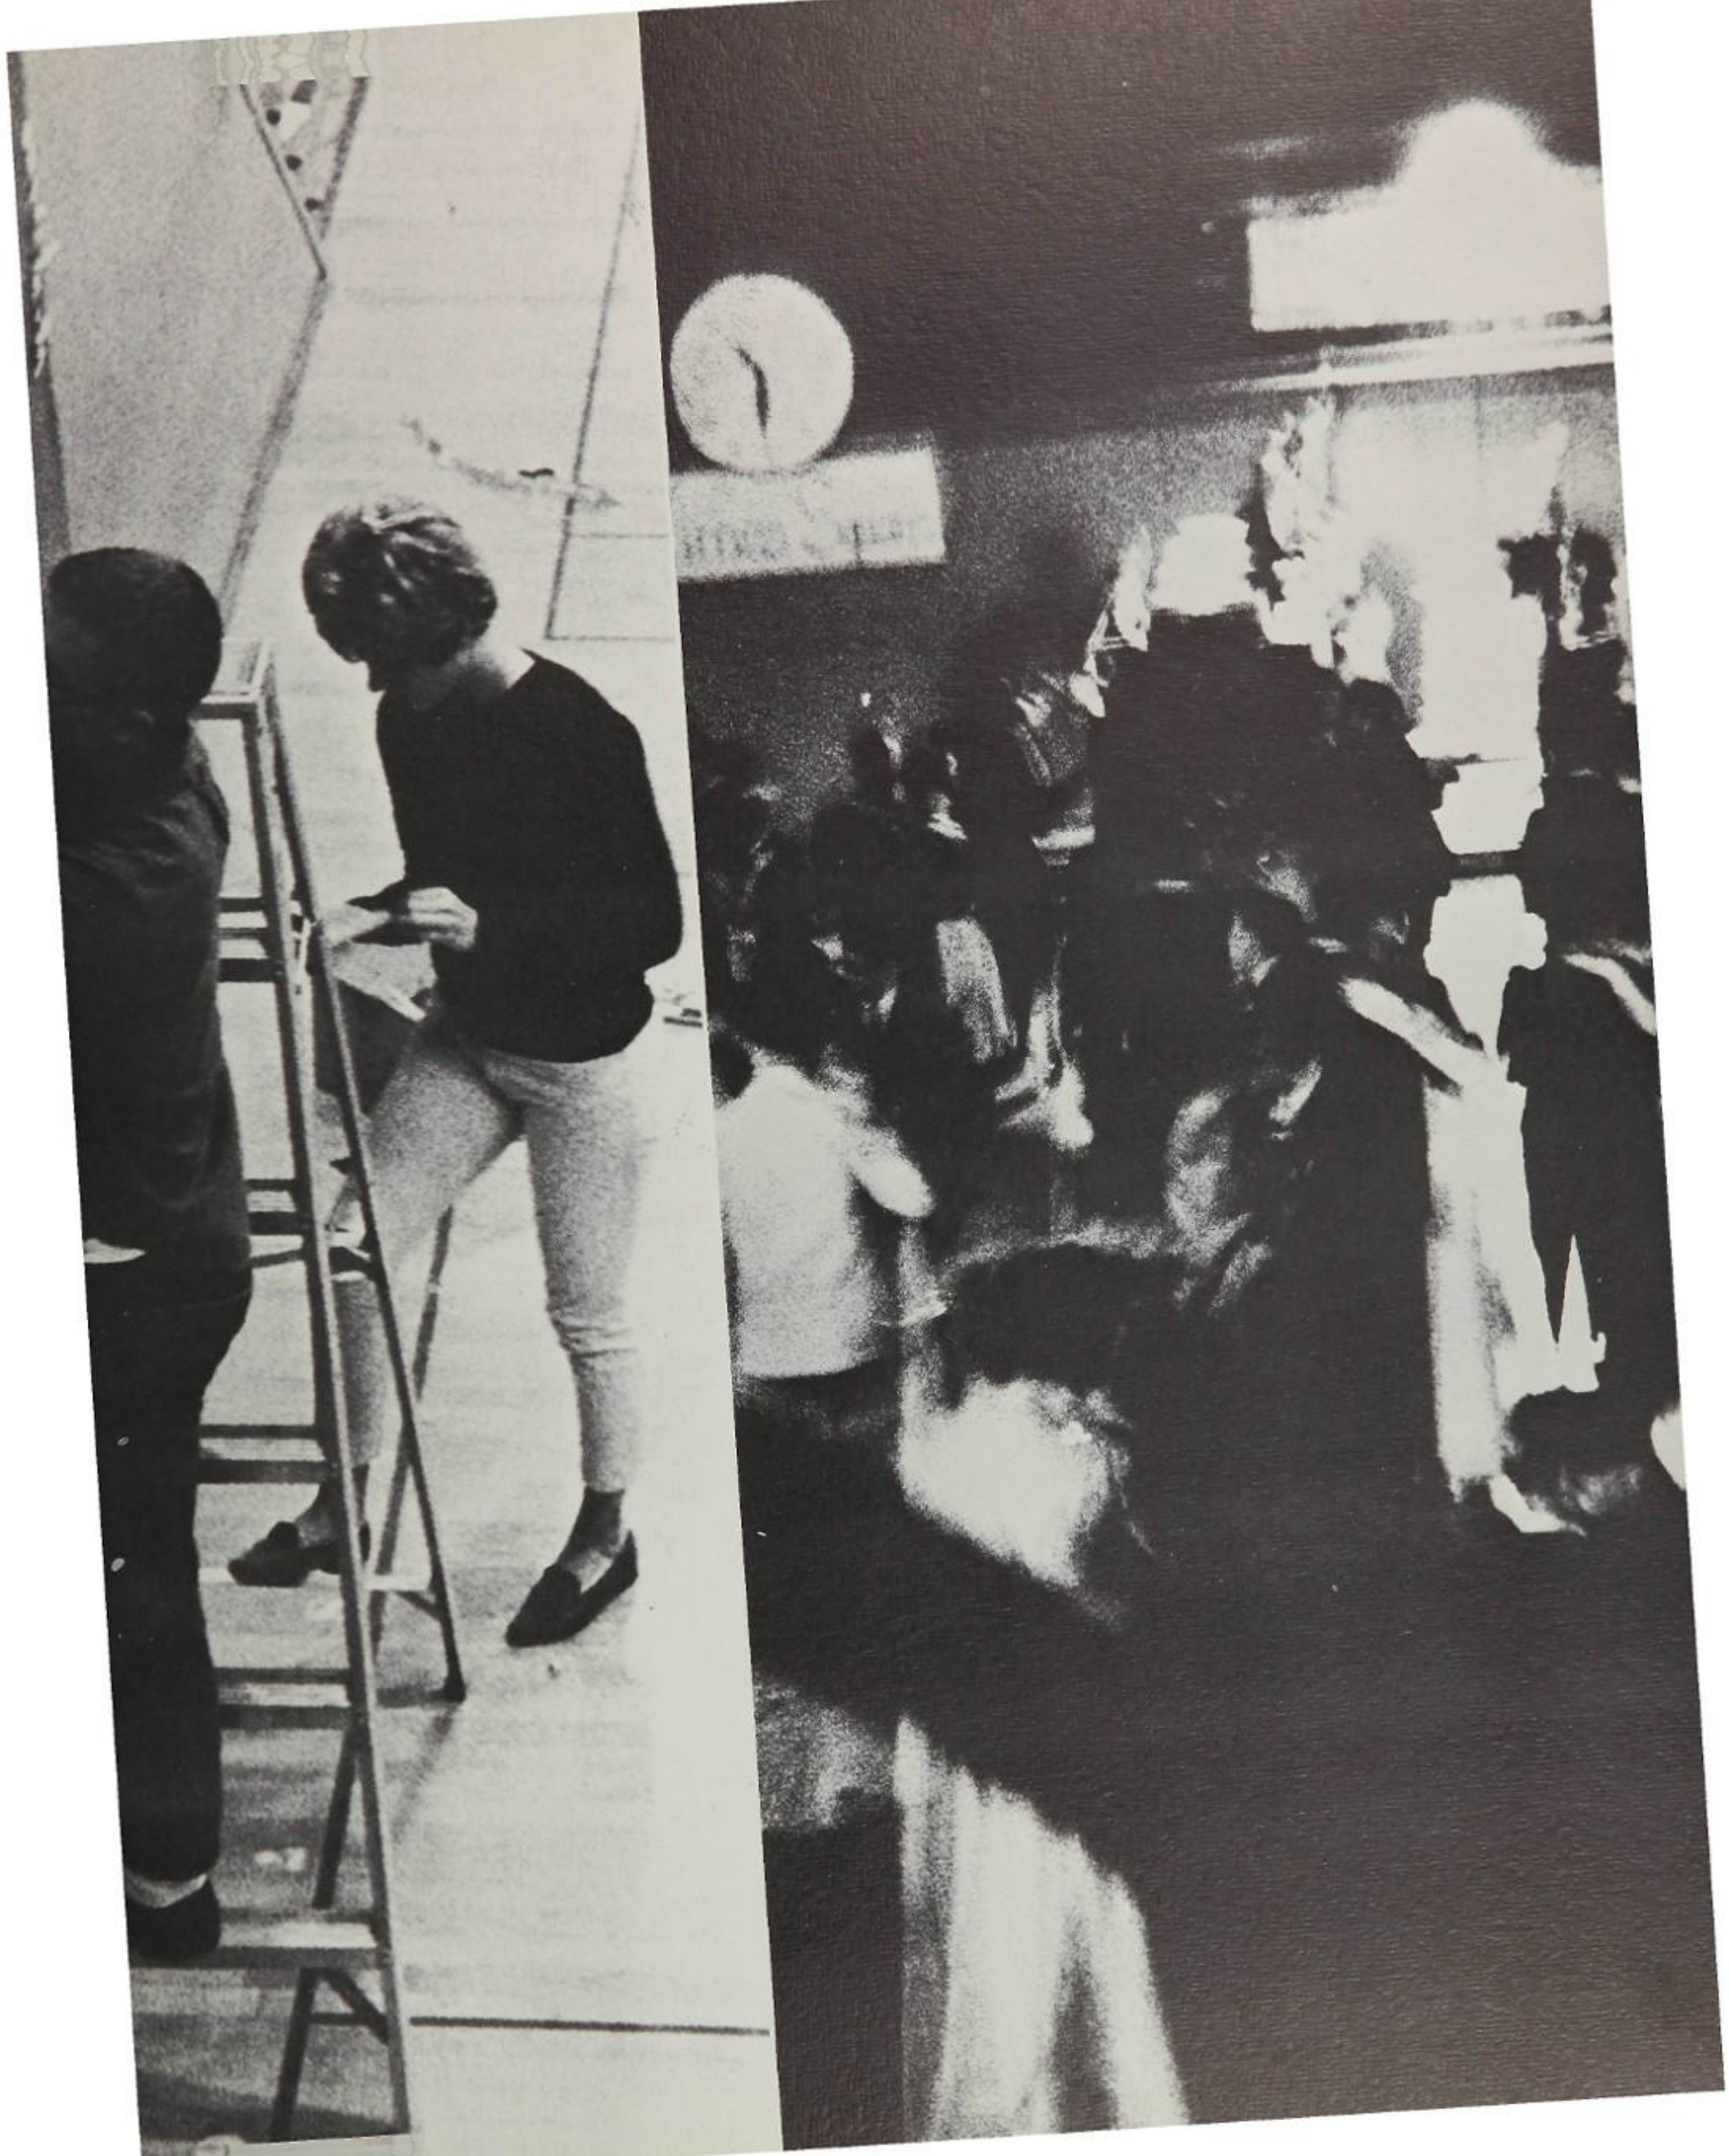
special thanksgiving day, april fool, and election issues highlighted the campanile's year. editorial opinion was accentuated by the investigation of student problems rather than leading useless and unpopular crusades.

mark was ably assisted by managing editors john mc clintock and jim rolin, feature editor sue scott, and sports writers steve easterbrook and jack dickinson. morgan seeley and carol chetkovich served as versatile writers. serving as faculty advisor was pat presto.



after placing 2nd in the palo alto invitational tournament during christmas vacation, coach clem wiser's basketball troops, led by all-leaguers bob littel and dick buell, won twelve straight games on the way to capturing the s.p. title.

dan edson set the pace for the season when his last-minute shot stole victory from the clutches of formidable ravenswood, and from that game on, there was no stopping the mighty vikings.

our team captain mike morrissey captured the attention of the spectators at every game with his dazzling ball-handling and dribbling. s.p.a.l. 'player of the year' bob littel, in addition to his outstanding contribution to the team, merited s.p.a.l., north coast, and central coast honors. our excellent rebounding this year was credited to the varsity talents of steve 'the tree' schaper and dick buell. added inspiration and supreme effort were provided by chris clark, winner of the team's scholar-athlete award. the team found a future all-s.p.a.l. player in sophomore star ron wyden, who contributed much this year.

in all, paly's hoopsters finished with a 13-1 record in league play and a 19-5 overall mark, and went on to the peninsula basketball tournament.

as 1965 s.p.a.l. champions, paly's basketball team was eligible to participate in the 8th annual peninsula basketball tournament.

our varsity champs were paly's first league championship basketball team since 1961. consequently, spirit preceding the opening game in stanford pavillion was wildly rampant. posters banked the halls. a special rally was held which featured speeches by varsity co-captains dick buell and mike morrissey. paly was ready for combat in the p.b.t.

it took a tough westmoor team to beat our vikes. the score alternated constantly throughout the contest, with westmoor having the advantage when the final gun sounded.

but our vikes were not defeated. the game with liveoak proved our team to be champions. after lagging behind in the first half, paly literally came alive. dick buell and ron wyden sparked the vikes to an easy victory — seventeen of the thirty-three shots made from the floor increased the score. ron turned in his best performance of the season and dick's usual outstanding playing helped merit him a position on the all-tournament. the entire team, though, deserves recognition for a great game.

on saturday, march 13th, paly played lincoln for the consolation crown. though they came on strong in the second half to beat our rival, the vikes still didn't play the slick basketball that made runaway winners in the s.p.a.l. race. with the return of many of paly's fine varsity players next year, hopes are high that 1966 will be the first year for palo alto to break the jinx of losing in the first round of the p.bt.

. . . during this year we were able to delve beneath the surface and uncover the foundations . . .

since 1695, while has changed in some schools, for there are still one-room schoolhouses, students with only one textbook, one teacher for all grade levels, and inadequate furniture and supplies. but not at palo alto senior high.

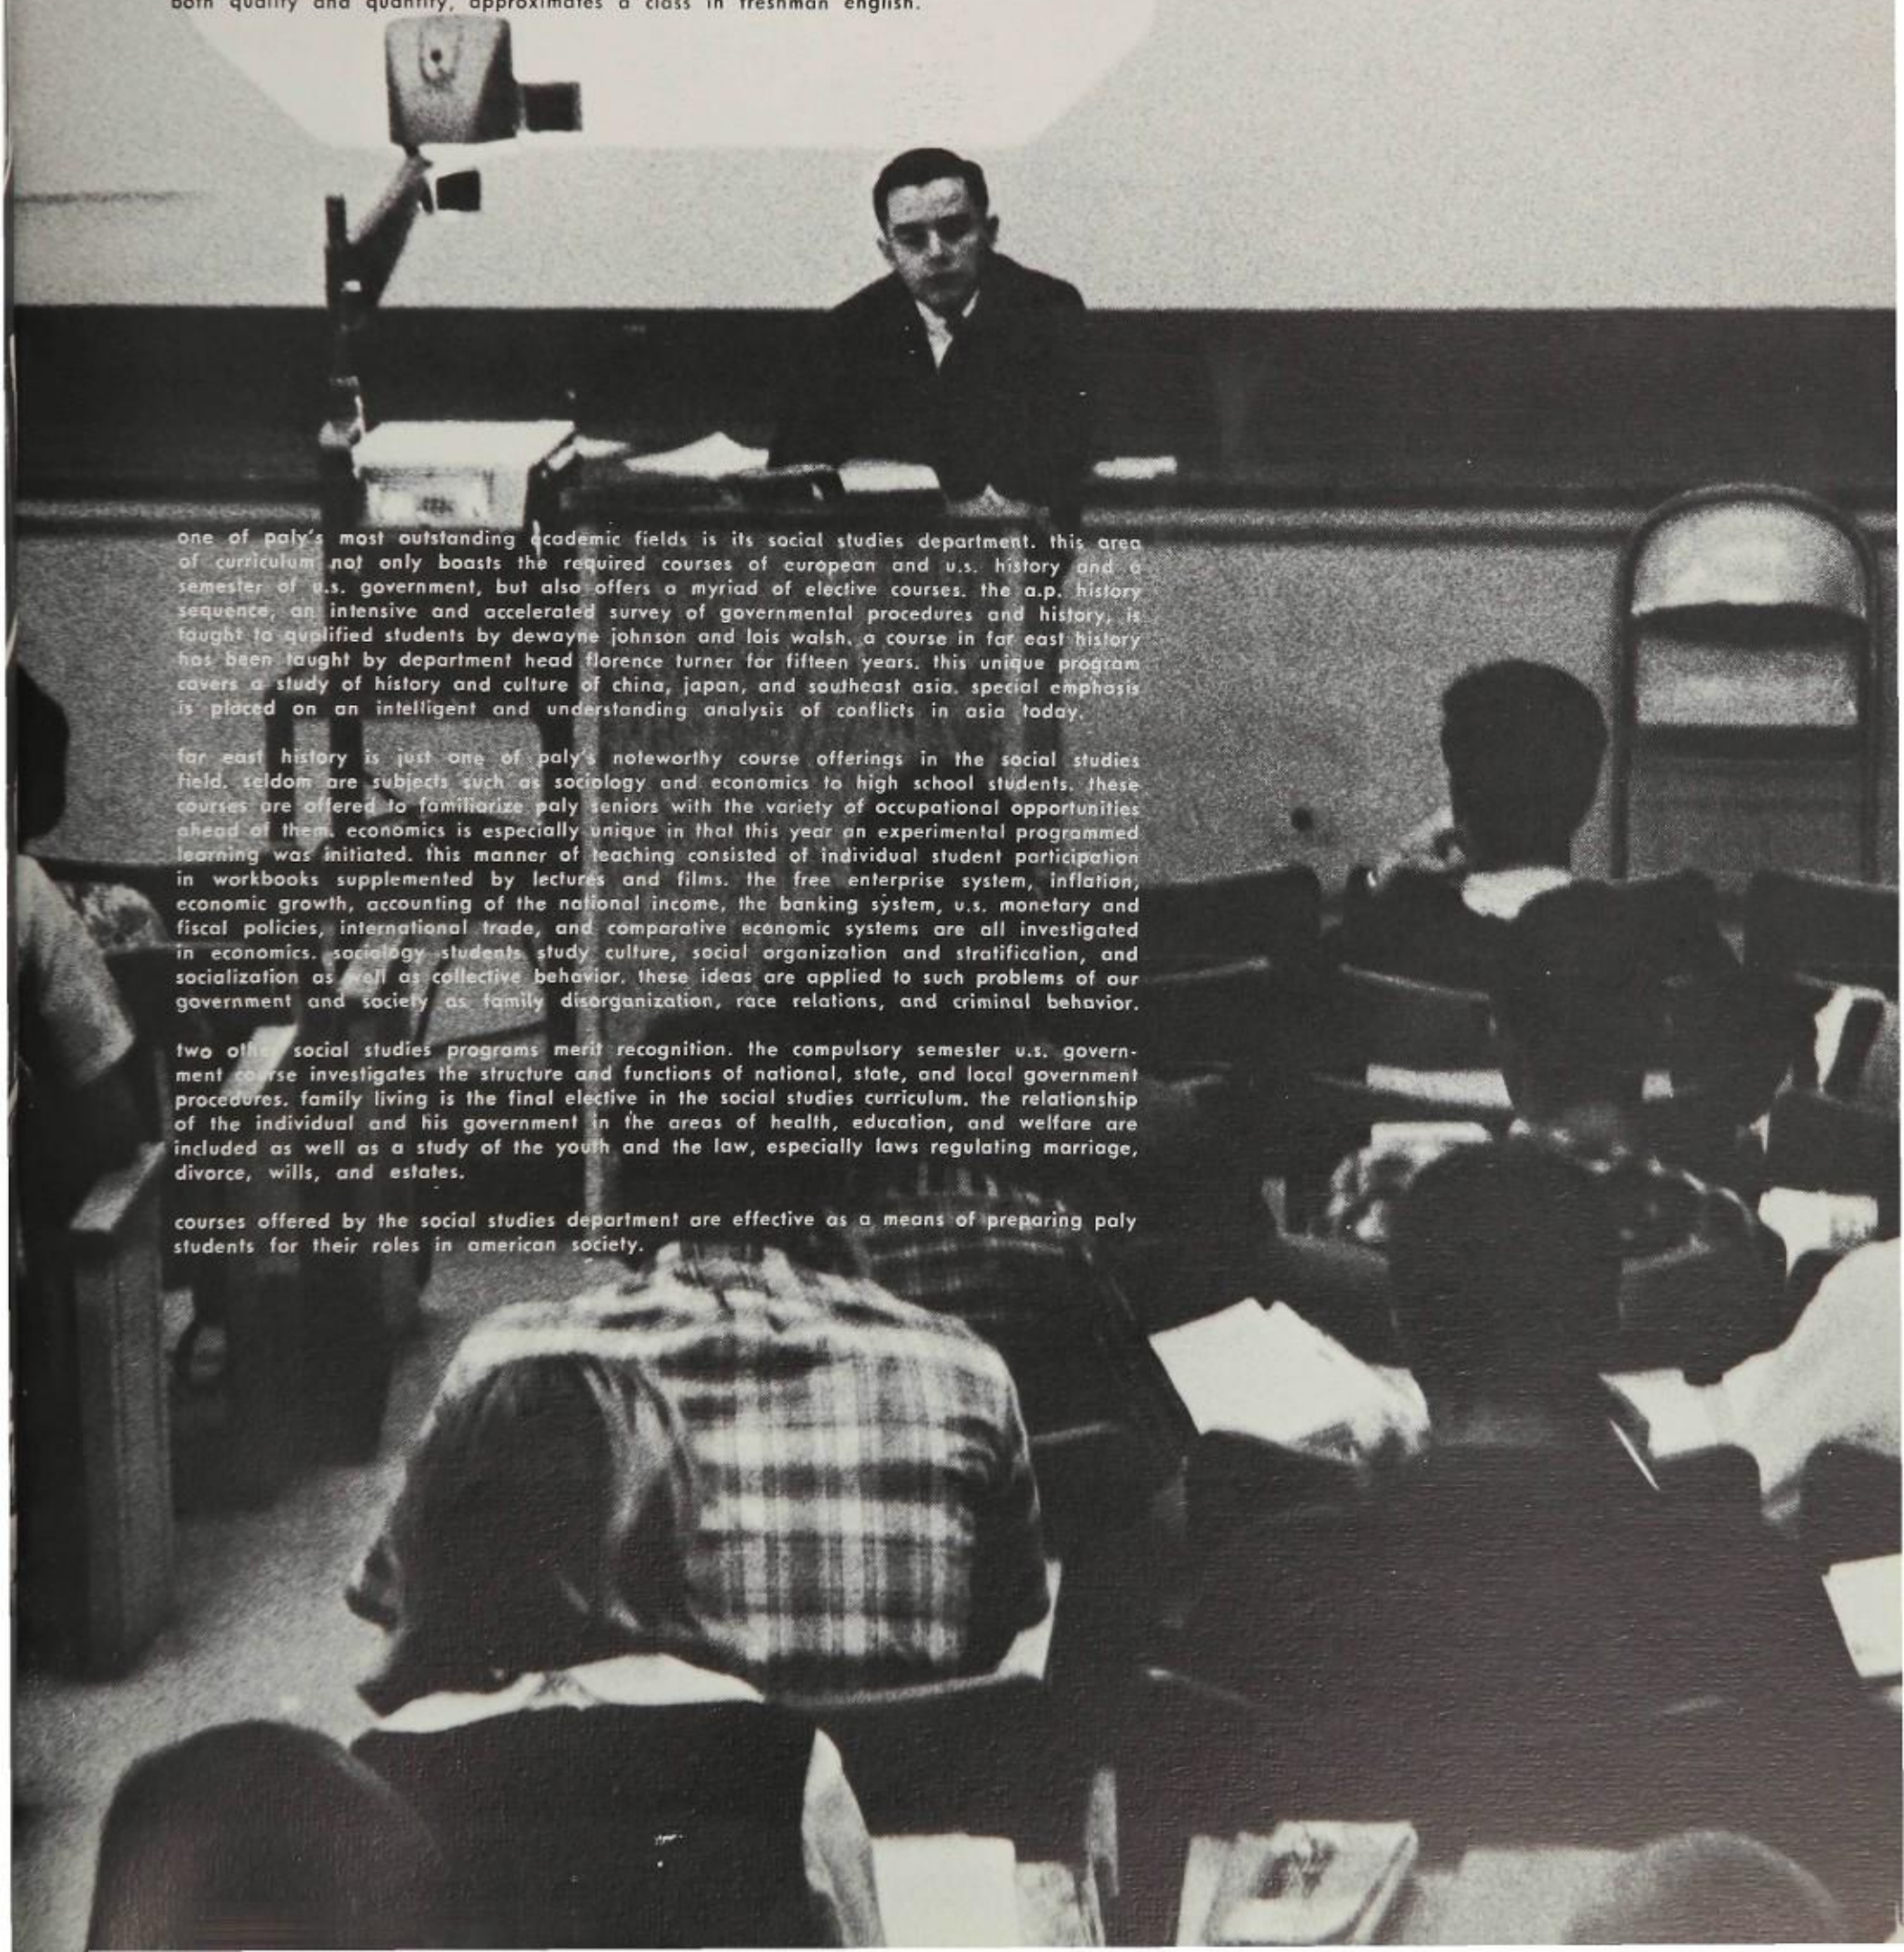
over the years paly has experimented with many innovations in the educational field to give its students the best possible education. it was the goal of the humanities program to develop the student's physical, social, and emotional life as well as his intellectual growth.

paly's attitude toward educational methods was stated by principal ruppel: "paly's changes in education are not as dramatic as in many schools, as paly has, and still is, carrying on a more traditional experimentation of developments in the educational field to give our students the best we have to offer."

during the twentieth century, english has become the most important study in a student's high school career. it is perhaps the most difficult subject to master and to interpret, but at paly high students are made aware of the importance of learning to speak, read, and write our language correctly.

sophomore and junior english are required for graduation, but paly's unique english program can be witnessed through the senior english course which emphasizes preparation for college english. one of the department's distinctive characteristics is that of laning classes according to scholastic ability. the purpose of laning is to motivate student interest and competition within the lane. the senior a-lane undertakes the survey of many of the major works and writers of english literature. this year the team of tony trujillo, john thompson, sam anderson, alison campbell, ann jurika, and joan brant has focused its attention on using the literature discussed as topics for weekly compositions. the b-lane team of joanne mueller, judith spiedel, john philipps, and carl renne has emphasized grammar and writing skills in preparing its students for english.

also offered at paly is the advanced placement english sequence. senior a.p. english, headed by english department director craig vittetoe, in both quality and quantity, approximates a class in freshman english.



one of paly's most outstanding academic fields is its social studies department. this area of curriculum not only boasts the required courses of european and u.s. history and a semester of u.s. government, but also offers a myriad of elective courses. the a.p. history sequence, an intensive and accelerated survey of governmental procedures and history, is taught to qualified students by dewayne johnson and lois walsh. a course in far east history has been taught by department head florence turner for fifteen years. this unique program covers a study of history and culture of china, japan, and southeast asia. special emphasis is placed on an intelligent and understanding analysis of conflicts in asia today.

far east history is just one of paly's noteworthy course offerings in the social studies field. seldom are subjects such as sociology and economics to high school students. these courses are offered to familiarize paly seniors with the variety of occupational opportunities ahead of them. economics is especially unique in that this year an experimental programmed learning was initiated. this manner of teaching consisted of individual student participation in workbooks supplemented by lectures and films. the free enterprise system, inflation, economic growth, accounting of the national income, the banking system, u.s. monetary and fiscal policies, international trade, and comparative economic systems are all investigated in economics. sociology students study culture, social organization and stratification, and socialization as well as collective behavior. these ideas are applied to such problems of our government and society as family disorganization, race relations, and criminal behavior.

two other social studies programs merit recognition. the compulsory semester u.s. government course investigates the structure and functions of national, state, and local government procedures. family living is the final elective in the social studies curriculum. the relationship of the individual and his government in the areas of health, education, and welfare are included as well as a study of the youth and the law, especially laws regulating marriage, divorce, wills, and estates.

courses offered by the social studies department are effective as a means of preparing paly students for their roles in american society.

paly's diversified art department not only offers courses which encourage creativity and participation in such fields as painting, sculpting and jewelry making, but also courses which study traditional art, such as the art history course taught by louise haskins.

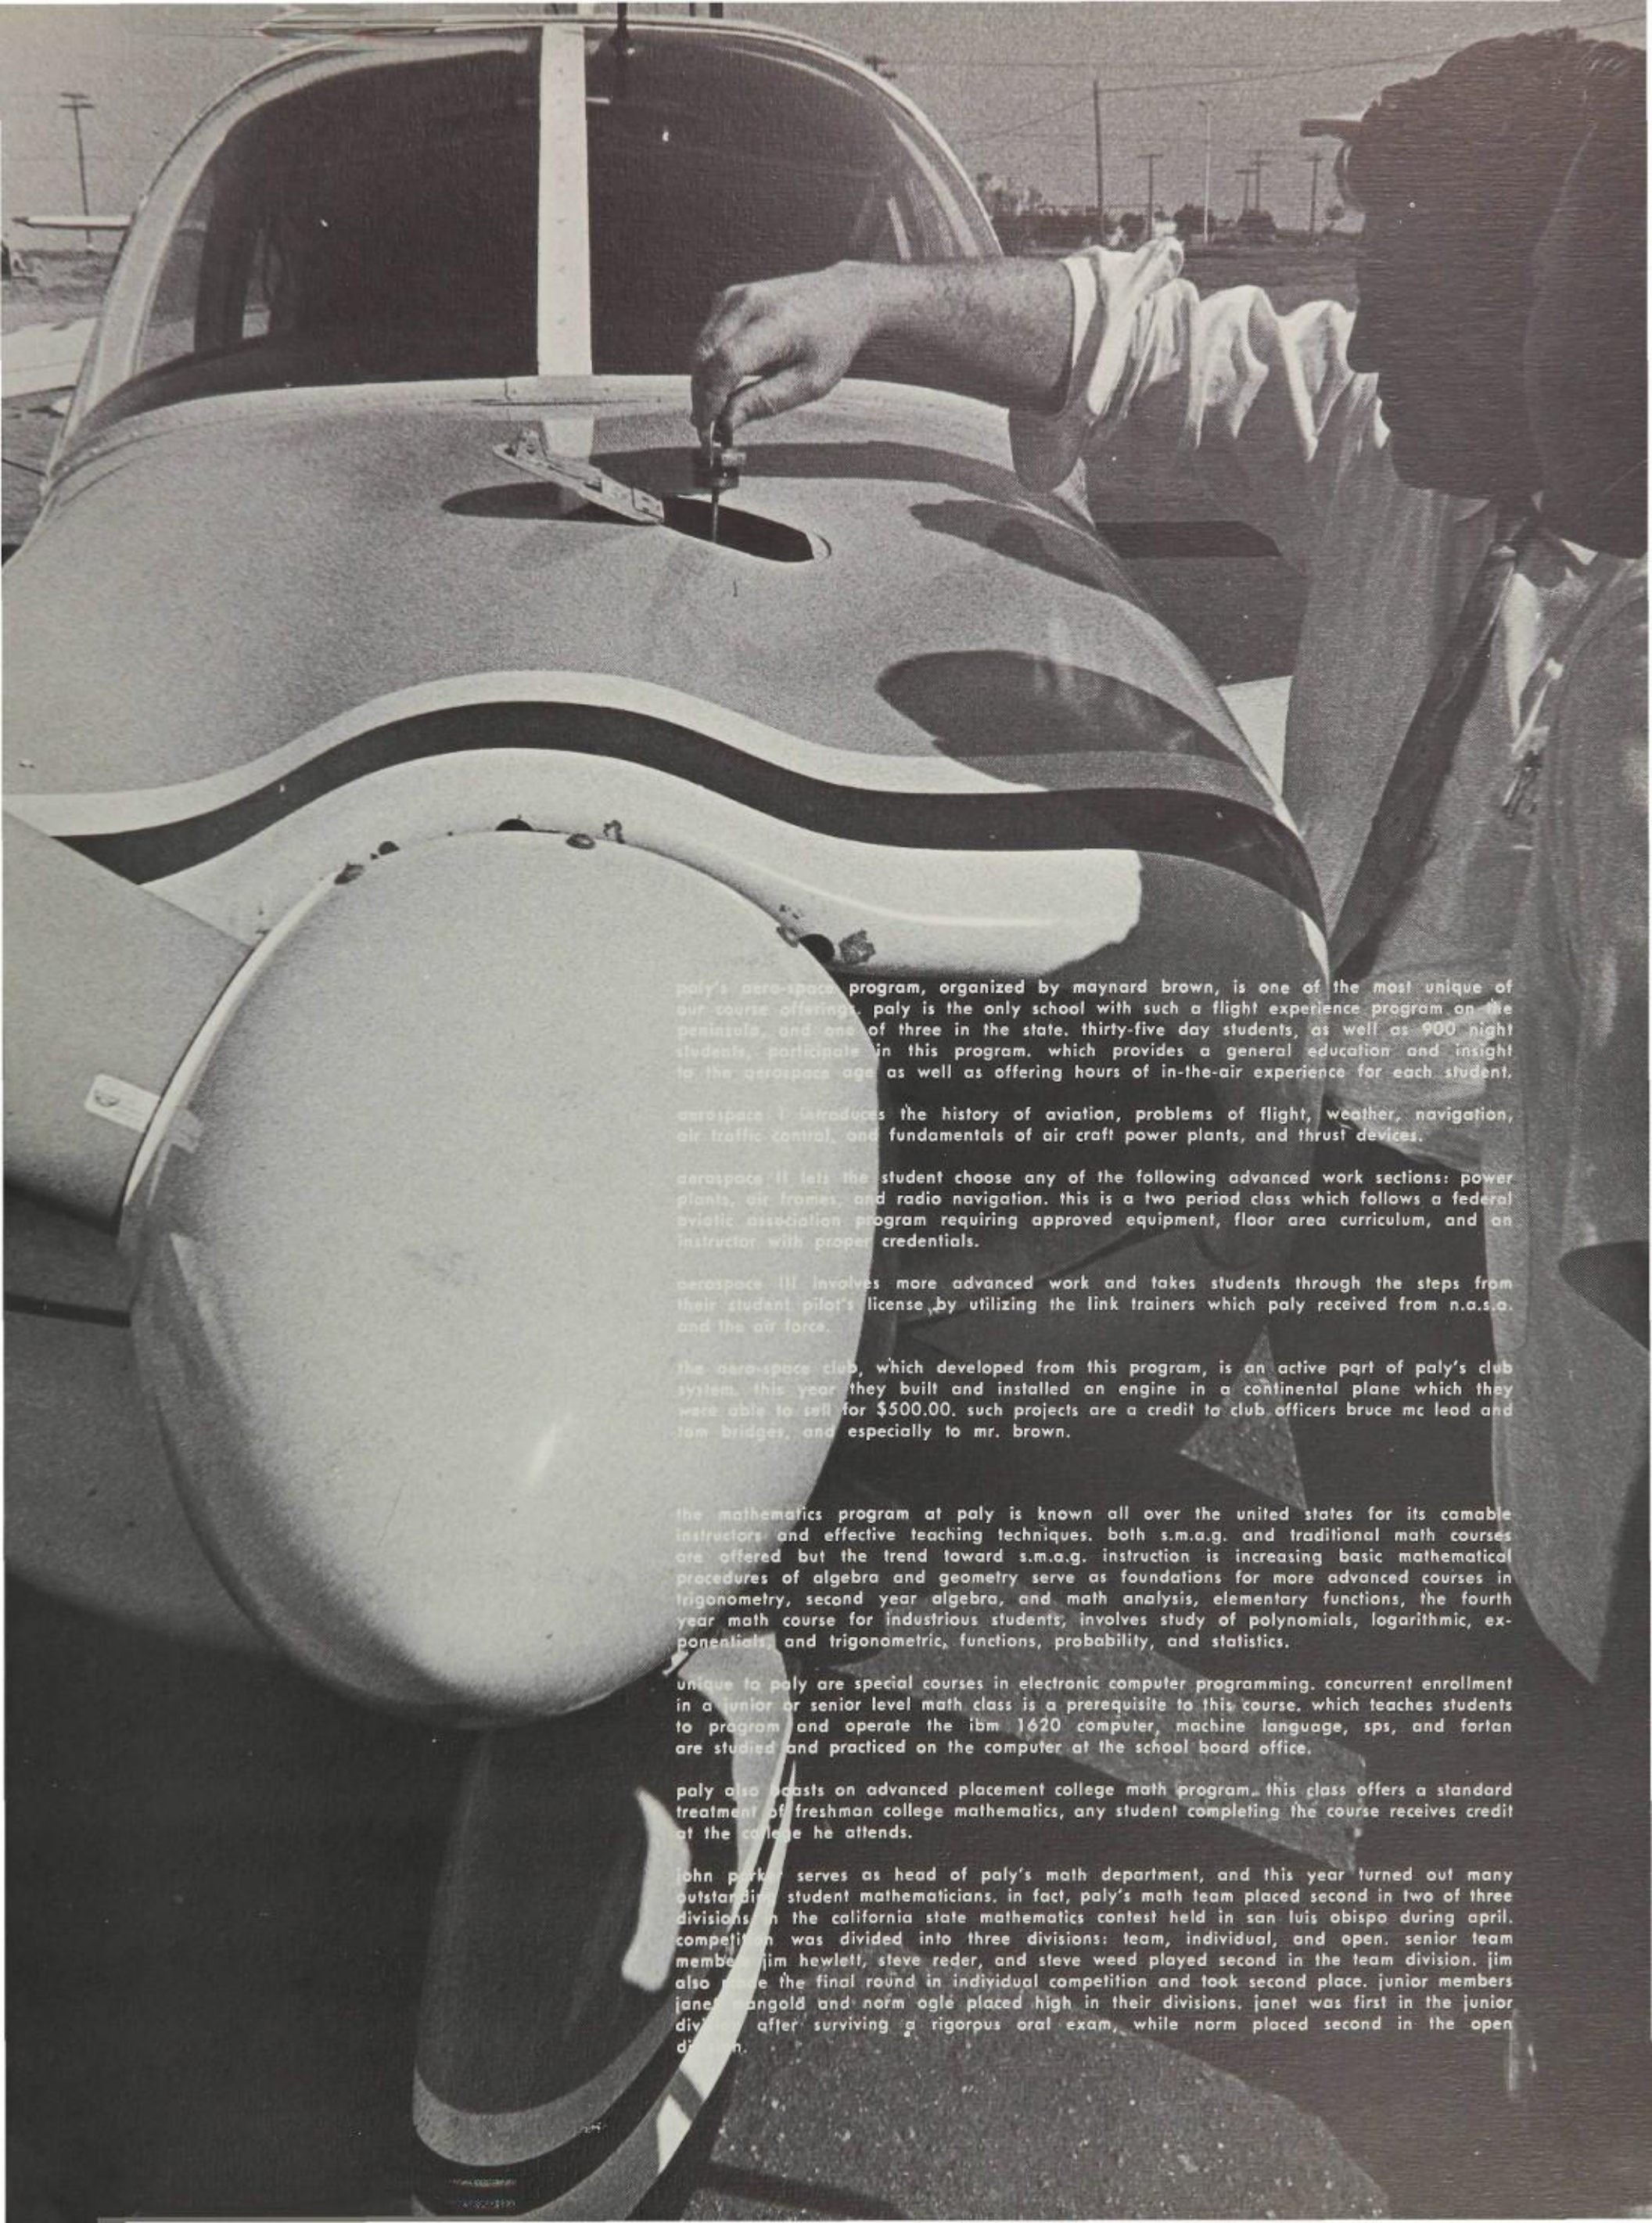
none of the painting II students will ever forget martin stoezel's inspiring guidance.

the unique aspect of paly's art department is the commercial art II course taught by jerry alexander.

paly's music department offers courses to satisfy every need. for creative students, music theory is offered; the students write and perform their own compositions.

choral activities for interested girls and boys are supervised by julius shuchat. bands and small instrumental groups are supervised by robert koenig.

the music department contributed much to paly's assemblies, especially the christmas assembly, the washington-lincoln day assembly, and the gold star memorial assembly.



paly's aero-space program, organized by maynard brown, is one of the most unique of our course offerings. paly is the only school with such a flight experience program on the peninsula, and one of three in the state. thirty-five day students, as well as 900 night students, participate in this program. which provides a general education and insight to the aerospace age as well as offering hours of in-the-air experience for each student.

aerospace I introduces the history of aviation, problems of flight, weather, navigation, air traffic control, and fundamentals of air craft power plants, and thrust devices.

aerospace II lets the student choose any of the following advanced work sections: power plants, air frames, and radio navigation. this is a two period class which follows a federal aviatic association program requiring approved equipment, floor area curriculum, and an instructor with proper credentials.

aerospace III involves more advanced work and takes students through the steps from their student pilot's license by utilizing the link trainers which paly received from n.a.s.a. and the air force.

the aero-space club, which developed from this program, is an active part of paly's club system. this year they built and installed an engine in a continental plane which they were able to sell for $500.00. such projects are a credit to club officers bruce mc leod and tom bridges, and especially to mr. brown.

the mathematics program at paly is known all over the united states for its camable instructors and effective teaching techniques. both s.m.a.g. and traditional math courses are offered but the trend toward s.m.a.g. instruction is increasing basic mathematical procedures of algebra and geometry serve as foundations for more advanced courses in trigonometry, second year algebra, and math analysis, elementary functions, the fourth year math course for industrious students, involves study of polynomials, logarithmic, exponentials, and trigonometric, functions, probability, and statistics.

unique to paly are special courses in electronic computer programming. concurrent enrollment in a junior or senior level math class is a prerequisite to this course. which teaches students to program and operate the ibm 1620 computer, machine language, sps, and fortan are studied and practiced on the computer at the school board office.

paly also boasts on advanced placement college math program. this class offers a standard treatment of freshman college mathematics, any student completing the course receives credit at the college he attends.

john parker serves as head of paly's math department, and this year turned out many outstanding student mathematicians. in fact, paly's math team placed second in two of three divisions in the california state mathematics contest held in san luis obispo during april. competition was divided into three divisions: team, individual, and open. senior team members jim hewlett, steve reder, and steve weed played second in the team division. jim also made the final round in individual competition and took second place. junior members janet langold and norm ogle placed high in their divisions. janet was first in the junior division after surviving a rigorous oral exam, while norm placed second in the open division.

a poly student desiring knowledge of a language other than english may choose his course of study from a field of six different languages: latin, spanish, french, german, russian, or chinese. such a wide variety of language instruction in a high school curriculum is rare. poly is, in fact, one of the few schools in the united states which offers study in such a wide range of languages. the russian and chinese aspects of this program are particularly unique. elizabeth lanz began teaching russian here in 1954, and thus poly became one of the first schools on the west coast to institute instruction in russian. just three years ago the carnegie foundation sponsorship of the teaching of mandarin chinese at poly materials used by laura sung's pupils come from san francisco state college via a foundation grant. an increasing number of students at poly are studying russian and chinese, a trend which testifies to fine teaching.

indeed, an increasing percentage of poly students are enrolled in language courses. 67.2% of the student body now studies at least one foreign language. many polyites are involved in fourth or fifth year language study. these college level classes are taught to spanish, french, german, and latin students by lucille drake, kenneth miller, kenneth snyder, leonard mc cord (department head) wolfraud cate, and marian schmidt respectively. such programs constitute another unique aspect of poly's language program. new teaching methods are keeping pace with increasing student interest in language. latin is the only language in which audio-lingual techniques are not employed. by hearing a language spoken and by learning common idiomatic expressions, students will be much better equipped to speak fluently the language they are studying.

in the language lab students learn more than the voice of another country. they learn of life abroad, study culture, music, art, view movies and filmstrips, read foreign magazines and newspapers, or laugh at humor native to the country they are discovering. it is redundant to say that language study at poly offers the student a rich and rewarding experience.

1965 s.p.a.l. champions

under the guidance of coach wes fisher, the matmen upset heavily-favored san carlos in the league meet and swept on to an undefeated season. the green clad grapplers crushed their foes in their path, and shattered their perfect s.p.a.l. dual-meet records to win [illegible] seasons.

the highlight of the championship march came in the final meet, as the matmen mangled woodside to clinch the league title. the matmen were so elated by their success that they swept coach fisher off his feet and heaved him into the swimming pool. the varsity then followed the coach into the water, a wet but fitting end to a fantastic season.

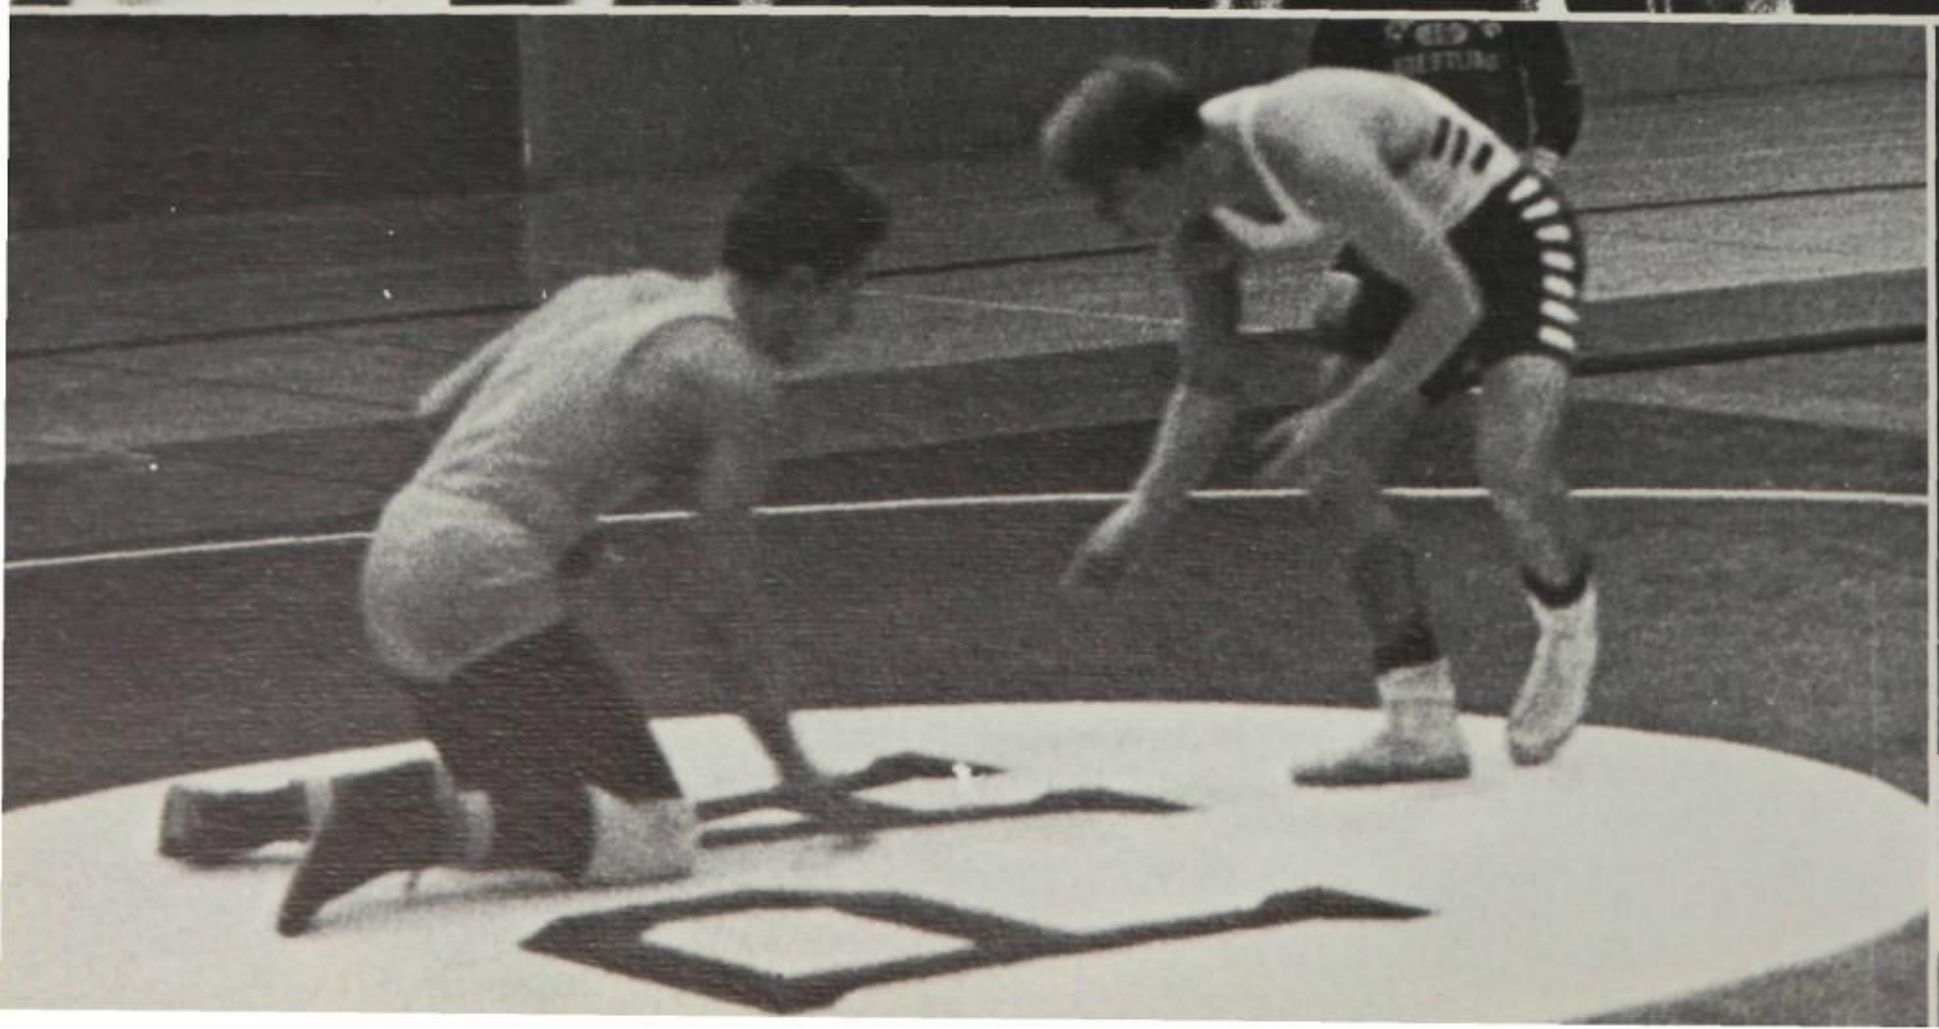
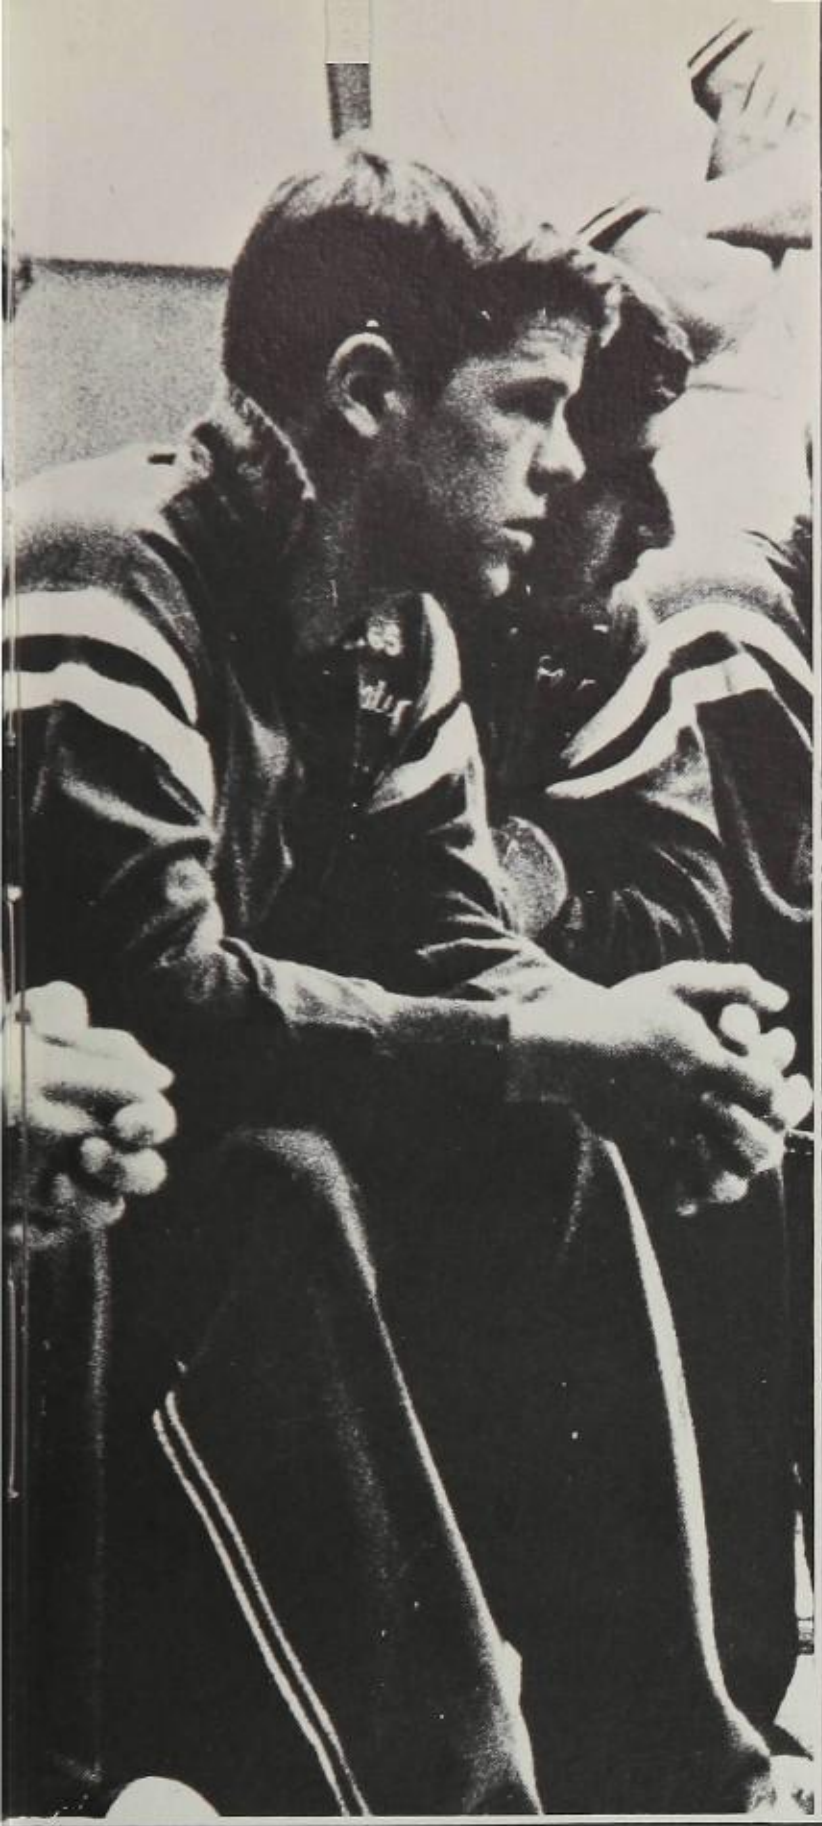
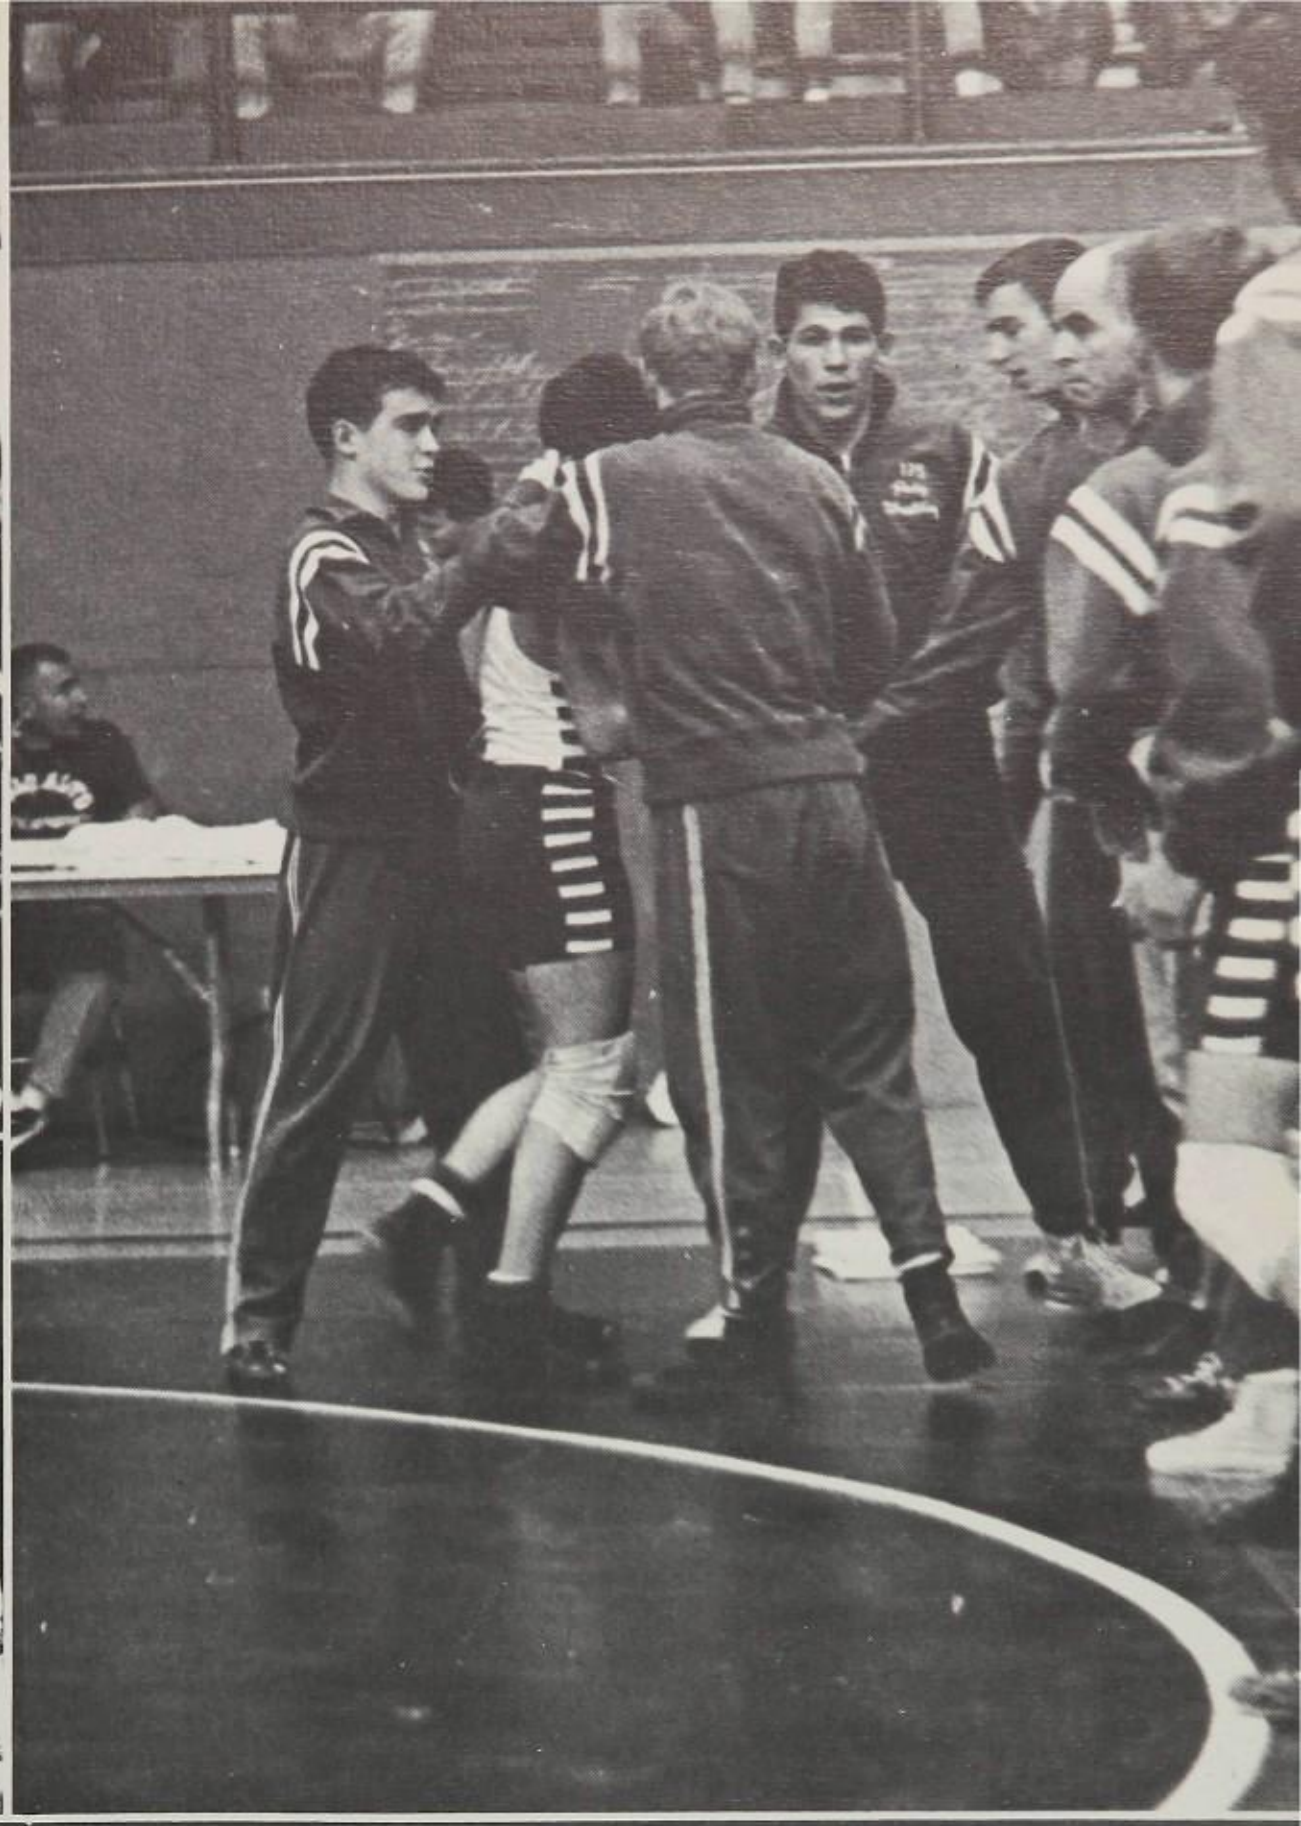
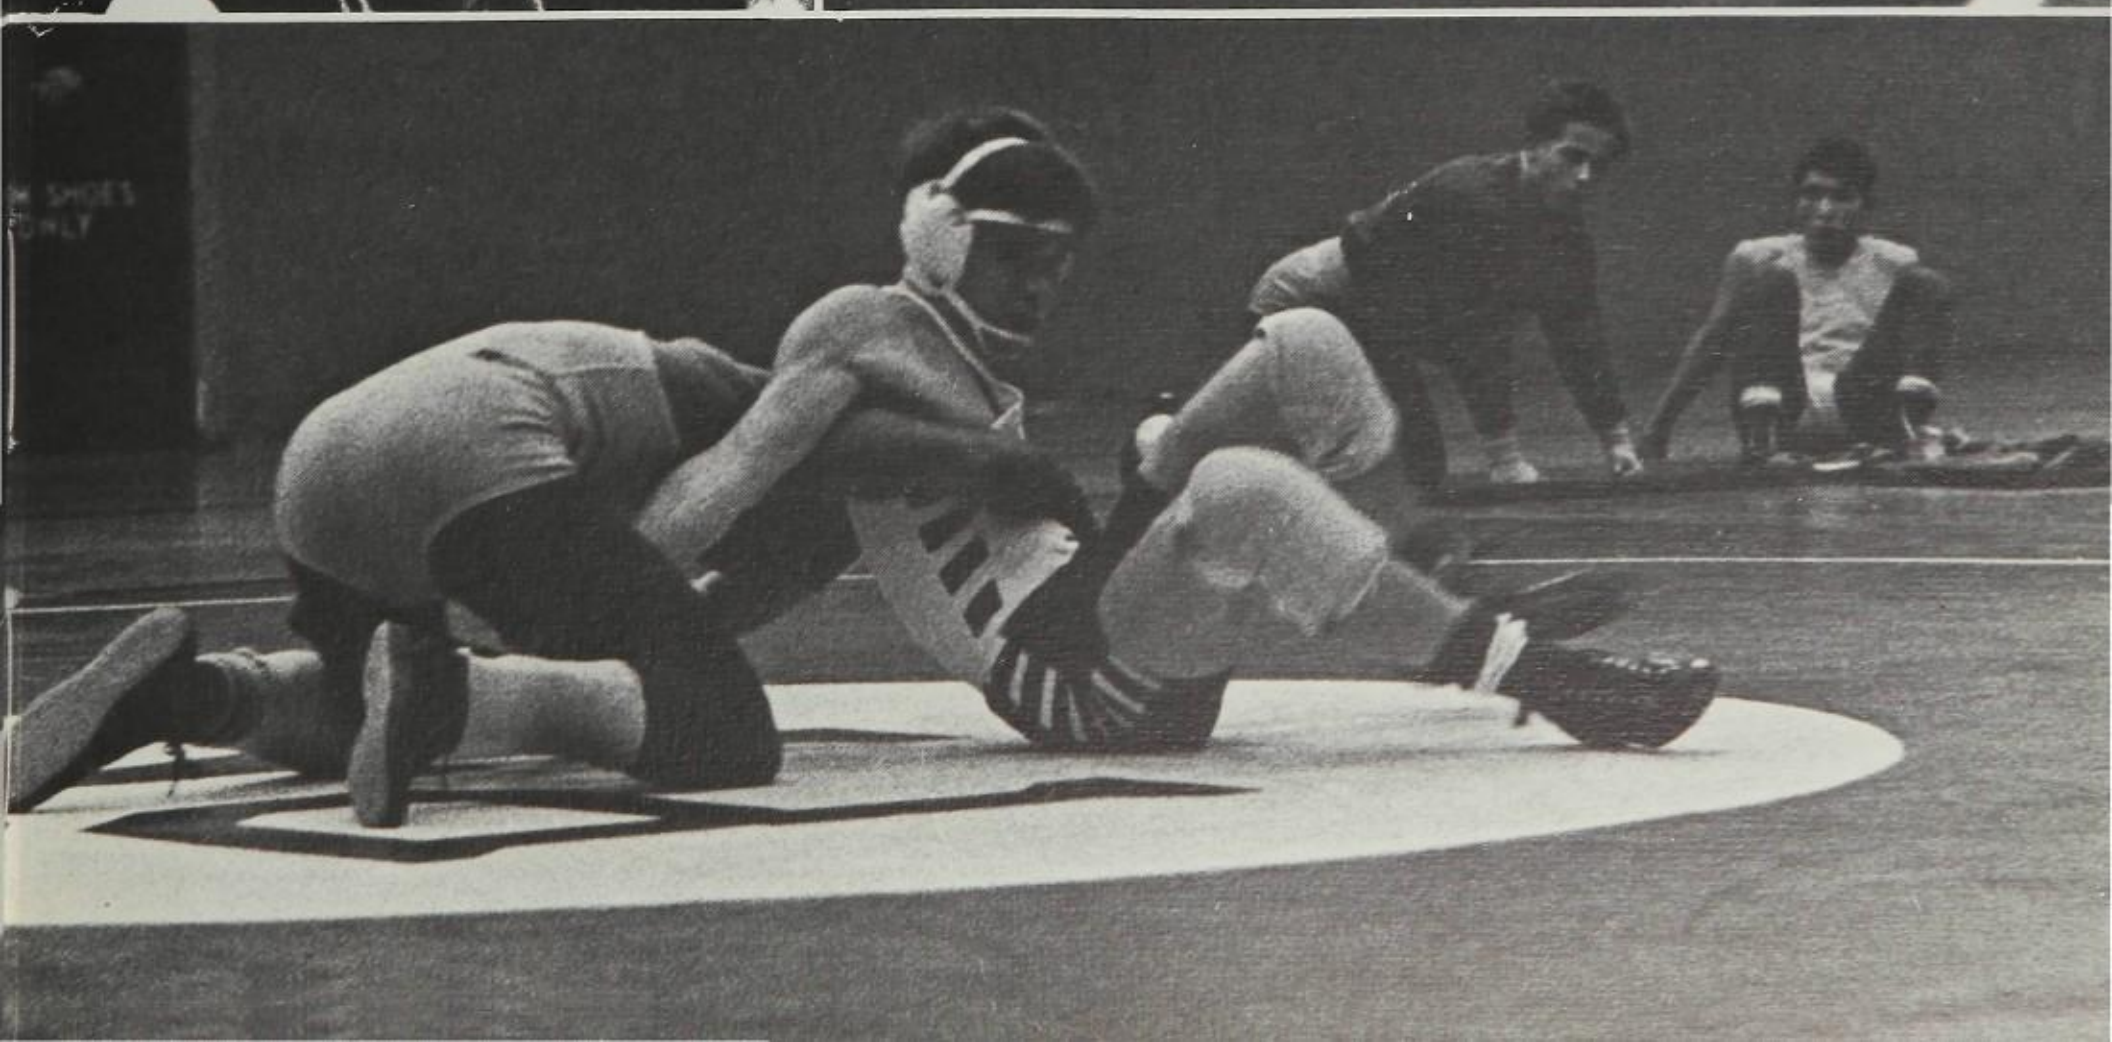
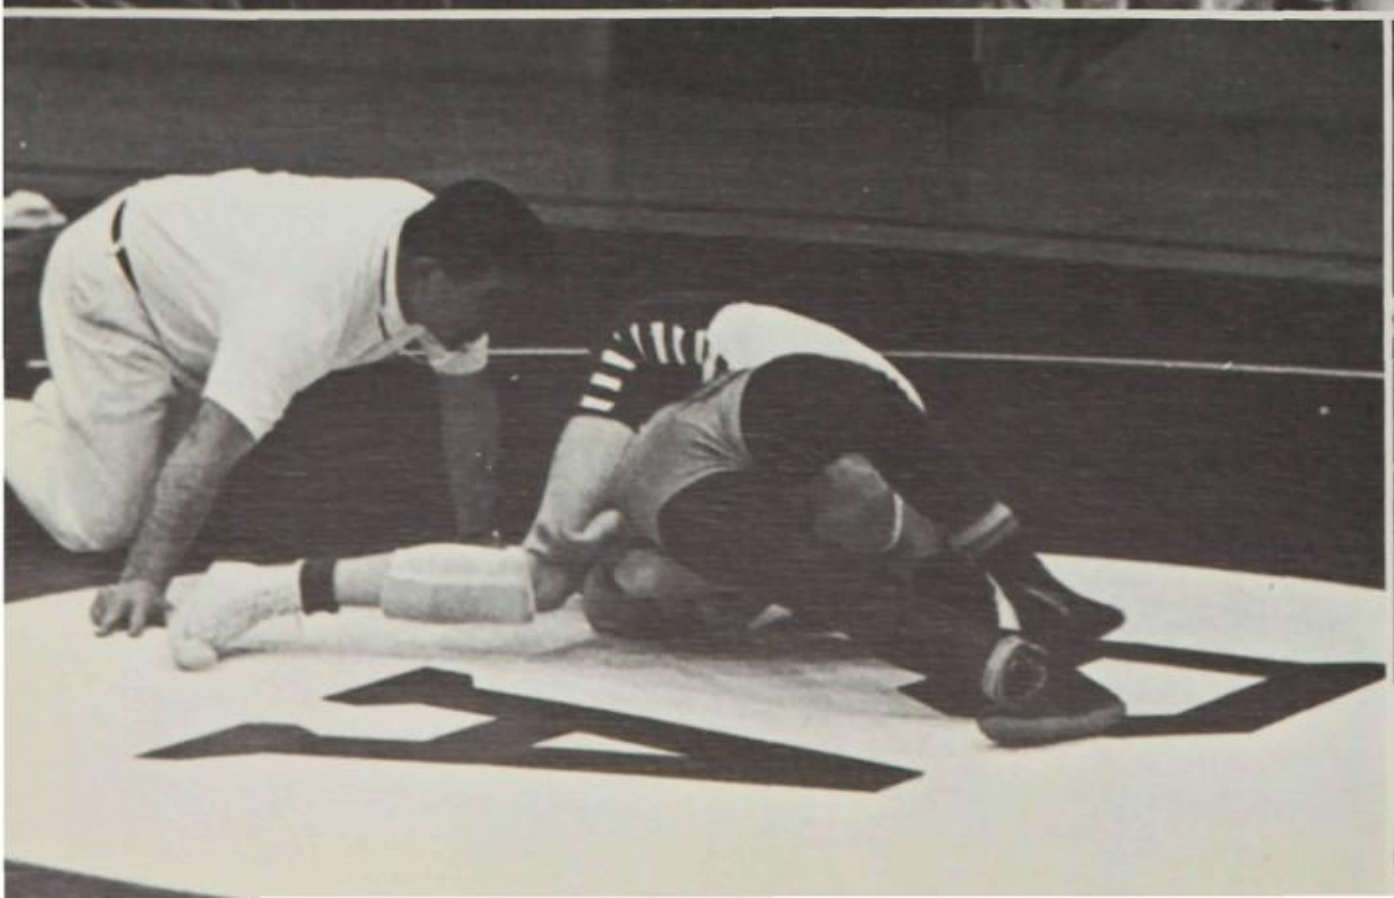
rated by many as the best wrestler on the team, ray said little but never failed to come through with a decisive pin.

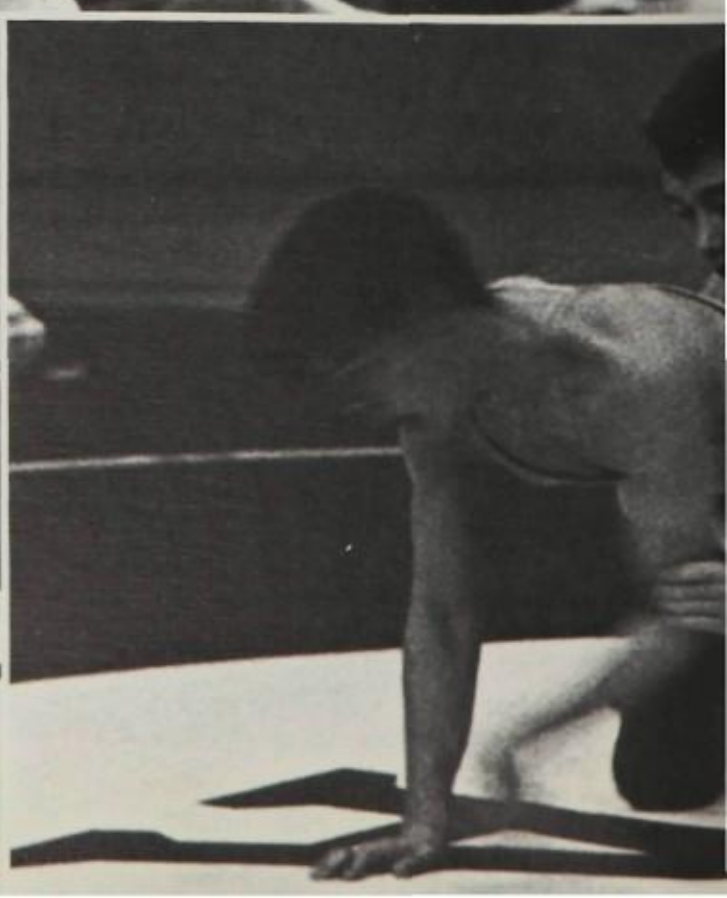


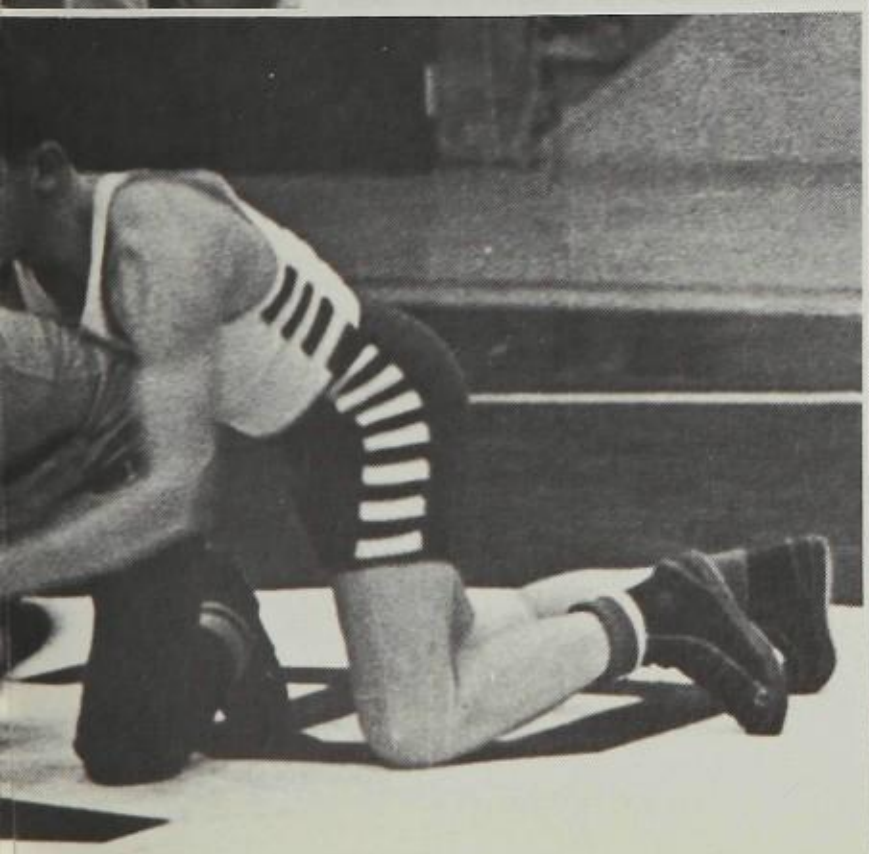


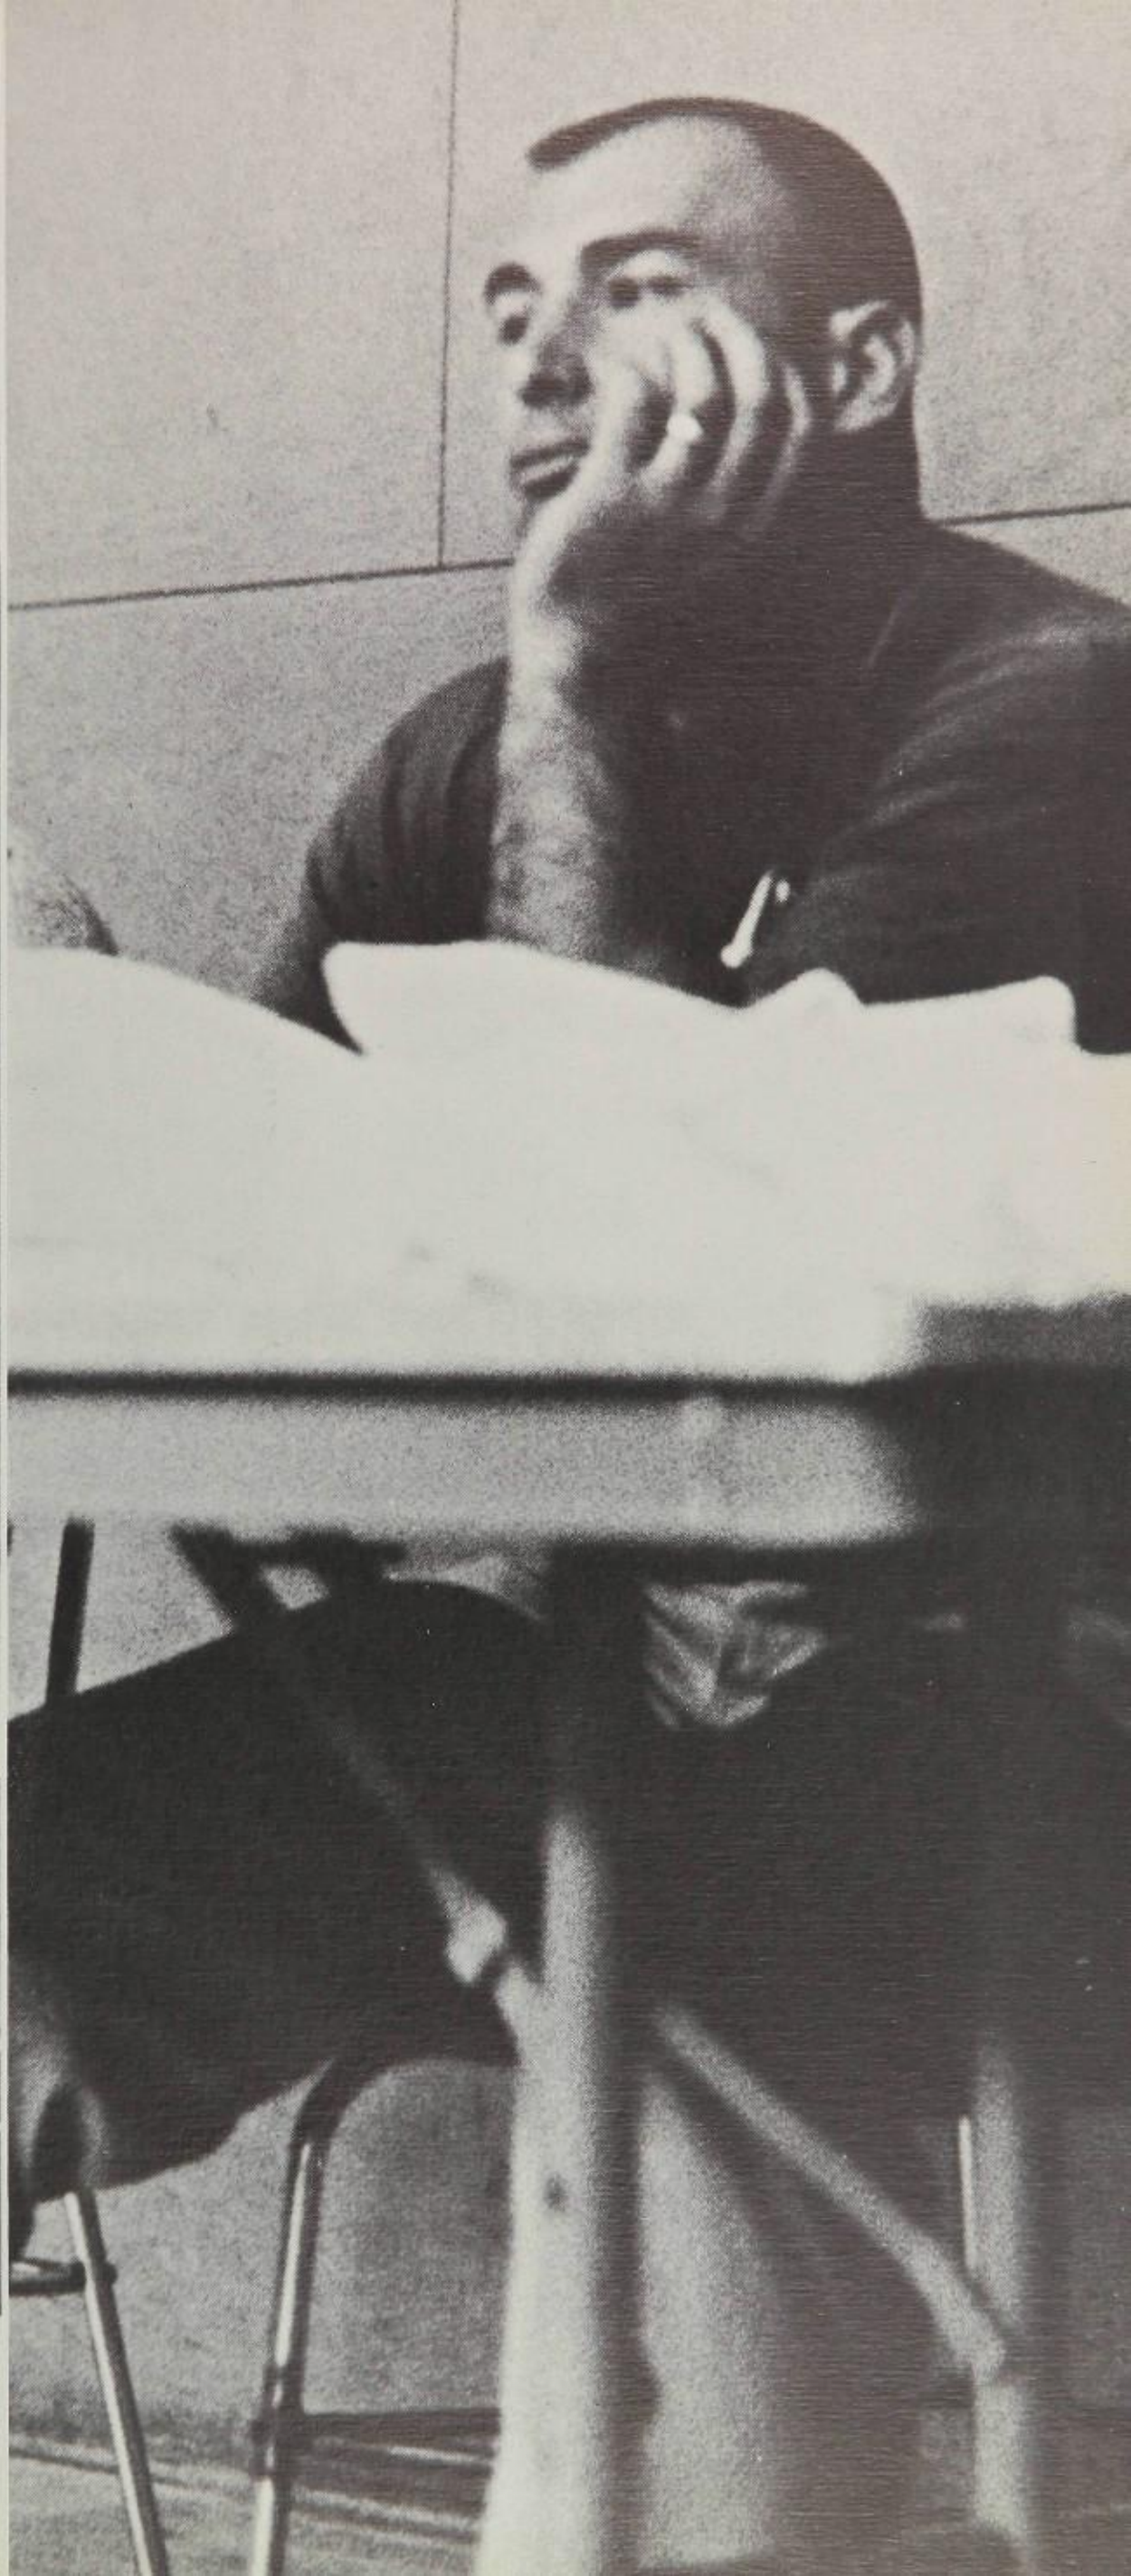


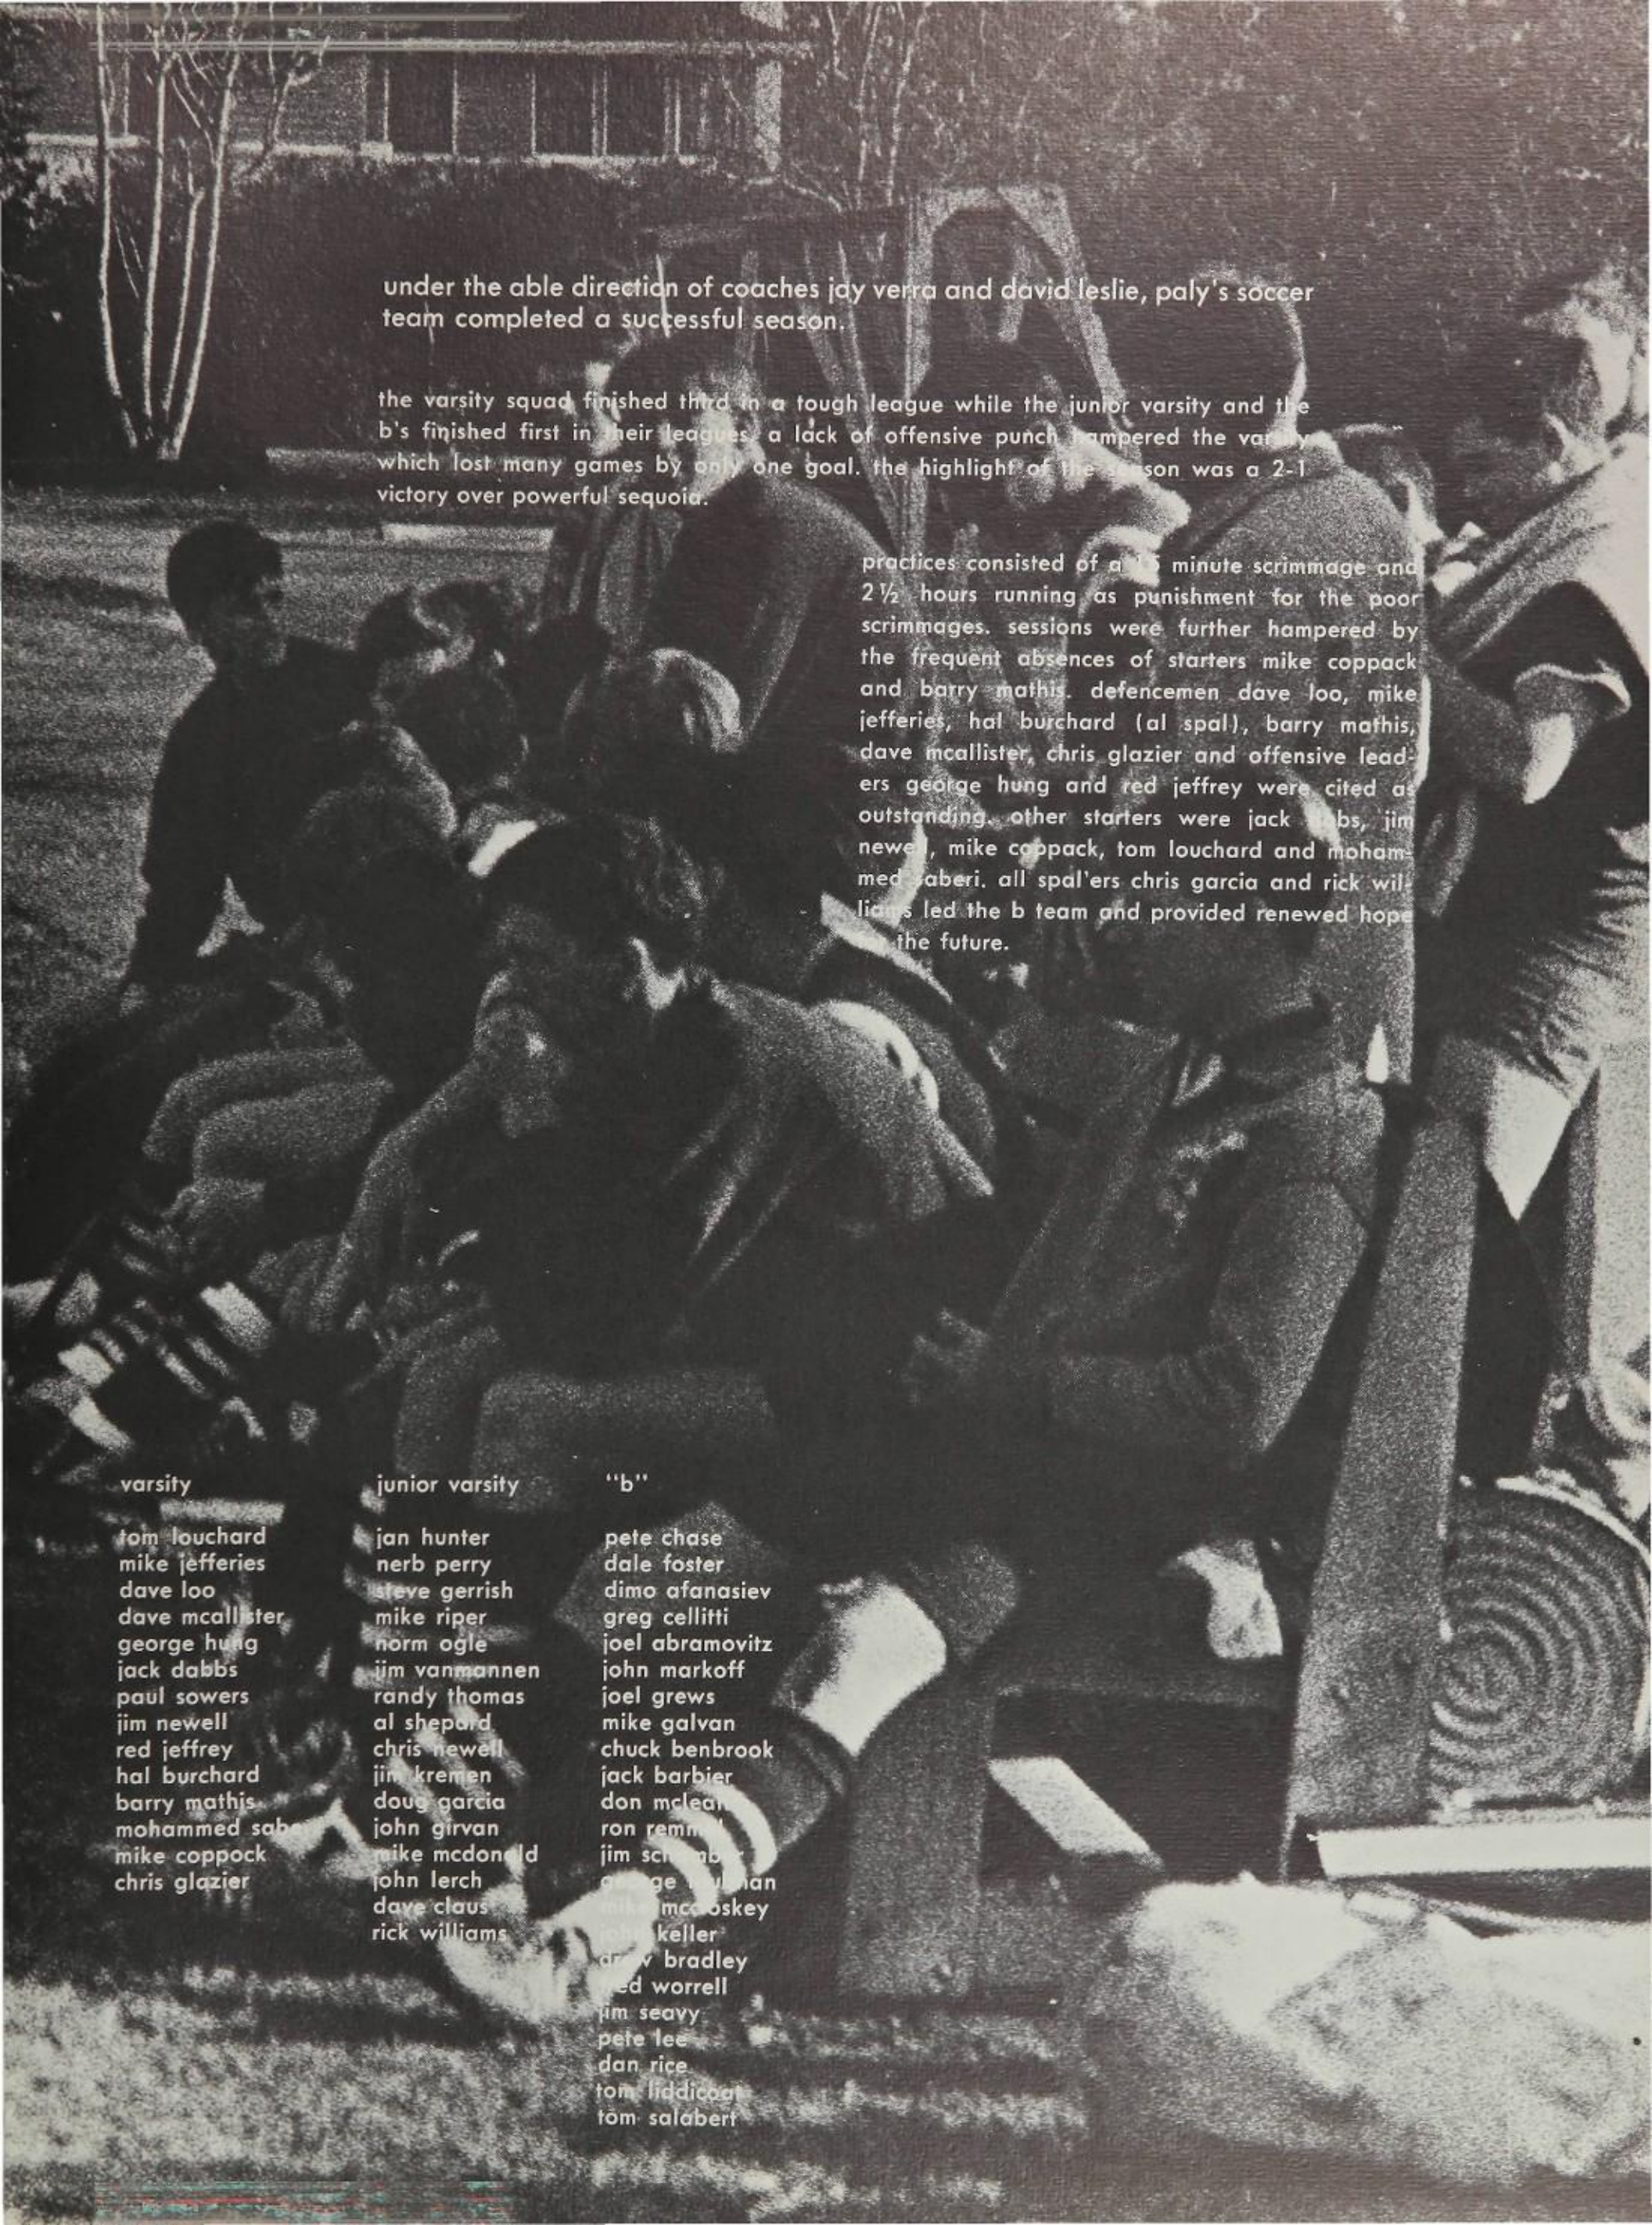












under the able direction of coaches jay verra and david leslie, paly's soccer team completed a successful season.

the varsity squad finished third in a tough league while the junior varsity and the b's finished first in their leagues. a lack of offensive punch hampered the varsity which lost many games by only one goal. the highlight of the season was a 2-1 victory over powerful sequoia.

practices consisted of a [illegible] minute scrimmage and 2 ½ hours running as punishment for the poor scrimmages. sessions were further hampered by the frequent absences of starters mike coppack and barry mathis. defencemen dave loo, mike jefferies, hal burchard (al spal), barry mathis, dave mcallister, chris glazier and offensive leaders george hung and red jeffrey were cited as outstanding. other starters were jack dabbs, jim newell, mike coppack, tom louchard and mohammed saberi. all spal'ers chris garcia and rick williams led the b team and provided renewed hope for the future.

a selected group of paly high girls, providing services to the school and community belong to the 's' club. the 's' stands for soroptimist, a woman's organization contributing friendship, leadership and service — this group sponsors high school 's' clubs throughout the united states. the members of the palo alto high 's' club are selected by having such qualifications as: a good academic record, the will to promote good citizenship, the right spirit in school and community, and an eagerness to give aid to the needy.

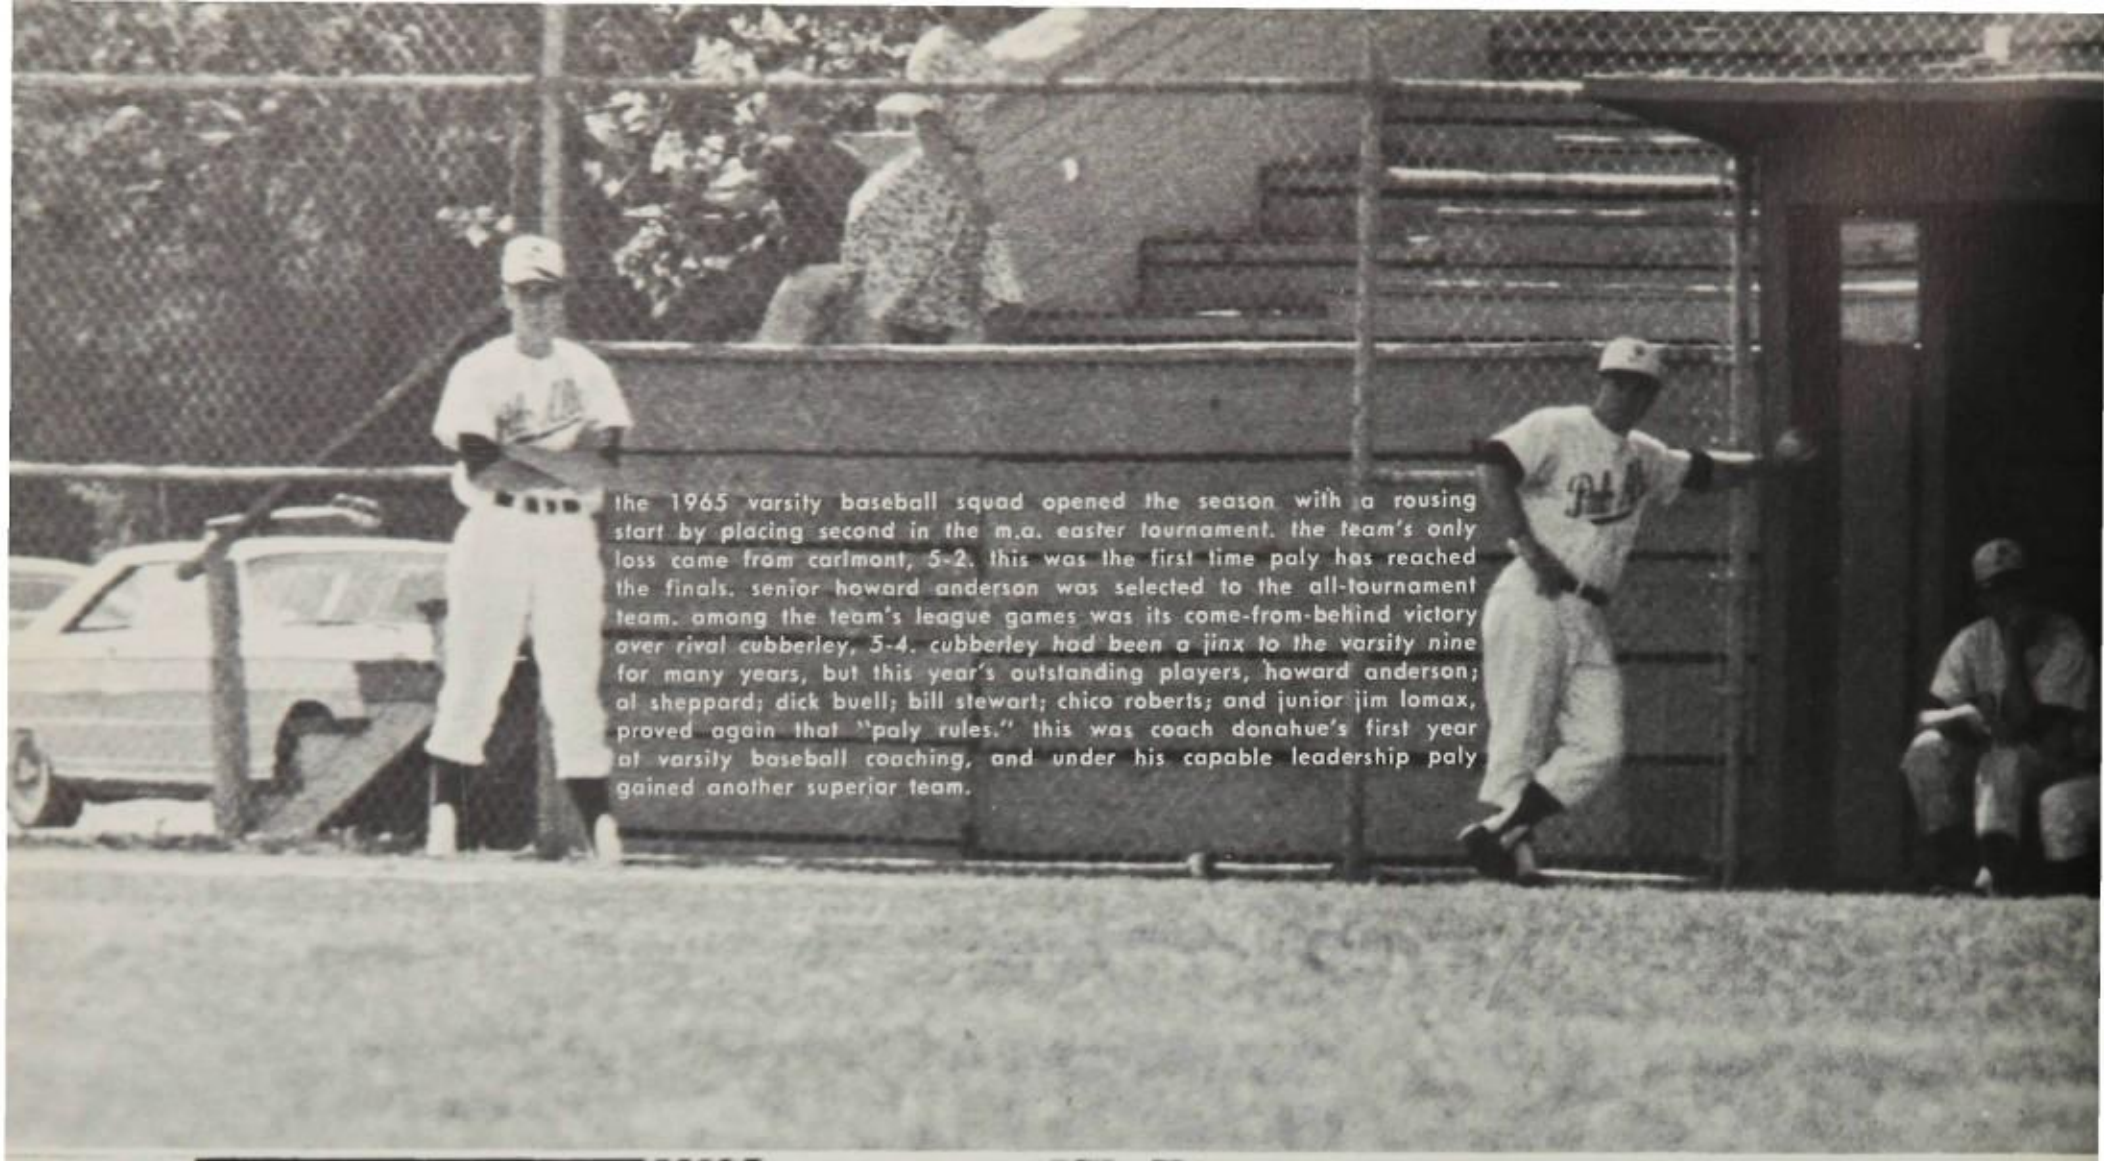
this year's 's' club president pam moscrip; vice president julie jackson; treasurer sue bentley; secretary candy christman; corresponding secretary chris walton; senior director carol abbot, and junior director debby cecil, made up the executive board. lavon andrus, marsha bowman, ellen bulf, sue griswold, michele grumet, gayle nelson, linda orcutt, linda phillips, patty sargent, cara vonk, and karla davis made up the senior membership; the junior membership included: debby baggot, connie cushman, donna devries, georgeme kifer, mimi marden, kathy meyer, lauma zunte, jennifer johnson, janet lampe, marsha porter, and carol morgan.

the 's' club services this year included a car wash to raise money for a scholarship, and easter party given for mentally retarded children, collections for the march of dimes, a flower sale at the sequoia game and cup cake and gingerbread man sales. other 's' club activities were a key club-s club swimming party, and installation tea for new members and a before school breakfast.

the key club is sponsored by the kiwanis club of palo alto. the club's purpose, organization and ideals are similar to those of the kiwanis club and key club members work closely with kiwanis members in many activities. key club is a service organization and its primary objectives are: (1) to develop leadership and initiative, (2) to provide experience in living and working together, (3) to serve the school and community, and (4) to prepare for useful citizenship by promotion of certain ideals.

the activities of the club are in accord with its objectives. activities include fund-raising drives, such as pancake day with the kiwanis club, to provide funds for youth activities; the dollar for a scholar drive, to provide a key club scholarship; numerous drives for other local organizations; and service projects for the school and community. annually, the key club helps clean up stanford stadium after the sequoia football game, holds a christmas party for the youngsters at the children's health council, and assists the kiwanis club in its clean-up the city campaign. the club is also able to aid many school and community organizations with their projects. every spring the key club organizes and leads a joint meeting with the kiwanis club. in addition, the club sends two members, as representatives, each week to a kiwanis luncheon meeting.

membership is limited to about forty boys. this number is composed of approximately sixteen seniors, sixteen juniors and eight sophomores. any scholastically qualified male member of the respective classes, who shows an interest in service, good character and leadership ability is eligible for membership in the key club. this year's officers were john rey, president; dave brown, vice-president; skip mccowan, secretary; and tod bacigalupi, treasurer.



the 1965 varsity baseball squad opened the season with a rousing start by placing second in the m.a. easter tournament. the team's only loss came from carlmont, 5-2. this was the first time poly has reached the finals. senior howard anderson was selected to the all-tournament team. among the team's league games was its come-from-behind victory over rival cubberley, 5-4. cubberley had been a jinx to the varsity nine for many years, but this year's outstanding players, howard anderson; al sheppard; dick buell; bill stewart; chico roberts; and junior jim lomax, proved again that "poly rules." this was coach donahue's first year at varsity baseball coaching, and under his capable leadership poly gained another superior team.

paly's varsity tennis team was out of sight this season, compiling a formidable 9-1 record in mid-season. under the guidance of coach keith clark, varsity netters topped the previous school record for the most victories in a season, assuring the team of at least a second place finish in the spal.

reb herdman played the featured singles for paly and won the all-spal championship. rounding out the remaining singles spots were seniors steve loveless, chris clark, paul bates, and junior rich williams—rich had an undefeated season.

victorious doubles combinations of underclassmen chuck benbrook, mark st. angelo, jim newell, nick lamb, and karl loos are bright prospects for next year.

paly's jv team went undefeated, a tribute to the depth of the tennis aggregation.

the combination of individual victories of paly netmen was responsible for winning the fremont hills tennis tournament for paly.

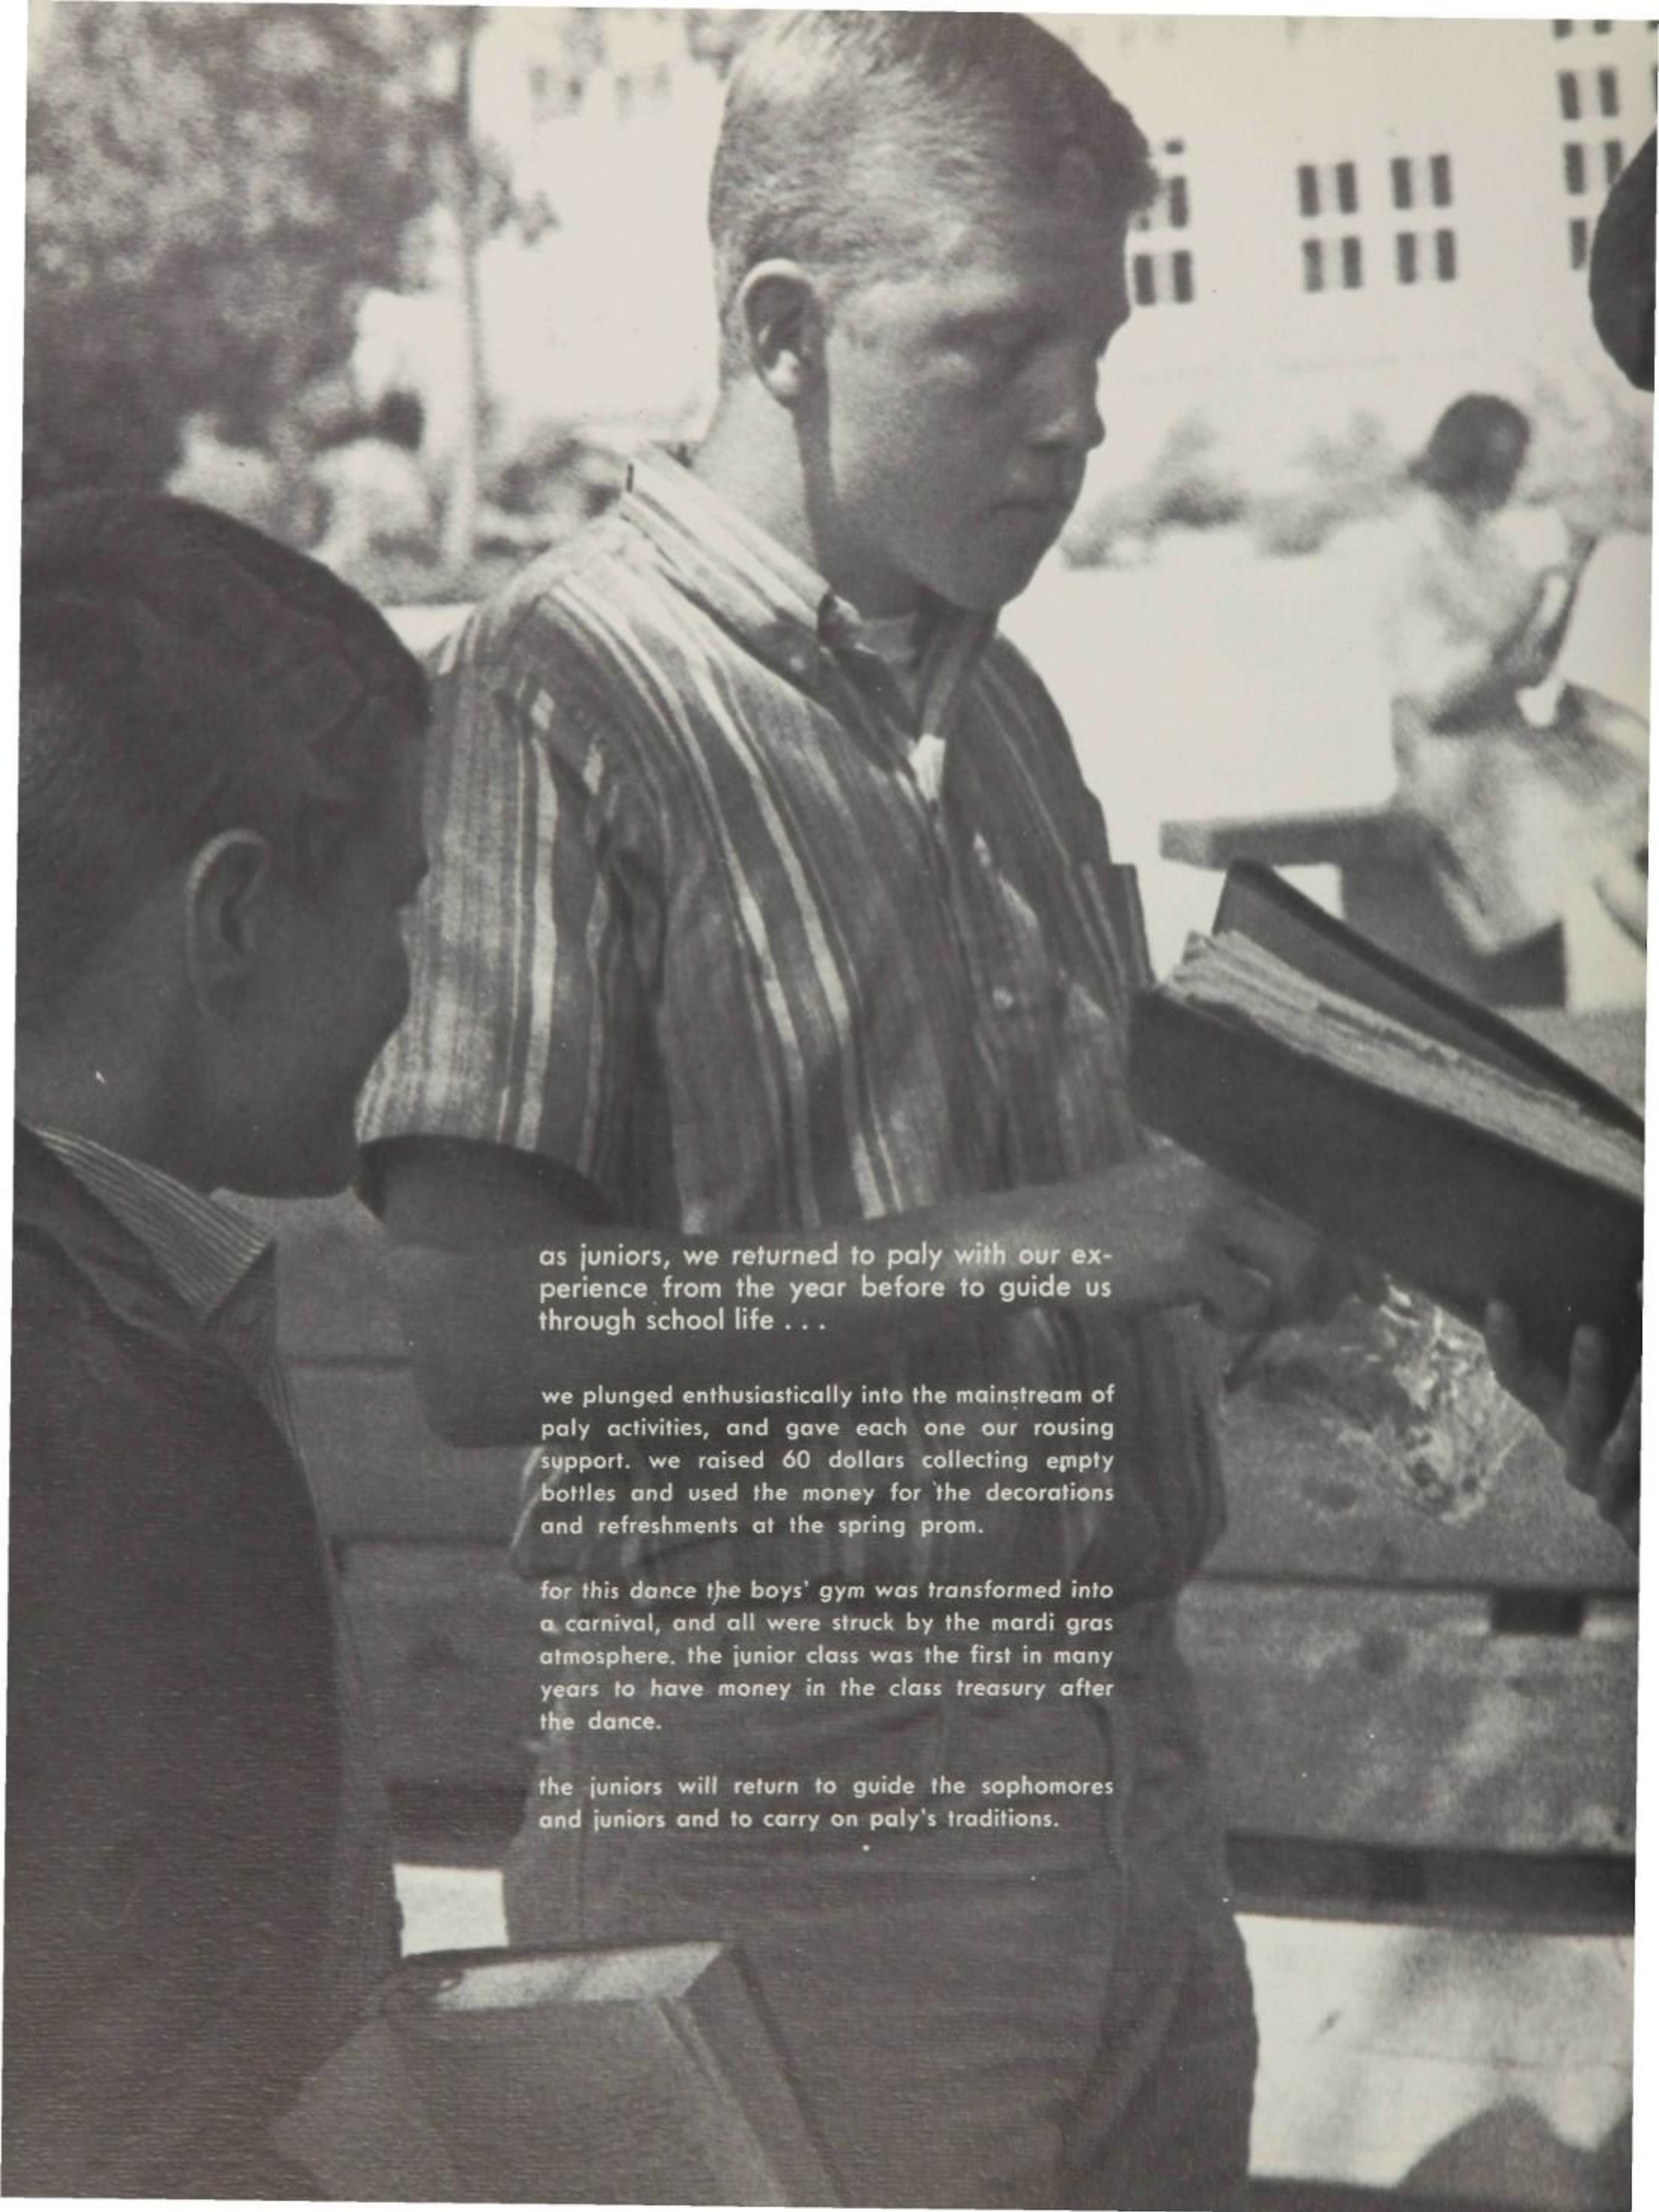
on saturday, april 24, the juniors held the spring prom. sal carson and his band played from 9:00 to 12:00 with steve fisher entertaining at the intermissions.

the theme of th[illegible]r's prom was a mardi gras. it was well carried out with fabulous decorations [illegible]ned by the university club.

the decorations [illegible]mmittee, headed by jennifer johnson and a number of other helpful juniors, [illegible]rked for three hours on friday carefully decorating the gym, and one and a [illegible]alf hours sunday morning hurriedly cleaning up. special thanks went to mr. micklus for doing all the lighting and for his constant help throughout the decorating and cleaning.

each year, of course, the junior queen and her four princesses are crowned at the prom. this year the big moment came at about eleven. the music stopped and everyone was hushed. as is the custom, the four princesses were announced first. they were candi danz, joanne ohliger, beth nicolai, and kris miller. their dates then escorted them to the foot of the throne and they were presented with flowers and a tiara. this year's queen, jane antel, was then announced.

although the spring prom was not as well attended as had been hoped those who went will claim it as a memorable and enjoyable evening.



as juniors, we returned to paly with our experience from the year before to guide us through school life . . .

we plunged enthusiastically into the mainstream of paly activities, and gave each one our rousing support. we raised 60 dollars collecting empty bottles and used the money for the decorations and refreshments at the spring prom.

for this dance the boys' gym was transformed into a carnival, and all were struck by the mardi gras atmosphere. the junior class was the first in many years to have money in the class treasury after the dance.

the juniors will return to guide the sophomores and juniors and to carry on paly's traditions.

this year's gymnastics team, coached by dave leslie, was led to a third place s.p.a.l. ranking mainly by the efforts of three gymnasts: adj pollock, ed searle, and rick mc ilvaine. among them they scored 75% of the team's points.

the team consisted of four third year gymnasts, seven second year veterans, and twenty-four first year men. the team had but two season wins, and their losses were to san jose state, san carlos, carlmont, and hillsdale. two seconds were taken in the novice meets, and a third was captured in the homestead invitational.

coach leslie labeled paly as an "iffy-if" team; if they had not had injuries, and if they had "hit their routines" their ranking would have been considerably higher.

poly's varsity swimmers rebounded from an early season duel-meet loss to menlo atherton to reassert themselves as the most powerful swim team in the nation.

smarting from the upset at the hands of their arch-rivals, poly took revenge in the league championship meet by trouncing m.a. for the third straight year, 89-68. poly swimmers took 7 of the 11 first places in a meet which saw 11 times qualify for automatic all-american recognition.

the vikes went on to repeat as division 11 and n.c.s. champions, winning the latter by 10 points over 2nd place m.a. poly took four first places, including pete siebert in the butterfly, robin waples in the 100 free, siebert, waples, chip lee and jim stern in the medley relay, and soph ted nichols in diving. john mccrary swam a 1:48.0 200 free, but was touched out by george watson of los altos.

swimming world, which compiles the a-a listings, has already recognized the following all-american times:

medley relay
siebert, waples, lee, stern	1:43.5
robin waples
50 free	22.0
100 free	48.0
200 individual medley	2:06.3
pete siebert
200 individual medley	2:01.4
100 butterfly	52.9
100 backstroke	56.5
john maccrary
200 free	1:48.0
400 free	3:54.7
free relay
waples, siebert, dave guy, steve jones	1:30.6

a-a classification in diving has not yet been compiled, but ted nichols, who set an n.c.s. record for a single dive with 69.6 points, appears to be a sure candidate.

coach paul bataille is losing maccrary, waples, siebert, lee, and guy, but still envisions a bright future for poly swimming in '66, as 1:52 200 man jim stern, sprinters steve jones and joe welsh, ted nichols, and distance ace fred thoits are returning, as well as a strong b team.

poly's lightweights came through with many clutch performances to capture the s.p.a.l. dual meet title for the third consecutive year. mike allen and hairy larry guy were the brightest stars; both went on to take individual titles at n.c.s. allen's 1:51.4 in the 200 free cracked john mccrary's old n.c.s. record by 2 seconds and nearly earned him varsity all-america honors. other standouts were the free relay team of rich wucher, greg waples, pete von kempf and chuck johnson, who took first in the s.p.a.l. and combined with guy to take 6th at n.c.s., and "wimpy" miles chedekel, a butterflyer who switched to diving in midseason and went on to take 1st in the s.p.a.l. championships.

the anemic vike c's sunk into last place in the s.p.a.l., mainly due to their lack of manpower. other schools in the league are 4 yr. high schools, and can therefore [illegible] swimmers. in spite of such overwhelming odds, marty vetter, marsh virello, lex alexander, and john "the body" perraton fought valiantly.

this year we have overcome laziness and tradition and accomplished the colossal task of painting the commissioners' office. but the unfinished job shows that apathy was there all the time, and it is for the class of '66 to find spirited new ways of overcoming it. even though luke snagg, who truly embodied the spirit of '65, had only a short life-span as compared to the endless span of a whole year's apathy. best wishes to the class of '66 in pursuing effective relations with the administration. many thanks to all the girls who have made my year a success. we brought a definite purpose and an exciting program back into the big 'n little sister party. our "miss international" contestants brought sparkle to the jinx, paly's most well known and delightful tradition. girls' league ended the year with a mothers' tea which was called the finest ever. i've had a great year serving you in these activities, and extend my best wishes to my fellow classmates of '65.

commissioner of girls' activities

as commissioner of boys' athletics, my activities included regulating block awards, serving as master of ceremonies at the three sports award banquets, and getting guards for athletic events. as a member of the board of commissioners, i fought the law that required athletes to buy student body cards, and supported burmuda shorts. i found this year as boys' athletic commissioner a most rewarding one.

barry mathis
commissioner of boys' athletics under the auspices of commissioner rob kessler, this year's boy's league has been unusually successful. eight hundred fifty dollars was raised from the sale of concessions and programs at athletic events. this sum was used for awarding two boy's league scholarships to deserving seniors: hod ray to mike morrissey, and boy's league to tom horne. special recognition should go to a diligent boy's league cabinet composed of seniors dan edson, red jeffrey, steve schaper, and pete siebert; juniors drew bradley, doug bugee, steve gerrish, john keller, mike misoff, and bob zobel; sophomores chuck benbrook, pete clark, bob strock, and mark wilson, and also to mr. emery christiansen, adviser.

during my year as rally commissioner, we kept school spirit at a fever pitch by staging rallies and skits, by creating patriotic green and white posters, and by spiritedly sporting balloons, ribbons, and buttons.

in preparation for the crucial football match against cubberley, we serenaded each football player the night before, communicating the paly spirit and a burning desire to win. a traditional project was preparation for the annual paly-sequoia game at stanford stadium. festivities included a full week of green and white and a super intense dose of school spirit in the form of card stunts, masterful cheerleaders, musical pompon girls, and ravishing football queens.

the rally committee's spirit stirring activities were so effective that our 65 basketball team carried the s.p.a.l. title and continued to the peninsula basketball tournament.

pompon tryouts in the spring were organized on the basis of a more equitable system.

many thanks for our spirit filled year are due to the energy and enthusiasm of our advisor, mrs. stilwell.

this year the duties of the commissioner of public welfare were divided into two areas: enforcement and service. the main enforcement duties entailed checking for speeding, smoking, and littering, with emphasis placed on prevention of law-breaking rather than giving tickets. speed bumps were not installed, and the campus remained open, the service activities encompassed car registration, career day, first period hall clearance, and back to school night.

1965 has been both a successful and unique year for the publications department. in keeping with past traditions, the tower was edited and published last summer and distributed to incoming palyites in the fall. the campanile*, under excellent leadership, merited all-american accredation.* this feat was achieved even though the paper was printed somewhat erratically during the second semester due to high printing costs and lack of budgeted funds.

the madrono staff produced the first complete paly yearbook, distributing the finished product in late august. the work and time spent on the '65 madrono are apparent in these pages. during the first week of june an outstanding motif was issued. paly's literary magazine allowed capable artists to display their talent.

parking cars for stanford football games was again undertaken by publications. this task plus another successfull christmas formal were the two major means employed to supplement our funds.

in conclusion, i would like to thank all of you for the support you have given me and the publications department this year.

notifying board of commissioner members about meetings, furnishing agendas, and typing minutes were all part of my role as commissioner's secretary.

"cheer up the worst is yet to come" and "smile every week thru the year then panic when the two week deadline arrives," were among the quotations posted.

in addition i did typing jobs for board members and special functions such as the s.p.a.l. leadership conference. i maintained necessary correspondence and composed letters for the president's signature.

the student court constitutes the judicial branch of student government. ours is one of the few student courts in the area and is the most active and highly organized; it is no coincidence that such privileges as an open campus are virtually unique to paly.

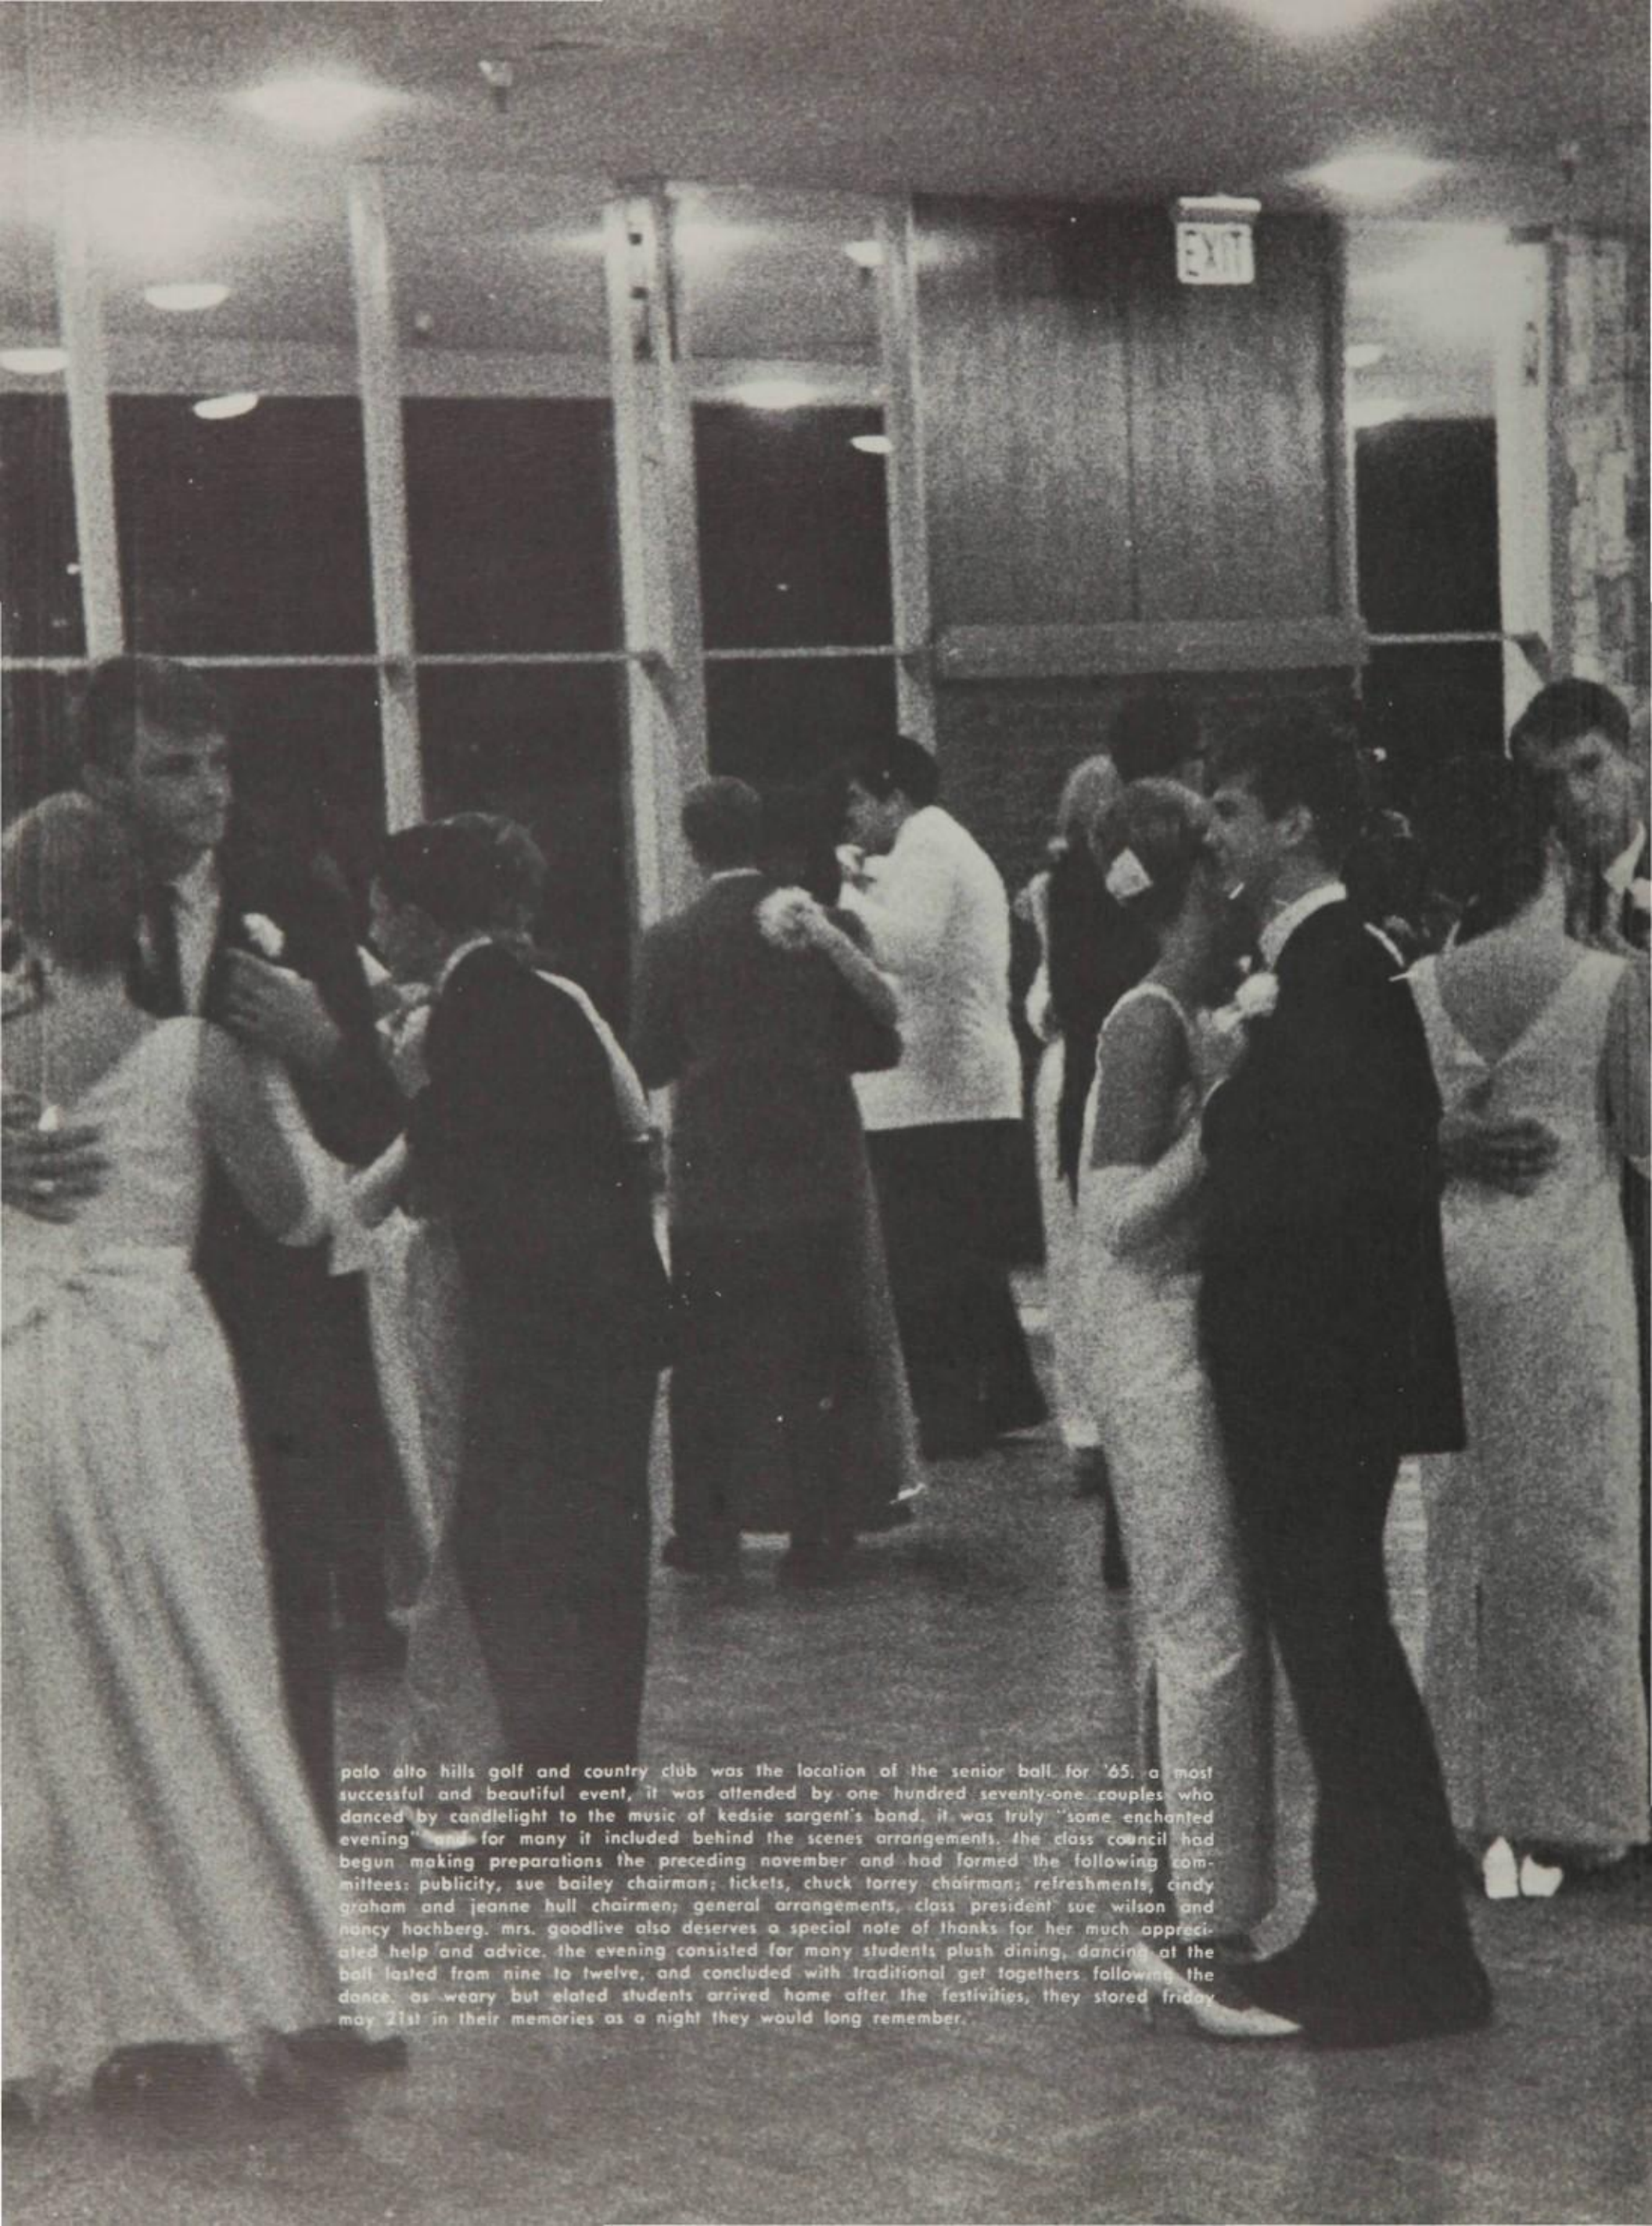
the administration's belief that students should be given as much responsibility as they are capable of handling is typified by the wide powers of the court. it has jurisdiction in three areas: criminal cases, cases of equity, and cases of constitutional review.

criminal cases (i.e. violations of student body law) make up the bulk of court business. such cases are usually the result of a citation issued by a board of welfare officer. violations dealt with by the court include speeding, littering, jay-walking, overloading a car, tardiness at brunch, and smoking on campus. the accused may receive a trial if he can produce enough evidence to warrant one, otherwise he is sentenced without a trial. sentences range from one hour's work for a brunch tardy to a recommendation of two weeks' suspension for smoking.

the court has the sole power to interpret the constitution. this year the court set a precedent in the case of mathis v. board of commissioners when it ruled that the board of commissioners is the executive branch of student government and thus does not have the power to perform legislative functions.

cases of equity, or civil cases, involve disputes between private parties over their respective legal rights and obligations, and the court has been given the power to deal with such cases.

the court is composed of five elected justices, each with an equal vote in court matters. this year ken glazier was chief justice, and heine costello, alan fisher, paul garratt, and mike morissey served as associate justices. barby twining and john wilmer acted as secretary and bailiff respectively. students who pass the bar exam are designated as student attorneys, and are the only students permitted to practice law before the court. mr. henry martin is the court advisor.



palo alto hills golf and country club was the location of the senior ball for '65. a most successful and beautiful event, it was attended by one hundred seventy-one couples who danced by candlelight to the music of kedsie sargent's band. it was truly "some enchanted evening" and for many it included behind the scenes arrangements. the class council had begun making preparations the preceding november and had formed the following committees: publicity, sue bailey chairman; tickets, chuck torrey chairman; refreshments, cindy graham and jeanne hull chairmen; general arrangements, class president sue wilson and nancy hochberg. mrs. goodlive also deserves a special note of thanks for her much appreciated help and advice. the evening consisted for many students plush dining, dancing at the ball lasted from nine to twelve, and concluded with traditional get togethers following the dance. as weary but elated students arrived home after the festivities, they stored friday may 21st in their memories as a night they would long remember.

the thespian society is composed of students who have gained membership by participating in dramatic productions. points are awarded for acting, serving on production committees, and working backstage. ten points are required for membership, and thespian stars are earned for each additional ten points. this year five senior thespians, sally minard, sue robertson, susan fisher, phyinda wallace, and janice paul, received recognition for their over-all service to the club and to its sponsor, mr. joseph fenwick. outstanding thespian awards were received by marita raubitschek and nina krilanovich. officers president marita raubitschek, vice-president michele grumet, secretary janie paul, and treasurer lucia coon led in the club's major activities which included the fall play, "east lynne" and sponsoring the spring one-act play festival.

california scholarship federation (csf) is a statewide organization composed of high school honor students. paly high is a charter member. student membership is recorded each semester on the permanent record card and transcripts. students who receive honor standing for four semesters, one during the senior year, obtain a life membership gold seal on their diplomas and transcripts and wear a gold tassel at graduation.

in accordance with rules established by the state board, one must earn 10 points in 5 subjects, including any solids which are taken, in order to become a member any semester. in prepared subjects, an "a" is worth 3 points and a "b" is one point. unprepared subjects are worth half of this. one needs at least three a's to earn the required points. students should register for membership as soon as the announcement is made after semester grades are issued. report cards must be presented with applications. for the senior year, 3rd quarter grades will be used in place of second semester grades.

this year's officers were: sherry breuer, president; morgan walsh, vice-president; colleen krinard, peter lee, and barbara lee, representatives. miss dorothy sarnecky served as faculty advisor.

although poly won the league's dual meet championship with nine out of ten league victories, a bad day lost this year's team the league championship in the 18 hole s.p.a.l. golf tournament at palo alto hills golf and country club. under the able coaching of bob mayne, who completed 20 years of coaching assignments, the golf team showed considerable improvement due to his keen sense of judgement and corrective advice. rich strock, our all-spal player and poly's most valuable player, along with his playing partner bob jernberg, who received an spal honorable mention, will be sorely missed next year after their fine contribution during the past season. returning from last year's championship team and adding much to the spirit of things were lettermen bill miller, mike norman, russ juilleral, ted mc neil, bo williams, gordy thomas and burton roberts, young and upcoming sophomores bob strock and john jero who played 3rd and 4th men respectively, solidified the foundation of the team. this year's team included:

the 1965 palo alto high track team proved itself to be a veritable tiger both on and off the cinders. led by stalwart coaches jim fairchild, tess presley, al mercer, and bob miltz, the team recorded the crummiest record of many years, compiling a 5 win-3 loss league record and a 1-1 non-league total. the season was provided with many instances of comic relief, however, and most of the team was able to grin and bear it. the loss to san carlos upon the eve of the team's retirement from cinder action boosted palo alto from a 3rd to 4th place finish. the meet would have easily gone to palo alto, however, had not several (namely 6) been caught smoking behind the high jump pit—no we're sorry, we mean if they had not been here at the alma mater taking an advanced placement mathematics examination. the same story of woe can be told of the carlmont stars messrs. steel weed and bob littell were forced to watch the contest from the sidelines due to various hypocondriatic injuries to the cranial lobes. with these two illustrious stars in action it was obvious to everyone that palo alto would have taken the meet by a comfortable margin, breaking carlmont's forty meet record of non-defeat, and putting the green harriers (that means trackmen) into a tie for the s.p.a.l. track championships.

speaking of our illustrious stars, one steve weed gave evidence for his billing mathematics scholar extraordinaire by pole vaulting his way to the state track meet on june 4 and 5. (bakersfield is a long way by pole.) after successfully vaulting many opponents from all over northern california in several qualification meets, mr. weed left for the southland, with the laurels of poly and most of the students on his shoulders. if it weren't for two bizarre 16 foot vaulters from downey, weed might have had a more triumphant trip.

the palo alto high school aquacade board decided some time ago to present an aquacade and with this thought in mind, elected the following as officers: president bonnie thompson, vice-president sue payne, secretary mimi ratner, production manager margaret lyon. class representatives were also chosen at this meeting, and the results were as follows: seniors, martha park and ellie slack, juniors margie rolfe and anita micklus, and sophomores connie mccoy and terry tanner. the resulting aquacade made a splashing success in the paly pool. the many hours spent synchronizing strokes, painting scenery, and making costumes produced a delightful story of a young couple and their impressions of the daily news, a watered down version. all 12 acts were well presented; several of the more outstanding numbers were the solo by mollie ferry, the tramp trio, the addams family by the senior class, the surfing, the exotic theater group. all 60 participants merit recognition for their fine performances on june 4 and 5.

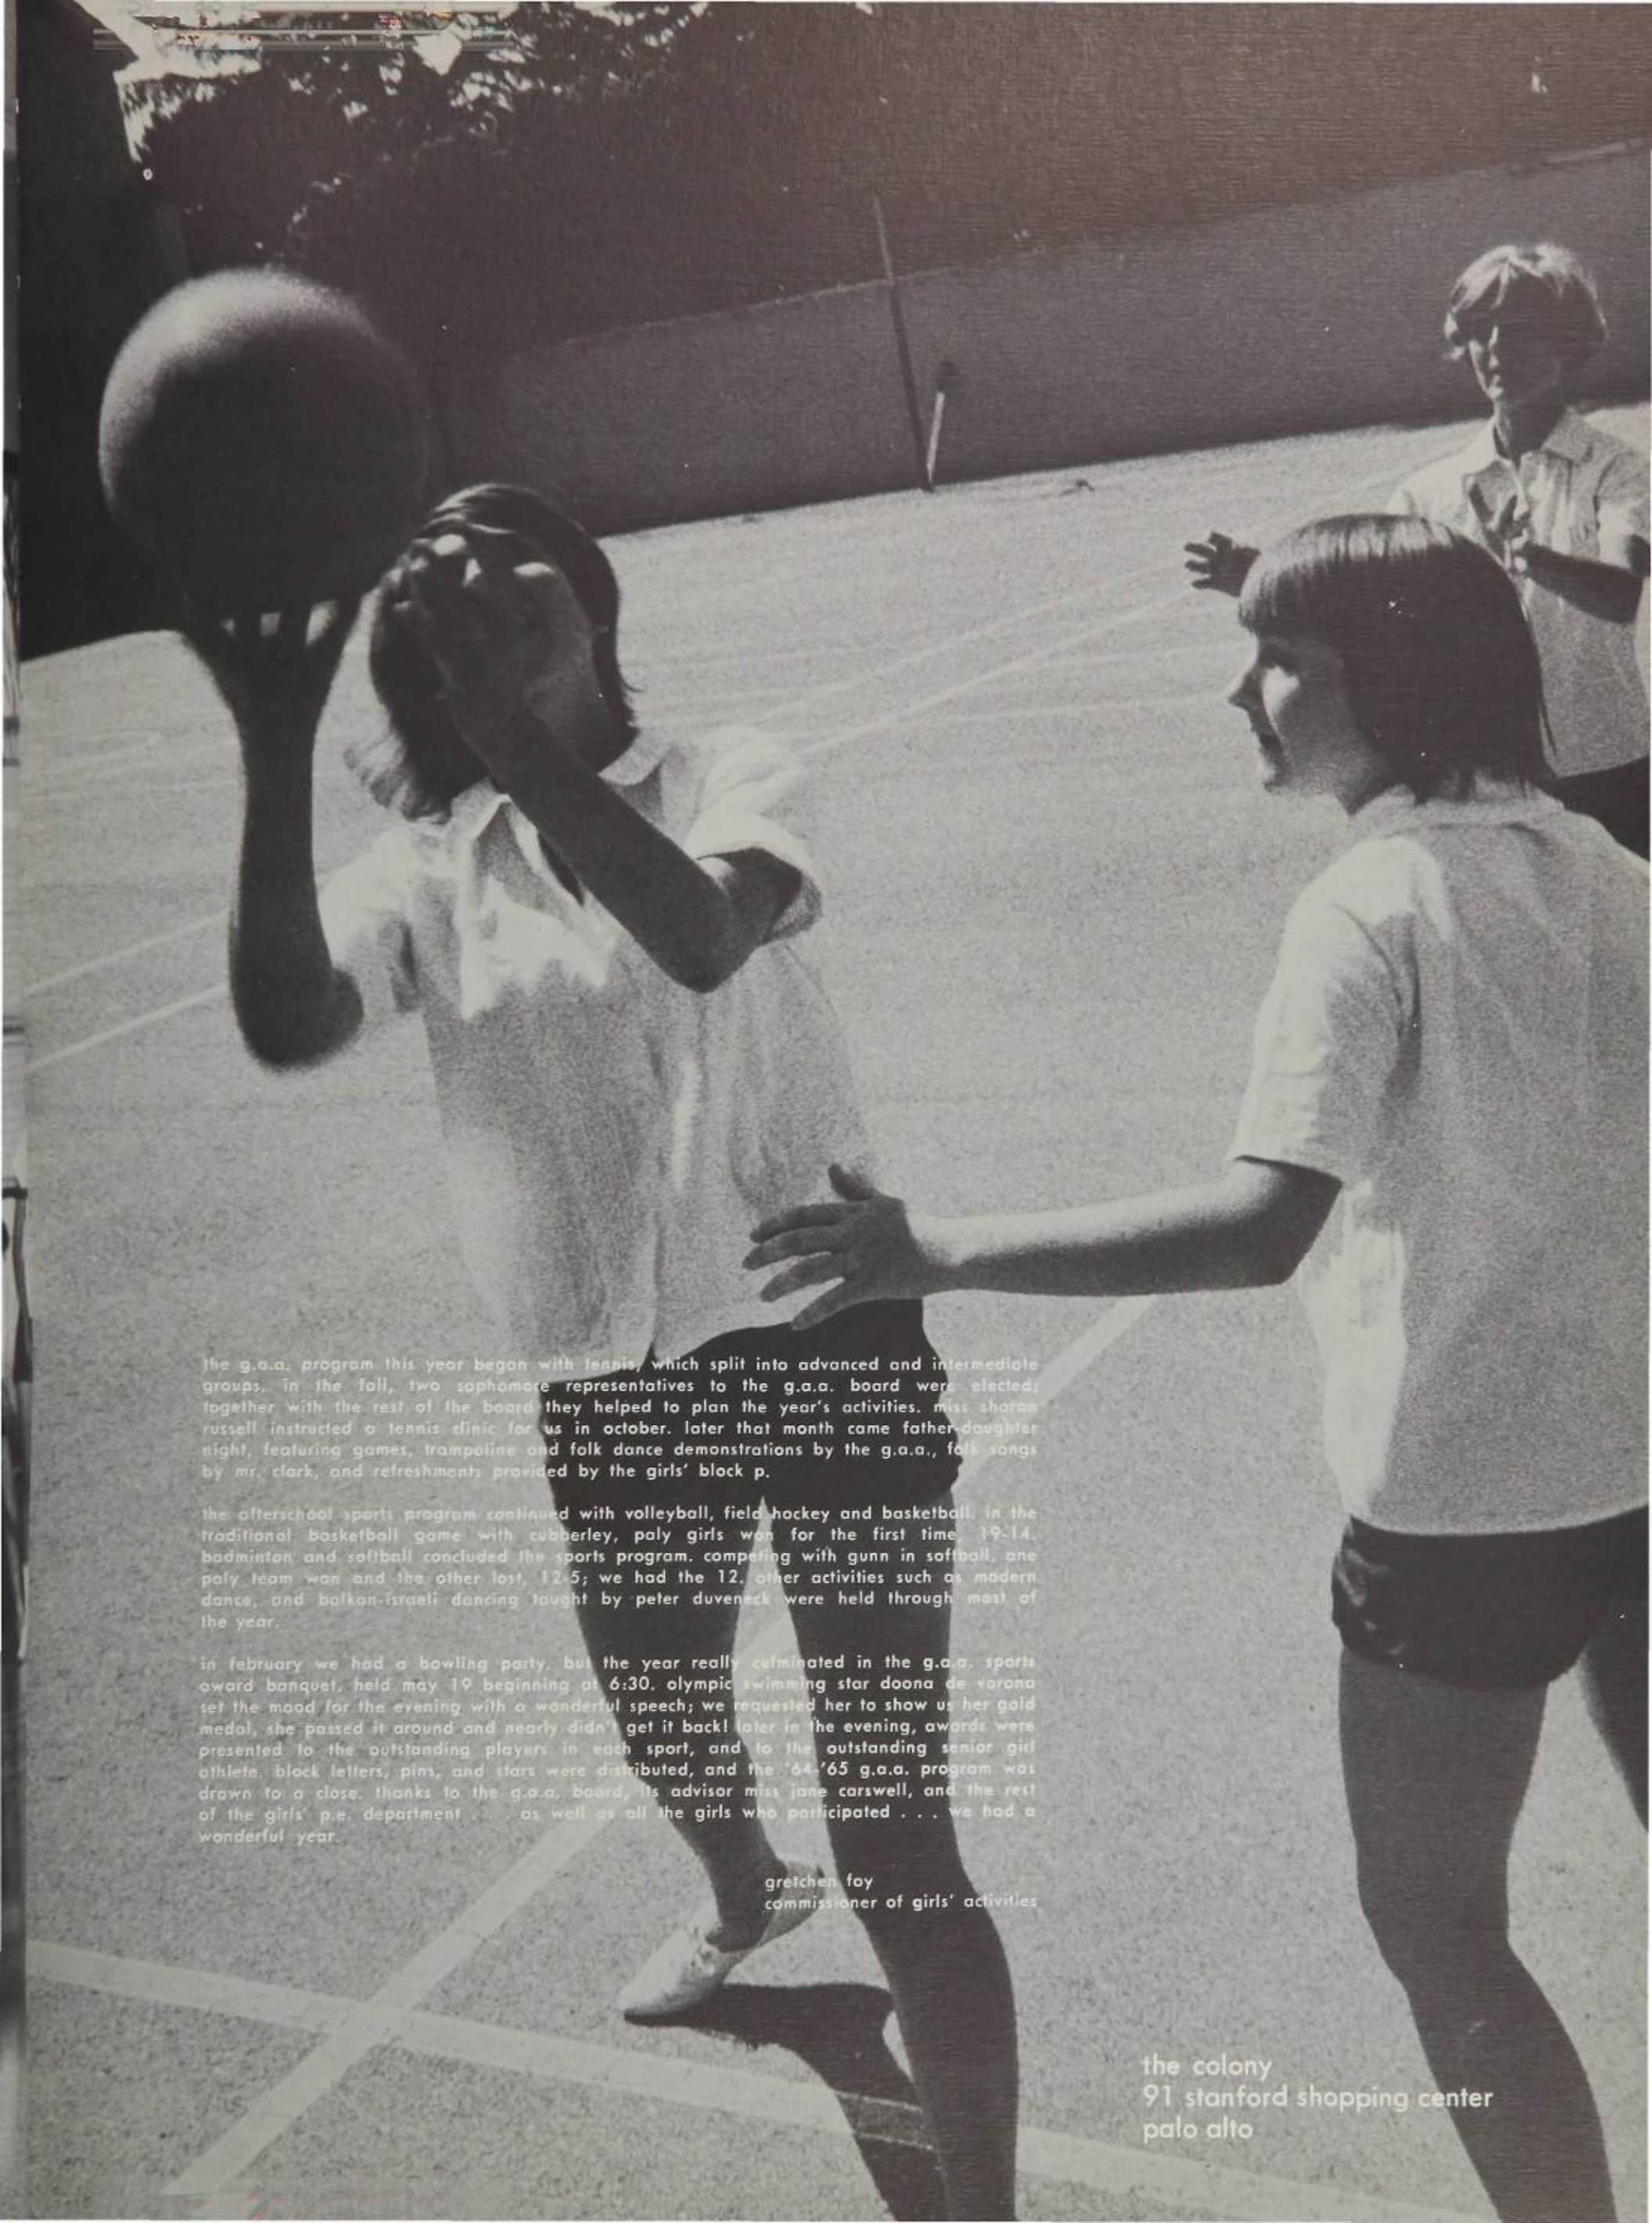
g.a.a. board barbara bly, mary balljahn, diane elkington, lesley gibbs, betsy hastorf, margaret lyon, marti park, caroline peck, nancy rogers, patty sargent, ellie slack, becky smith, pat woodward, and commissioner of girls' athletics, gretchen foy.



the g.a.a. program this year began with tennis, which split into advanced and intermediate groups. in the fall, two sophomore representatives to the g.a.a. board were elected; together with the rest of the board they helped to plan the year's activities. miss sharon russell instructed a tennis clinic for us in october. later that month came father-daughter night, featuring games, trampoline and folk dance demonstrations by the g.a.a., folk songs by mr. clark, and refreshments provided by the girls' block p.

the afterschool sports program continued with volleyball, field hockey and basketball. in the traditional basketball game with cubberley, paly girls won for the first time, 19-14. badminton and softball concluded the sports program. competing with gunn in softball, one paly team won and the other lost, 12-5; we had the 12. other activities such as modern dance, and balkan-israeli dancing taught by peter duveneck were held through most of the year.

in february we had a bowling party, but the year really culminated in the g.a.a. sports award banquet, held may 19 beginning at 6:30. olympic swimming star doona de varona set the mood for the evening with a wonderful speech; we requested her to show us her gold medal, she passed it around and nearly didn't get it back! later in the evening, awards were presented to the outstanding players in each sport, and to the outstanding senior girl athlete. block letters, pins, and stars were distributed, and the '64-'65 g.a.a. program was drawn to a close. thanks to the g.a.a. board, its advisor miss jane carswell, and the rest of the girls' p.e. department . . . as well as all the girls who participated . . . we had a wonderful year.

the silver seal is paly's award to members of the graduating class who have demonstrated outstanding leadership and service to the school. applicants for the silver seal must turn in a self-evaluation form to the committee for consideration at the end of each semester. emphasis is placed on the senior year, however. although this year's committee was composed of ten seniors, four juniors, and two sophomores, with mr. guidoux and mrs. hammer as advisors, the only active body was the group of seniors. they spent much time reviewing and awarded thirty-six silver seals out of about fifty applicants.

traditionally there are two special ceremonies held for graduating seniors. the first of these is the baccalaureate service held at stanford memorial chapel on a sunday preceding commencement exercises. the purpose of this non-denominational service is to deliver a farewell sermon to the graduating class. paly is one of two high schools fortunate enough to hold its service in the stanford chapel. such a setting is awe-inspiring by itself; when accompanied by an entire class dressed in graduation robes filing down the aisles, the picture is complete.

the service is under the direction of reverend r.m. minto of stanford. speakers are chosen through tryouts before a class council and faculty committee. student speakers this year included bonnie graham, sue bailey, and steve schaper. the baccalaureate choir is always outstanding; its soloist is also chosen through a tryout. carol wheeler was selected this year and favored those in attendance with a beautiful rendition of "come unto him" from handel's "the messiah."

the address, the dominant portion of the service, was delivered this year by elder ronald e. poelman of the church of jesus christ of the latter day saints. the subject of his address was "what is man?" the main points of elder poelman's sermon were that man is a dignified being with a special purpose in life; our challenge is to meet and to develop this purpose.

perhaps the class of 1965 will best remember its baccalaureate service by the spirit of its 520 members united in worship of God, looking to Him for guidance and aid for the future.

greg wright was a close friend of many at paly and was to have graduated with the class of '65, but leukemia took his life in march of this year.

greg came to stanford from his native oregon in 1956 and attended terman junior high before coming to paly. during those years he gathered around him a large group of friends who were attracted by his good nature and zest for living. they saw him mature, developing keen sensitivities, values, and compassions.

no one could suspect the new courage and dignity greg assumed in the months after being stricken by leukemia. to him it was a test of his strength of character and he accepted the challenge.

a close friend said of greg, "he wrote his own epitaph, said it in his own words, lived it among his friends, carved it deeply in our memories: he enjoyed life."

with a deep sense of loss and sorrow at his passing, but in the spirit which he enjoyed life, we publish in memoriam the 1965 madrono to gregory alan wright.

the class of '65 boasts a history any graduating class would find desirous. from the beginning of our sophomore year we have dedicated ourselves to the prospect of making '65 a class to remember. that year we were led by president robin waples, assisted by chris ledgerwood, vice-president, and ann kingman, secretary. we passed through the orientation period, during which time the girls received special recognition and welcome at an outdoor get-together at phyllis rathbun's.

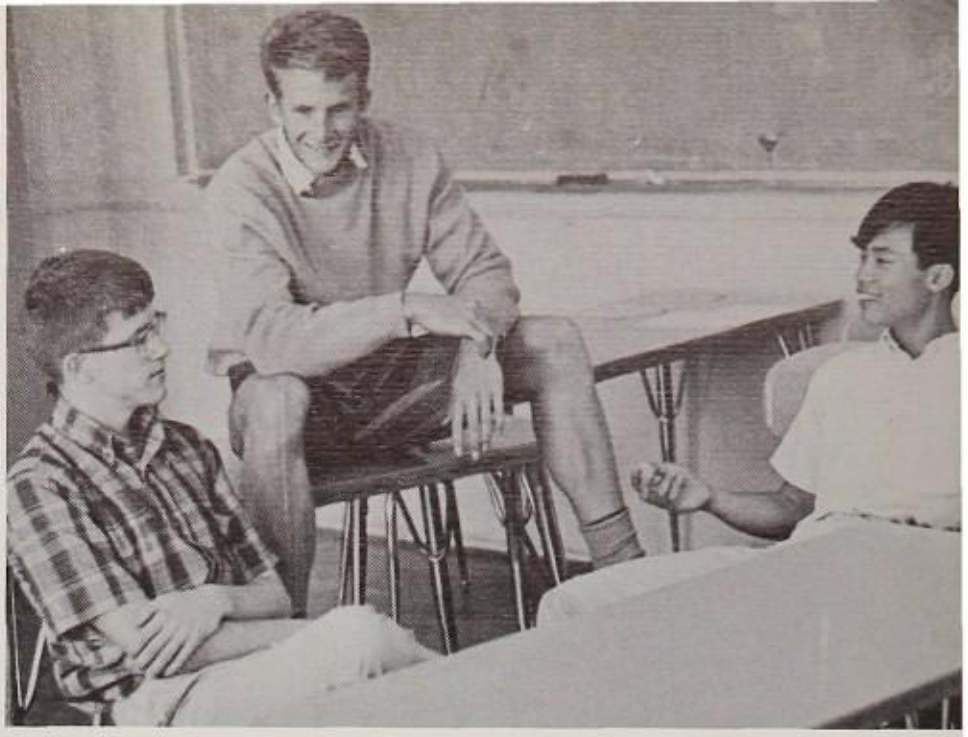
after the first week of general confusion, we settled down to high school life. our class council concerned themselves mainly with money raising projects. bonnie graham was our football queen and our "b" swimmers, led by pete siebert and johnny mc crary, won all-league honors as did the gymnastics team. our "c" basketball team become champions for the first time in twenty-five years.

our junior year began with a championship football team which boasted an undefeated season. sue bailey was football queen. class council activities were centered around the junior prom, "moonlight cruise on the s.s. viking", and were under the direction of chris ledgewood, class president. heine costello served as vice-president and judy may as secretary. money raising projects for this activity culminated when the gym became a state ship on which sharon stewart was crowned prom queen. spring brought college boards and elections. jim hewlett was to lead student body functions and sue wilson was elected senior class president. serving under her would be chuck torrey and diane french, vice-president and secretary, respectively. school ended with the flurry of cheerleading and pom-pon tryouts and we looked forward to our big year.

this year has been one of excitement and thrills. our football team, reigned over by carol wheeler, was certainly exciting. all leaguers included jack chaney and mark judy and second teamer chris clark. s.p.a.l. honors were also lauded upon our water polo, wrestling, and basketball teams. paly represented the league at the p.b.t. and bob littell and dick buell were selected as all s.p.a.l.'ers and mike morrissey was selected for the second team. the swim team, led by all-americans pete siebert and robin waples, and johnny mc crary was named number one in the nation.

academically our honors were also numerous as we claimed six national merit scholars and ken glazier received many forensics awards. the class countil, pictured here, was busier than ever before leading cupcake sales, bottle drives, folk concerts, anything to keep the class solvent. the big event was the senior ball, "some enchanted evening", a tremendous success.

and thus '65 can engrave its name and history as one to be proud of. we would, however, like to thank the capable counselling staff which has guided our three years. to head counselor mr. demele, and to mr. palmer, mrs. aiken, mrs. hammer, mr. davis, and especially to mrs. goodlive go our sincerest thanks. and to paly, a fond farewell.



six paly seniors were named national merit scholars this year after successfully completing nationwide competition. testing for the honor began in march of 1964 when they took the first battery of exams along with 90% of the nation's juniors. testing included three hours of comprehensive survey in five areas: english, social studies, natural sciences, mathematics, and word usage. fourteen thousand semifinalists throughout the nation were selected, twenty-four of whom came from paly. this was a record high. semifinalists then filed records of their creative accomplishments, leadership qualities, extra-curricular activities, and school citizenship and had to substantiate their qualifying test scores on the college entrance examination boards.

finalists were named in february this year, and every paly semifinalist achieved this ranking. these students received certificates of merit and were officially recognized by other scholarship-giving foundations.

criteria for the final selection stiffened and added grades and counselor or principal recommendations to the already impressive list.

finally, on the first of may, it was announced that six paly students were named merit scholars. these students represent one-fifth of all the scholars in the bay area, more than any other school. all are now eligible for scholarships of varying amounts. these students well deserve our congratulations. they are pictured above and from left to right are: bill rule, gretchen foy, craig boyan, jim hewlett, steve weed, and elliott kai-kee.

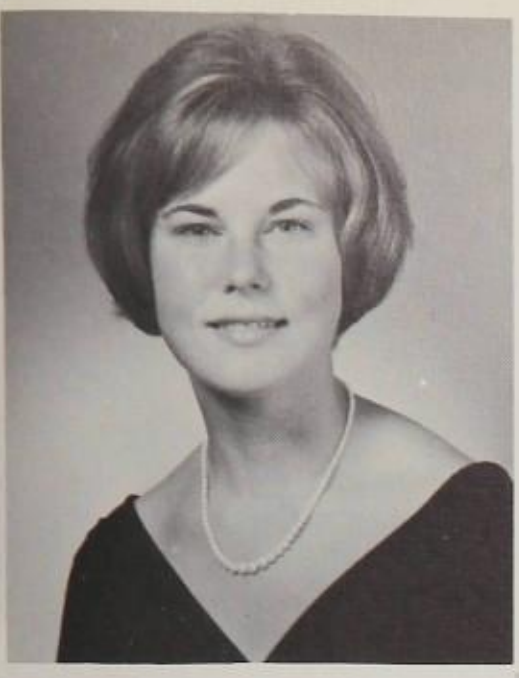
. . . our memories of palo alto high as each of us has traveled the road of life, our elders have always impressed upon us the necessity of preparing for the future. in elementary school we prepared for junior high school. similarly, in junior high we readied ourselves for high school. our next step is comparatively undefined, for seemingly quite suddenly the future is upon us. our destinies will, to a great extent, be shaped by our decisions to the questions before us now. before answering these questions, let us reflect a bit on the spirit and meaning of our class.

unseen bonds have molded the class of 1965 together in a quest for maturity, for skills, for self-mastery, for social awareness, for proficiency. we have been brothers in a common pursuit of knowledge. certainly we have not always participated in the same activities nor had stimulated the same interests, nor accumulated the same information, for the facets of paly life are innumerable, as we have tried to portray throughout this book. nevertheless, no one could deny an underlying kinship within the class. it was this spirit which made us feel proud of another because of his accomplishments, no matter to what degree they varied from one's own. from fostering a drive for an amelia earhart postage stamp to playing the best game of football one could, a pride in a job well done by a fellow classmate existed.

now we are faced with the complexity and the perplexities of life. we will be going our separate ways, developing these variant phases of paly existence which we have been viewing. which of us we will read about in a few years depends now upon time and determination. '65's spirit of brotherhood will not perish, however, for we shall hand it down to an incoming class for them to cultivate during their stay at paly. yet their's shall never be quite the same as that of '65. we shall go our ways, and for a while we shall wonder what ever happened to the boy with the warm brown eyes we sat beside in history, or the girl with the turned up nose who collected role sixth period. and perhaps, some day a long way off, coincidence may bring us back together. but in most cases the reunions shall be brief and far between. so, we must continue to make our name proud, and above all, we must endeavor to spread our '65 spirit of brotherhood, love, and dedication to all the world.



CAROL J. ABBOTT

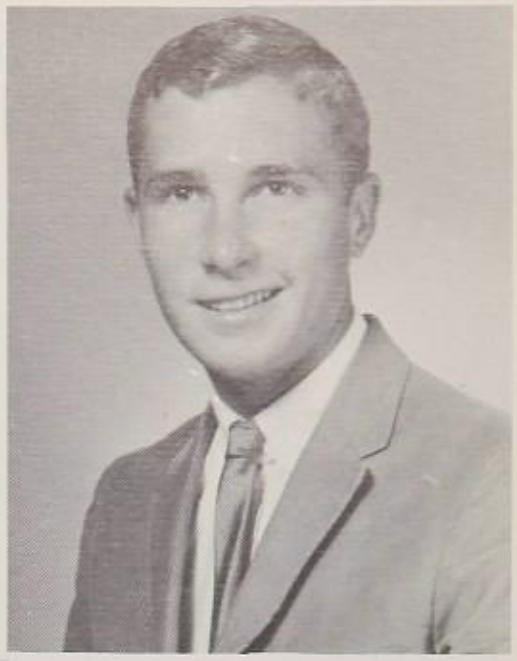
1. c.s.f.
2. jinx
3. i.f.c.
4. "s" club
5. board of welfare

carol, one of '65's most cheerful, is always ready with a bright hello, even on monday mornings. her interests include tennis, skiing, sewing, and volunteer work at the children's health council. when carol isn't rehearsing for the jinx or selling cookies for the "s" club, she is industriously running her i.b.m. computer programs. after graduation carol plans on college at pitzer or possibly berkeley.

DOUGLAS J. ABBOTT

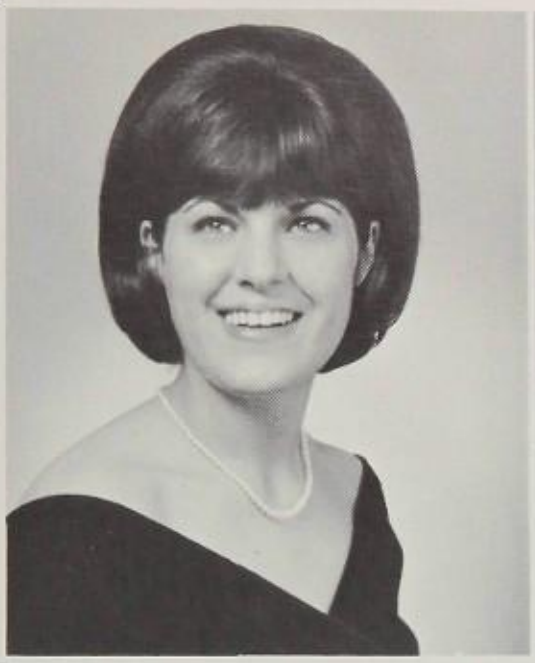
1. gymnastics
2. wrestling

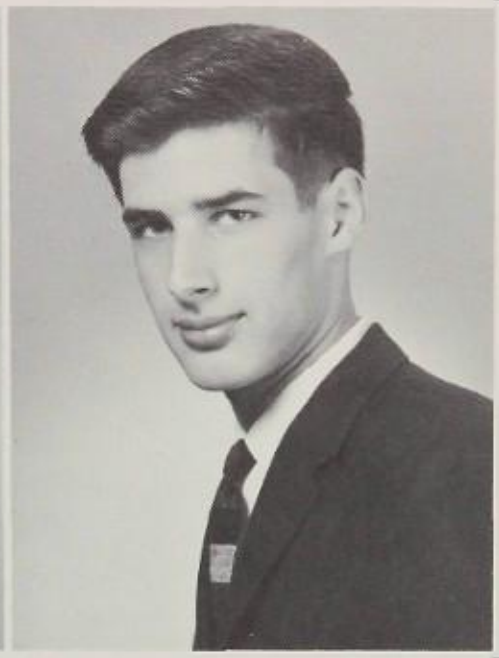
doug has enjoyed paly for its many traditions, but he would like to do away with mr. christensen's office. doug also enjoys history, but can do without german. doug wants to be happy and make a certain girl happy too. college is included in his future plans.



MARY S. AGRAMONTE

sue lived in switzerland for one year, but returned to paly for her junior and senior years. this tall, sophisticated brunette spent part of her senior year working at the channing house, and she presently spends most of her leisure time water skiing or with scott. sue is undecided about college, but she will probably attend san jose state or foothill and study to become a dental technician. sue will always remember graduation at paly, for she feels that she spent just "one too many years there."





JEFFREY ALEXANDER

jeff enjoys water skiing, camping, and golfing. among his numerous travels jeff especially remembers visiting the east zone in berlin. history, as jeff's best subject, coincides with his future ambition to be a governmental lawyer or serve in the diplomatic service.

DAVID E. ALLEN

david moved to palo alto this year from redwood city. in his spare time he works on cars, but the majority of his time outside of school is spent working at the plastic rope company in menlo atherton. after graduation david will continue working, fulfill his number one desire by marrying kathy silva, and then attend a junior college. david hopes to become a lawyer.

ELIZABETH A. ANDERSON

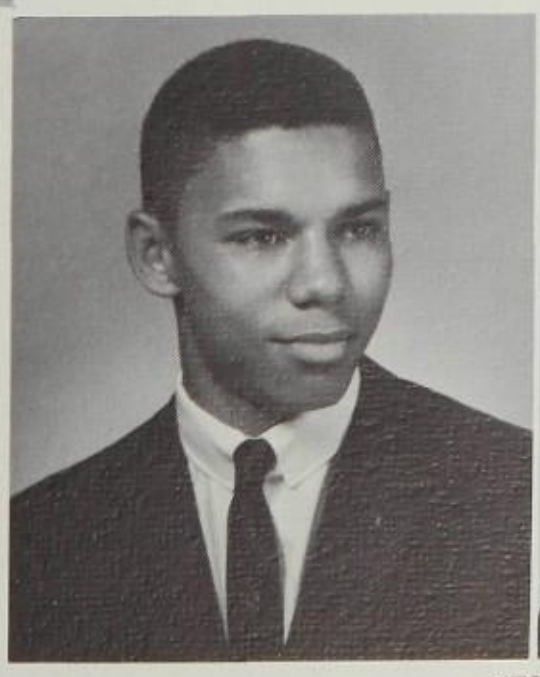
1. r.i.f.s.'s
2. jinx m.c.
3. modern dance club
4. aquacade
5. choir

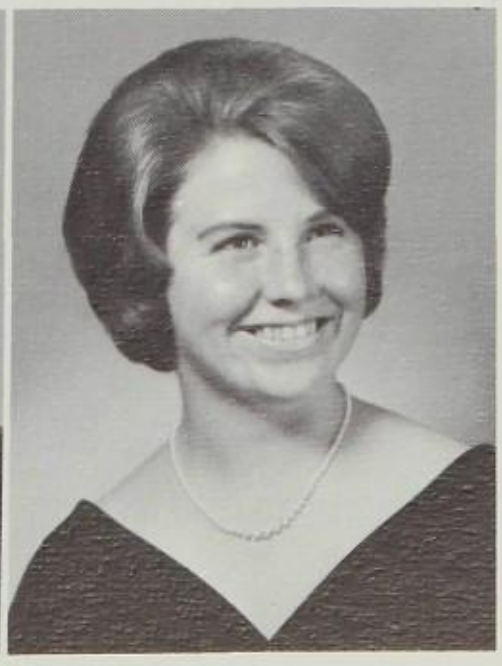
betsy plans on college at the university of the pacific or cal poly. this "funny laugher" will always shun paly's victorian administration. bets, a future traveler, was seen in this year's jinx saying, "que bueno!" betsy claims that she hasn't done her most exciting thing yet and her after graduation plans include searching for this adventure.

HOWARD W. ANDERSON

1. block "p"
2. varsity baseball
3. varsity football
4. cross-country
5. decathlon

howard, everyone's favorite, plans to attend college in los angeles and become a coach. a decathlon winner, he should certainly be a success in this field. howard will always remember what happened when the 3:05 bell rang, the prelude to many wild senior weekends.





LA VON ANDRUS

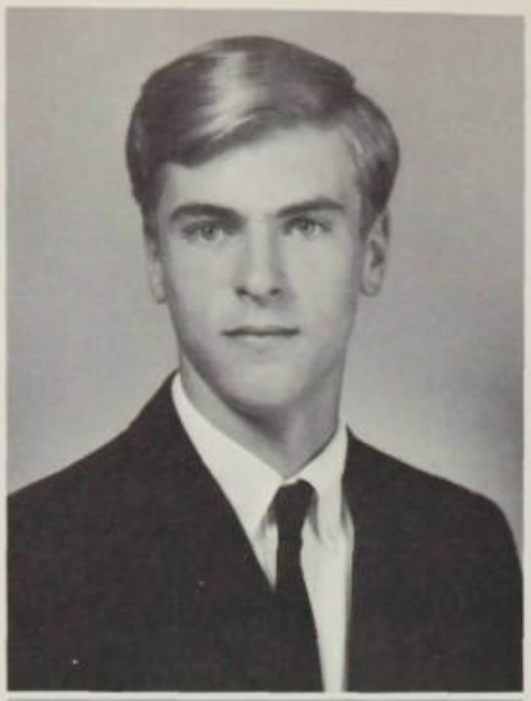
1. board of welfare
2. "s" club
3. homemaking club

la von was one of the talented musicians of our area who went on tour to japan with the california youth symphony. besides music, la von is also interested in snow and water skiing. the spirit of '65 will long be remembered by this senior who desires to own a cherry red v.w. la von plans to attend brigham young university and major in home economics.

DIANE R. ANGELINI

1. campanile
2. choir

diane enjoys skating, fishing, and playing the piano. outside of school her activities include modeling for night school. her favorite senior is tom bridges. diane enjoys journalism and after graduation she plans to attend foothill perhaps to pursue this field.



JOHN J. ANTEL

1. water polo
2. gymnastics

john, born in san francisco, enjoys cars and surfing. in his spare time john dates or goes to the beach. outside of school john works at the shell gas station at edgewood plaza. next year this graduate will attend foothill.

DAVID J. ARTHUR

born in pennsylvania, dave has traveled across the united states three times. dave, who is interested in all sports, enjoys playing baseball in his spare time. he works at a palo alto bakery and "runs around" on the weekends. dave, who travels to foothill in september, will remember paly's mr. martin. his senior flame is marjorie oglesby.

SHIRLEY A. AVILLA

meeting mike russell in los angeles was shirley's most exciting moment. shirley desires to become a beauty operator and to make good grades. her weekends are spent either bowling, going to the movies, or just having fun cruising. her favorite expression is "sorry about that!"

MICHAELE S. BAILEY

1. head cheerleader
2. jr. and sr. class councils
3. madrono sr. section editor
4. c.s.f.
5. legislative council

suzy b., one of our most vivacious seniors, has long been active in school affairs. she was radiant as our junior football queen, and this year has sparked our teams to victory as head cheerleader. sue, this year's "most all-american girl", will always be remembered saying "give me a p!" she is also very active in church and dramatic groups and plans to continue her schooling at stanford. topping the list of sue's interests are her friends, water skiing, and yosemite (or is it mr. bayer aspirin?).

JULIE A. BAIN

1. aquacade
2. bonzer coves
3. i.f.c.
4. jinx

the most exciting thing julie "bang" has ever done was to ski down siberia at squaw valley the first time she's ever skied. she would like to become a dental assistant and wants to attend cal at santa cruz. julie's number one desire is to be twenty-one so she can vote, and her favorite expression is "i jest you not!"

BEVERLY R. BALCOMB

1. i.f.c.
2. german club
3. fall play production
4. aquacade

bev enjoys skiing and her number one desire is to become a ski bum. she is interested in the piano and in world friendship. as an example, this year's christian youth exchange student suzanne kohler from switzerland, has been living with bev this year. after graduation she plans to attend lewis and clark college.

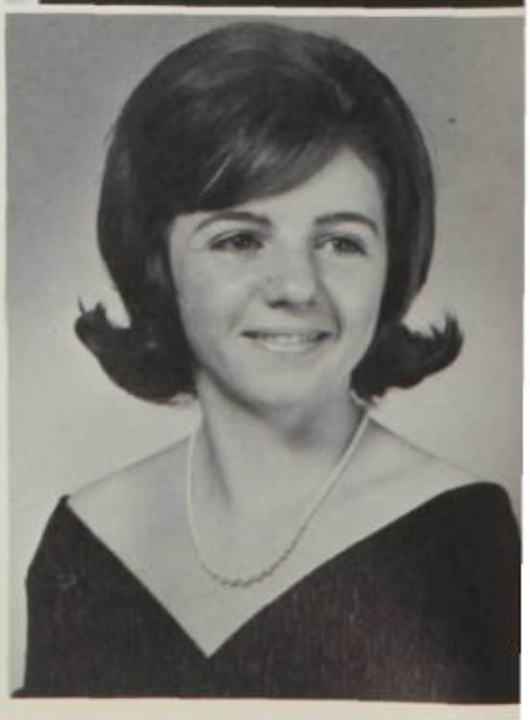
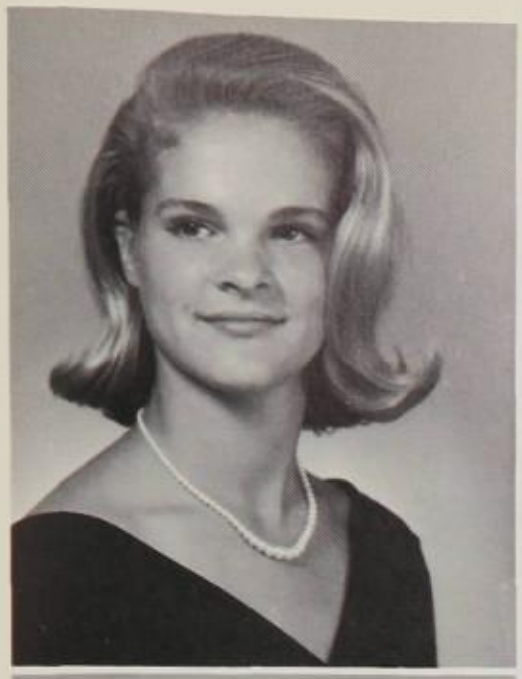
renie's biggest ambition is to reach five feet two inches in height. she enjoys reading, cooking, and paly's football games, but dislikes the crowded paly halls. after graduation she plans to attend college and then become either a history or a language teacher.





KATHERINE A. BARKLEY

1. aquacade
2. c.s.f.
3. jinx m.c.

kitty, one of 65's prettiest, spends most of her time working toward her number one goal—the 1968 olympics. a talented diver, she would like to continue her studies at stanford university. intelligence and maturity more than add to kitty's personality, as a brood of stanford boys will tell you. her main interest is a certain bobby at the university of michigan but while the mouse is away, the "kat" will play.

CHIP BARNES

1. sound
2. audio-visual born in chicago, chip has traveled in maine, new york, nevada, and indiana. his outside interests include lighting design for theaters and the quest toward becoming a millionaire. chip can often be heard saying, "well how about that!"

PAUL S. BATES

1. varsity track
2. cross-country
3. block "p" sec.-treas.
4. tennis club

2. junior class president
3. c.s.f.
4. block "p"
5. varsity gymnastics

ledge's number one desire is to tape up gail latta's mouth. active in paly's government, chris would like to see school spirit increase in the future. he enjoys french and german, and would someday like to become a diplomat. skiing is a favorite pastime as well as ruthie. this best dressed senior boy is also a member of the chess club and choir and was our sophomore class vice president.

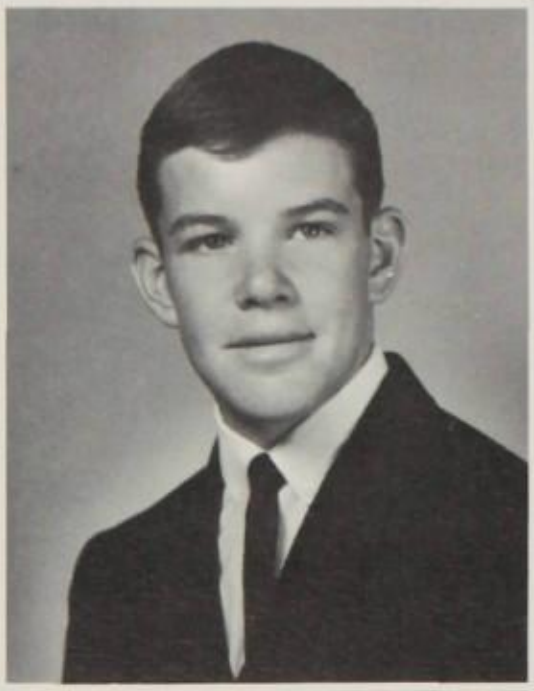
MICHELE Y. LEDOYEN

outside of rabbit hunting, michele's number one hobby is getting in arguments, which should be entertaining if she ever gets on that deserted island! she says that san jose without the "top twelve" will be "tuff enough", but not as good as brunch in the parking lot at paly or "motorcycle mike".

DONALD H. LEE III

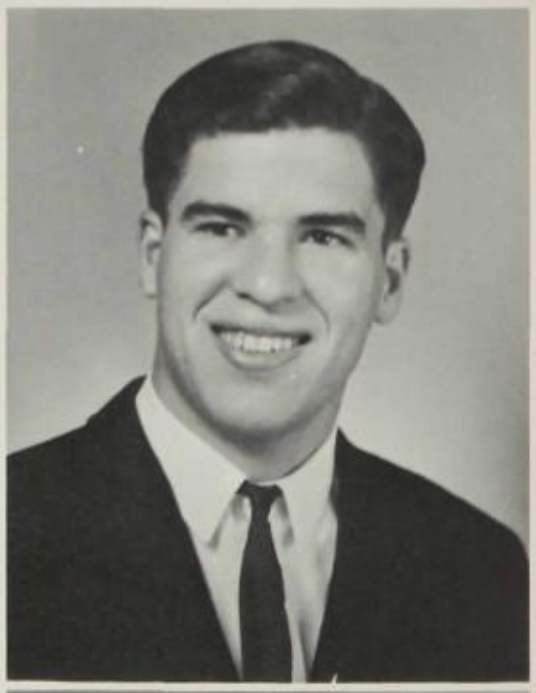
1. varsity swimming
2. varsity water polo
3. block "p"

chip is a native of southern california, but has lived in our 50th state as well as japan. an ardent swimmer, the most exciting thing chip has ever done was to help paly beat m-a in water polo for the first time in seven years. known to the senior women as "flirting chip", don enjoys surfing and football, too. always to remember his senior year and senior flame, anne, chip plans college at foothill and then cal at santa cruz after graduation. his number one desire is to own an island off florida.



JOHN C. LEEDS III

john has lived and traveled in most of the united states and has even spent one and a half years in japan. he enjoys forestry, camping and other outdoor activities in which he engages with explorer post 40. john presently works at a meat packing company after school, and he plans to attend santa rosa junior college. there he will major in forestry as he hopes to become a look-out warden.



JEFFREY M. LEHMAN

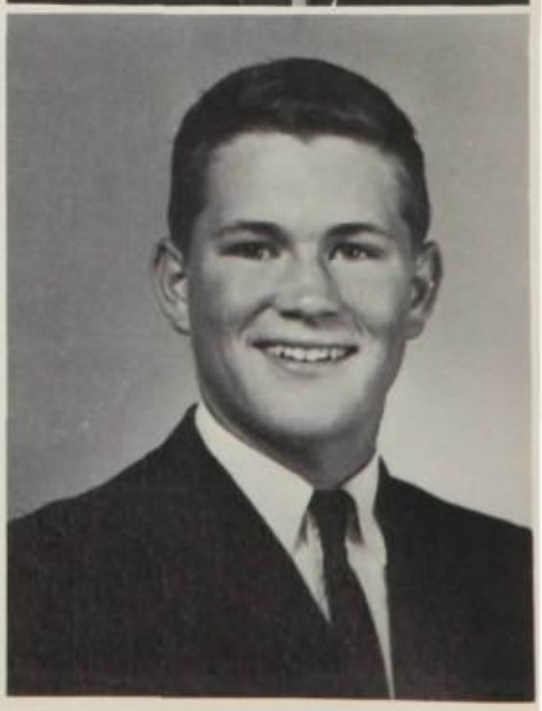
1. varsity wrestling
2. track
3. block "p"

born in palo alto, Jeff's activities include karate and beach parties. jeff, always looking for weekend parties, will long remember paly's great wrestling coach—wes fisher. jeff is another college-bound grad, but his number one desire is to become a horse racing jockey!

RICHARD E. LERCH

1. varsity football
2. baseball
3. varsity gymnastics
4. sophomore water polo

dick plans on becoming a mechanical engineer after first going to san jose state and then to cal. he enjoys skiing, scrambling, and lawn bowling. "kick" will always remember paly for its football teams and the accompanying spirit. his weekends are spent going to paly parties.



PATRICIA LEU

1. homemaking club

small but mighty, pat, whose number one desire is to be taller, was born in san francisco. while at paly her best subject was earth science. this senior girl will take with her to foothill happy memories of what a wonderful high school she attended.

INGRID H. LION

1. jinx
2. choir

ingrid will always remember paly by its football games, open campus, and the top twelve. she has traveled to europe and enjoys such sports as skiing or kayaking at fallen leaf lake. ingrid enjoys shorthand but struggles to keep in pace in french. the university of california at santa cruz is her next stop.

GRACE E. LIGHT

1. choir

to abolish oral reports and the daily bulletin are two of gracie's secret desires, while mr. ochoa is the paly element she'll remember best. going to the beach, attending m.y.f. meetings, and seeing george are her weekend activities. grace hopes to become a dental assistant and she will attend foothill.

2. sophomore baseball

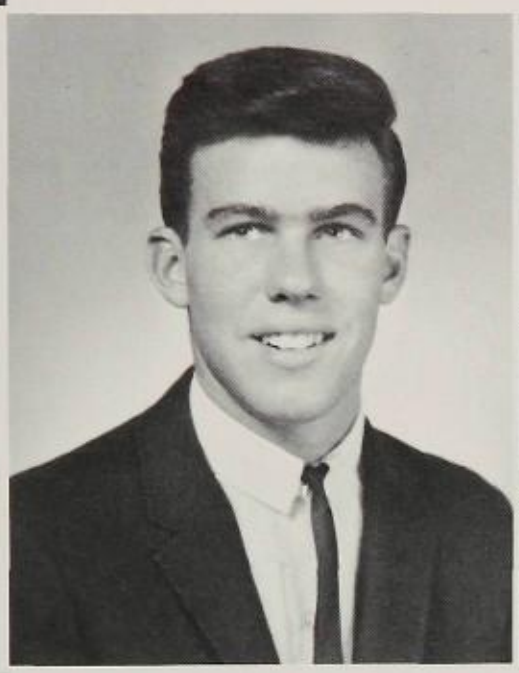
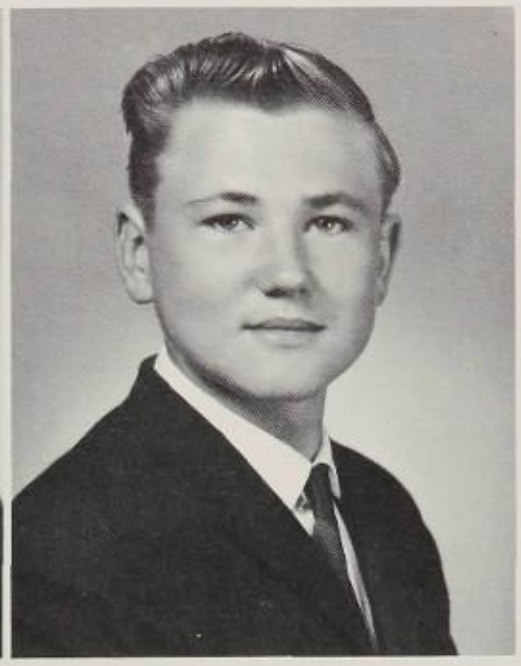
after graduation wayne plans to further his education at santa barbara junior college. wayne is a member of the el rancho boys' club and is known for some wild parties. his senior flame is linda and he's the boy with the eyes!





ANDREW M. ZAWISTOWSKI

british-born andy has toured the republic of south africa and claims his most exciting adventure was when he steered a cargo ship across the atlantic. his outside interests include experimenting with radio and electronical equipment. andy, always to remember paly's natural atmosphere, plans to attend a junior college to determine which branch of electronics he will enter. "ask andy" and he will tell you that, "life is a wonderful thing; without it you are dead."

JOAN C. ZWIERLEIN

jo enjoys riding horses and going to rodeos. she plans on foothill after graduation and her number one wish is to live at covels. jo will always remember lunch at paly, but she didn't like the small boys. she spends her weekends at woodside.

posters urging you to buy your yearbook referred to this publication as the MADrono. many of you probably felt that the madness of the book was not exaggerated.

the 1965 madrono indeed departs from the format followed by previous poly yearbooks: it is the first book to be delivered in august, the first complete yearbook; it is the first book to dispense with sections; it is the first book which contains no posed pictures other than the class sections. these three major innovations were instituted by the staff to produce a yearbook which expresses the varying moods of the students and the atmosphere surrounding school life.

staff members labored diligently to achieve this goal. all worked energetically to meet deadlines and to coordinate pictures and ideas into a concrete substance called a yearbook. each participant merits recognition for his contribution to the finished product: mike and craig for truly superb photography—cindy and kray for informative and interesting write-ups—christopher robin for smooth handling of finances— sue b., and her assistant nance, for making '65's section great—suzie, jan, and ann for efficient handling of the production processes—and gale, margaret, and carol for the underclassman sections. i would also like to thank the mant non-staff members who contributed to the content of this book; with out their help much of our coverage of events would have been incomplete.

it was the purpose of the 1965 madrono to enable you to learn to see poly in new ways, ways which might make your memories of high school life more enjoyable and more complete.

i hope this yearbook will fulfill its purpose for you.

sincerely,
editor

Dear Sue,

I'm sorry I haven't written sooner but I've been very busy. Thank you for your letter and the news about Jordan's engagement. I'm very pleased for them both. Please give my love to Jordan and tell him I'll write to him soon.

Jenny has been in bed with flu for the last week but she's much better now. She sends her love.

Cher Carol - (The classy French dig?) Since I have the honor(?) of being the first to sign your supplement, I will try to make this as inconspicuous as possible. Uncle Don Norton has been a real challenge, n'est-ce pas? Je ne réussis jamais à aimer du Français! (I hope the article was right; maybe it shouldda been le français. Anyway....!
I hope this has been a good year for you - outside notre classe de français, that is - at least I hope it's been better for you than for me! I shouldn't say I had a bad year - after all, I learned to say such practical things as "I don't like hot-dogs"; "where's the library" and how to swear in French, plus other little goodies like "I've broken my leg." Just remember, Carol, that if ever you fall down on the ski slopes, or wipe out badly at the beach, just yell "cherchez le docteur" and all ~~sorts~~ sorts of exciting things will happen!
Best of luck always to the erstwhile Latin scholar gone French!

P.S.
Lest I not be a non-conformist you are
